MILLION WAS PROMISED FEE FROM DOHENY TO M'ADOO

Candidate's Failure to Explain That He Would Have Received $900,000 More Than He Did Had Mexican Mission Succeeded Drives Away Backers.

HE SAYS HIS LAW WORK ISN'T ISSUE

In Telegram to New York World, He Declares Sum Would Have Been Light Compensation for Saving Vast Properties.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Astonishment is growing in Democratic, if not in Republican, circles at the failure of the Senate Committee on Public Lands to bring out the full story of William Gibbs McAdoo's connection with Ed Doheny, says the New York World in a long news story on McAdoo's candidacy this (Sunday) morning.

This astonishment is based not alone on the almost complete absence of cross-examination when he took the stand in Washington, Feb. 11, but upon McAdoo's own decision not to make the contemplated statement that had been expected of, if not agreed to, by him when his supporters met in Chicago Feb. 18.

Matters Not Fully Explained.

Four matters stand out, under these circumstances, as having not yet been fully explained. They are:

1. That the $100,000 retainer which McAdoo received from Mr. Doheny was but part of his understanding with the oil man. If a "certain situation" developed in Mexico, in an effort to bring about which McAdoo actually went there in February, 1921, he would have received $900,000 more, a total of $1,000,000, exclusive of the $50,000 he received personally after his New York firm of McAdoo, Cotton & Franklin was dissolved.

2. That he had himself made reference to contingent fees, although not in those words, in the letter of Feb. 7 in which he asked to be heard by the committee, but that neither in Washington nor in Chicago did he make further reference to the incident.

3. That while McAdoo told the committee he did not appear for Doheny interests before the Treasury Department, of which he had been head, he did not say anything about having appeared there for their interests. In his letter of Feb. 7, he said he had made such appearances, specifying the Treasury Department and the Shipping Board, but that statement was not pursued, either by his examiners or himself.

4. That he did not offer any explanation, except that he feared the newspapers would be "vicious and unfair," for not having severed his Doheny connections immediately after the Doheny-Fall relation had been revealed in January, instead of waiting until the day after Mr. Doheny himself had made known the retainer of McAdoo.

McAdoo testified before the Senate committee at Washington Feb. 12, when many newspaper accounts declared he scored "a personal triumph." They commented upon his "air of confidence and rectitude," and upon the fact that the Republican members of the committee, like the Democratic, had been extremely defferential toward him.

His Friends Were Disturbed.

To some of the most important of McAdoo's friends his "triumph" on the stand was more apparent than real. They were disturbed, according to reliable report, because the Senate investigators had not inquired into all the essential matters connected with McAdoo's legal services for Doheny and had not laid bare the facts connected with the $1,000,000 contingent retainer. They believed a full and frank discussion would have put an entirely different aspect on the situation. A conference of these well wishers of Mr. McAdoo was held in Washington immediately after his session with the committee.

McAdoo was present, together with Bernard M. Baruch, Thomas

RIVERA PLANS TO SUPPRESS CRITICISM BY PROFESSORS

Warns in Note That University Teachers Must Confine Attacks to Their Classrooms.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 23.—General Primo Rivera, president of the military directorate, in an official note today, declared that the Government cannot and will not countenance any criticism by college professors made outside their classrooms. The announcement followed a warning sent by the Government to Dr. Luis Jimenez de Asua, professor of penal law in the University of Madrid, against further criticism delivered by him against the conduct of the military directorate.

The note says that, while the Government permits freedom of speech and the independence and sovereignty of university teachers providing they keep within the subject matter of their teachings, nevertheless, the Government will repress any extraneous statements with all forces at its command.

PIGGLY WIGGLY PROMOTER FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

Clarence Saunders Lists Assets Aggregating $3,244,070 and Liabilities of $1,976,919.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 23.—Clarence Saunders, former president of the Piggly Wiggly corporation and Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States District Court here today.

Saunders listed assets aggregating $3,244,070 and liabilities totalling $1,976,919.

Saunders attributed his action to the protracted litigation which resulted from his sensational operations in Wall Street more than a year ago.

"Accommodation paper," aggregating $1,408,369, was listed as the largest individual item in Saunders' schedule of debts. The item, the petition shows, represents money borrowed "for stock purposes."

Saunders said the court would be asked to determine whether the major portion of this item should be charged to the Piggly Wiggly corporation or himself.

"Unliquidated claims" amounting to $1,880,560, are listed among assets. Property held is valued at $700,000, including Saunders' present home and his unfinished mansion, originally planned as a million dollar residence.

DETECTIVE SHOT BY HIS PRISONER, WHO ALSO IS WOUNDED

Joseph Friesz Is Critically Injured by Drug Clerk in Auto as They Reach East St. Louis Station.

DEFLECTED BULLET STRIKES ASSAILANT

Calvin Taylor, Arrested in Car He Got in Holdup, Named as Filling Station Robber by Dying Pal.

In an automobile in front of East St. Louis police headquarters, a prisoner last night twice shot a city detective, and wounded himself by a third shot, apparently intended for the detective but deflected by some defensive gesture of the wounded man. A few hours later a man whose confession had caused the arrest of the East St. Louis prisoner died in the St. Louis City Hospital of gunshot wounds.

Both the detective, Joseph B. Friesz, and the prisoner, Calvin Taylor, are in St. Mary's Hospital, and each is in a critical condition. Friesz was shot above and below the heart, and Taylor's wound is below the heart.

The arrest of Taylor followed a confession made at the City Hospital earlier in the day by Thomas Bacon, who was shot Friday in a filling station robbery at Eighth and State streets, East St. Louis. With death imminent, Bacon declared that Taylor was his associate in the holdup. Bacon died shortly before midnight.

Detective Friesz and a policeman, Dean Harris, went out last evening to look for Taylor.

Shortly before 8 o'clock they found him at Thirteenth and State streets, in a curtained Buick car. They ordered him out and searched him and the car, without finding a weapon.

Car Stolen in Holdup.

Friesz then ordered Taylor to get back into the car and drive him to headquarters, and Harris followed in a police machine. As the car driven by Taylor came in front of the police building Harris heard shots, which he took at first for back-firing of the car ahead. He then saw that the car, which had almost stopped, was turning in aimless fashion toward a billboard.

Harris got out of his car and drew aside a curtain of the car ahead. As he did so, Friesz said to him, "Watch out, he got me." At this, he heard the prisoner say apprehensively, "Don't shoot; I'm shot, too." Examination proved this to be true.

The car driven by Taylor was claimed, soon after, by a St. Louis service driver, O. J. Hooper, who said it was taken from him at Chain of Rocks Park at 6 p. m., by a man whom he had driven to the park rom Eads Bridge. The man held up the driver with a revolver, but remarked, "If I have a nice evening, you'll find the car tomorrow in University City or somewhere out west there, and there'll be a $20 bill in it for your trouble."

No Previous Police Record.

Taylor, who lives at 518 North Thirteenth street, is 20 years old, and is a drug clerk, without a previous police record. The police found it difficult to explain his action, but thought it was a desperate act, prompted by the knowledge that, if taken inside the headquarters building, he would be certain to be held for the theft of the car, as well as for the robbery charged to him. The revolver which he used is believed to have been concealed at the left of the driver's seat, and to have been overlooked by the two policemen in their hurried search. Taylor is believed to have fired with his left hand.

Detective Friesz is 45 years old and lives at 5920 State street.

Bacon, in his confession, said Taylor was his only associate in the filling station robbery. The authorities, however, are still holding in the Belleville jail "Careful" Felix Lippman, a St. Louis service car driver, and two others who were arrested on suspicion.

Used "Careful Felix's" Car.

Lippman's car was used in the filling station robbery, in which $26.60 was taken. A watchman at the filling station fired a shotgun after the car, and some of the shot were found in the car when it was discovered in Venice later, while other gunshot were in Bacon's back, causing him to go to the St. Louis City Hospital for treatment. He lived at 335A Antelope street, St. Louis. When he went to the hospital he said he had been shot when walking on an East St. Louis street.

"Careful Felix" became so

TELLS "REST OF IT" IN KIMMEL MURDER CASE

One of Three Men Indicted Says the One Who Drove Them to Park Planned the Holdup.

ADMITS DIVIDING MISS HILL'S MONEY

John Weisner Makes Further Confession to Police Involving His Pal, John Gardner.

John Weisner in jail had heard that his pal, John Gardner, was to be used as a witness for the State when he and John Rou went to trial for the murder of Robert Kimmel. Although Gardner had been indicted on the murder charge also, he had said he had no part in the crime except to drive his friends to Chain of Rocks Park that night.

Detectives, being ironists in their way, taunted Weisner with the thought that Gardner might get off with a light sentence.

Yesterday a statement was placed in the hands of Circuit Attorney Sidener in which Weisner said he was "telling the rest of it." And the rest of it was that Gardner had helped plan the holdup that night, and after the murder had split the contents of a pocketbook—$26—with Weisner.

Police Hunting for Pocketbook.

Police had been hunting for this pocketbook. It belonged to Miss Melba Hill, who was with Kimmel the night of Feb. 15, and was shot in the mouth after her escort, struggling with Rou for possession of a pistol was murdered. Miss Hill, still in a serious condition at city hospital, told detectives she had left the pocketbook on the floor of Kimmel's Essex coach automobile.

Weisner went over his latest statement with a Post-Dispatch reporter at city jail last night, insisting that Gardner was as guilty as he and Rou, and that they should all receive the same punishment.

"Gardner planned the whole thing," Weisner said. "When we got to the park in his coupe and spotted the car we wanted to stick-up we argued which two would do it.

Weisner Story of Murder.

"Gardner and I could drive any kind of automobile. Rou couldn't. So one of us had to go with him and one drive the Ford back to Prospect Hill. Gardner said 'I'll go with Rou and put the pistol on that guy, if you're afraid.' Well, I was drunk, and I wouldn't back down. I said 'No, I'll stick him up. You drive the Ford back home and meet us down by the railroad bridge. (Their rendezvous was the Burlington trestle over St. Cyr road in St. Louis County.)

"Which one of you shot Miss Hill?" the reporter asked.

"We didn't shoot her," was the response. "She got shot accidentally while Rou was fighting with Kimmel. He grabbed Rou's gun and they rolled on the ground. Shots were going off all the time. One of them must have hit her.

Says They Divided the Money.

Having said so much, Weisner looked uneasy and fumbled at the coat of his gray pajamas. He stood barefooted in the tile-walled corridor on the third floor of the jail. Other prisoners were moving about beyond a black-barred door.

"You divided the money, didn't you?" he was prompted.

"Well, he got more out of it than I did," said Weisner. "He met us at the bridge when we got back from the park and I told him what had happened. He wasn't so much interested in that, but he brightened up when he saw the pocketbook. We didn't say anything to Rou about it, but the two of us went over to my house.

"Gardner gave me $10." "Was tthere $26 in it?" "I didn't know how much was in it. I just took what he gave me and we went down town."

Prefers Hanging to Life Term.

"I guess they'll try to hang me," Weisner said.

"You may get life," the reporter suggested.

"I'd rather be dead then spend the rest of my life in jail."

"Have you and Rou lawyers?"

"No. I hear that Gardner has. He's trying to get off. I don't blame him. But he oughtn't to try to make it worse for us."

"Did he help you burn the pocketbook?"

"Yes. He helped me do everything. It was his idea in the first place. I'd have never thought up anything like that. It was my first

BURGLAR PAYS AN INCOME TAX ON LOOT FOR A YEAR

"Never Robbed a Poor Man or Hurt a Guy," Says Letter With Return.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 23.—A burglar who pays income tax, but "who never robbed a poor man, or hurt a guy in his life," has been discovered here. The following letter has been received, together with an income tax report, by the Collector of Internal Revenue:

"Dear Revenue Agent:

"This is my income tax for 1923. I didn't file one last year because my salary was under $1000—way under, if you know what I mean. I was in the cooler eight months of the year. My business is burglary, and I'm not ashamed to say so, because I never hurt a guy and never robbed a poor man in my life. I'm giving my name and address because I know your department has to keep it secret—that's the law."

The Internal Revenue Department will not make known his name to the police or anybody else, officials said. His report says he is married.

LUDENDORFF TRIAL TUESDAY

Photographers Forbidden to Take Pictures of Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Feb. 23.—Former Field Marshal von Ludendorff has lost a lot of flesh worrying about his trial which is to begin next Tuesday, but the outside world will not have a chance to see the altered figure of the once German war lord.

The Bavarian Government has absolutely forbidden photographers to take pictures of the trial or of the scenes about the military academy where it will be held, because the court buildings are not suitable for the proceedings. It is rumored that Prince Rupperecht may be summoned as a witness, and it is known that Cardinal Michael Paulhaber and Dr. von Kahr, former Bavarian military dictator, will testify. All gatherings in Rathskellers will be forbidden during the trial, as the Bavarian Government is not going to take any chances to liquidate the recent uprising which attracted so much attention throughout the world.

Oil Committee Calls Managers to Tell of Telegrams Sent When Fall, McLean and Slemp Were in South.

Bankers Have Been Subpenaed in Connection With Testimony That Fall Didn't Use Checks.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Officers of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies were subpenaed today by the Senate committee investigating the oil scandals. They are to appear early next week after C. Bascom Slemp, President Coolidge's secretary, has testified.

Senator Walsh (D., Mont.) had the summonses issued for the telegraph officers, his purpose being to bring to light any message that went to Edward B. McLean, the Washington publisher, Albert B. Fall or Slemp while these three were at Palm Beach. The Montana Senator also will seek information on messages that may have gone to Fall at New Orleans, or to Attorney-General Daugherty, who also went to Florida at the time the Senate was debating the Walsh resolution under which special counsel for the Government's cases were authorized.

Daugherty's Telegram.

Daugherty sent back a telegram in which he "again urged" President Coolidge to name special prosecutors and Walsh desires to ascertain whether this sugestion from Daugherty—echoing, as it did, the purpose of the pending Senate resolution and supposedly prompting the midnight statement from the White House to the same effect—was spontaneous or suggested in telegraphic or other exchanges between Daugherty and officials here.

Similarly, Walsh intends to run down reports of messages sent to Fall at Palm Beach advising him as to what course he should pursue. When Fall returned to Washington and went to the home of J. W. Zevely, Harry Sinclair's attorney, his mind had been made up not to give any further testimony to the investigators but to plead his constitutional privilege of silence.

Subsequently, suggestions were made to committee members to the effect that prominent Republicans were bringing pressure to bear on Fall to maintain his silence lest the oil stain be spread too far. Whether there is any foundation to these reports is to be ascertained by Walsh.

Slemp, refusing again today to comment on the summons for him to appear Monday, said merely that he would be on hand when the committee resumes its sessions. Senator Walsh talked with Slemp by telephone, getting his promise to appear voluntarily, whereupon no subpena was issued.

The expectation is that the Federal Trade Commission accountants, who were sent to New York and Cleveland to examine thoroughly the books of brokerage firms with reference to reported oil stock deals by Administration officials, will report back to the committee on Monday and their testimony may be taken first before Slemp is put on the stand.

To Go Into "Slush Fund."

Senator Walsh said he had not abandoned his plan to make further inquiry into the "million dollar slush fund" though Otto Kahn, whose name was prominently linked with it, has unqualifiedly de-

UPSET CANOE, COAT AND HAT REVEAL FATE OF BROTHERS

Parents of Two Orlemann Boys of Webster Groves Convinced Sons Lost Lives in the Meramec.

An overturned canoe, a boy's coat and a hat, taken from the Meramec River below Fenton yesterday, convinced Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Orlemann of 867 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, that their sons, Thomas, 12 years old, and Harold, 17, were drowned. No trace of the bodies has been found, but Orlemann has identified the coat and hat and confirmed the description of two boys seen drifting down stream in a canoe Friday afternoon.

The two brothers, members of Boy Scout Troop No. 6, started on an all-day hike Friday morning with five other boys, and did not return. It was learned yesterday that they stopped at a Meramec Highlands boathouse and obtained a canoe belonging to a friend. The canoe was found about two miles below Fenton and identified as the one they had borrowed.

Orlemann and four friends set out at 2 a. m. yesterday to search for the boys and returned at dusk. Louis H. Bopp, Kirkwood undertaker and friend of Orlemann, has offered $50 reward each for the recovery of the bodies.

The Meramec below Meramec Highlands is deep and swift because of recent heavy rains.

WOMAN JUROR CHANGES MIND

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Emma F. Ware today startled the United States District Court with the announcement she had "changed her mind" regarding a verdict she had helped to return as a juror. Yesterday, Mrs. Ware signed a verdict in a $150,000 damage suit brought by heirs of four grade crossing victims against the Pennsylvania Railroad in favor of the railroad company.

The verdict was reached last night by the jury and sealed, after which the jurors went home. Today, when Judge J. Whitaker Thompson broke the seal, Mrs. Ware said she couldn't sleep last night because she believed she voted the wrong way. "I am sorry, but I do not agree with the verdict," she said. Judge Thompson ruled that the original verdict be filed, but that counsel for the plaintiffs be allowed to move to set it aside.

SACRIFICE FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD IS DEMANDED BY IDAHO SENATOR

"People Have Come to Doubt Efficiency, Competency, if Not Cleanness, of Government."

WILLING TO JOIN IN IMPEACHMENT MOVE

Robinson, Praising Daugherty's Courage, Points Out How He Might Hamper Proposed Inquiry.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Attorney-General Daugherty's unaltered defiance of the Republican Old Guard, and Republican National Chairman John T. Adams' bringing up of reinforcements is producing somersaults among party leaders.

Senator Borah of Idaho, who was the first to go to the White House in an effort to persuade President Coolidge to drop Daugherty from the Cabinet, on the floor of the Senate today recommended impeachment proceedings and threw the whole blame for Daugherty's continuance in office on the shoulders of Mr. Coolidge.

Minority Leader Robinson, in a rather long speech in general denunciation of both Daugherty and Adams, accused the latter of trying to draw the familiar red herring across the oil trail to save the G. O. P. from any further embarrassments.

Robinson reviewed the abortive expeditions of the old guarders to the White House with their pleas for immediate severance of Daugherty from the official family. This necessarily brought in Senator Borah, who, while annoyed by the Adams defense of Daugherty, sought to give the air of consistency and harmony to the doings in the troubled Republican household.

"No Rift in the Ranks."

He and other Republican leaders say it is a misnomer to refer to any "split" or "rift" in the Republican ranks over the Daugherty case. They argue that Adams took the only course possible for the party, now that Daugherty has served emphatic notice of his determination to hold his seat at all costs until the allegations against him involving the oil scandals and his administration generally are aired and finally determined.

Daugherty's fighting spirit has won him a degree of admiration, if not of confidence, and put those G. O. P. dictators who decree he must go in the light of seeming to deny him a fair trial—refusing what they so vehemently insisted upon for Denby when the Democrats were clamoring for passage of the Denby ouster resolution.

So far, President Coolidge has given every indication of being in entire accord with the Senators who demanded Daugherty's removal, and is reliably reported to have nodded his head in agreement each time the arguers made another point as to why Daugherty should get out. At the same time he is understood to have put his o k on the Adams blast supporting Daugherty's demand for a hearing.

As a further indication of the President's attitude, it was announced today that he had indorsed Daugherty as one of the Coolidge candidates to be voted on April 29 for places as Ohio delegates to the Republican national convention.

Secretary of Labor Davis let it be known, incidentally, that he had canceled his plans for a trip and would remain here in order to attend Tuesday's Cabinet meeting. Other Cabinet officials declined to say whether any item of speciti importance was in contemplation, but the impression got around that Mr. Coolidge proposes to lay the Daugherty case before his advisers at this meeting. Daugherty indicated previously that he wanted to have the Cabinet pass on whether he should stay or go, but the subject has not yet been broached at those conclaves.

Resolution for Investigation May Be Adopted This Week.

By the Associated Press.

When the Senate reconvenes Monday the plan for a committee investigation of Daugherty and the Department of Justice will be taken up again. The leaders agree that the resolution of inquiry of Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, will ultimately be adopted, but it is uncertain whether it can be brought to a vote on Monday.

Immediate action on the resolution, under the Senate rules, would require unanimous consent, and this probably will be denied, meaning the delay of a vote until Tuesday or even later if extensive debate should develop. Considerable discussion is regarded as not improbable inasmuch as the friends of Daugherty are in a more combative mood since Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee gave his support publicly to the position taken by the Attorney-General. Controversy in Senate consideration of the Wheeler resolution promises to revolve about the clause for selecting the investigating committee personnel. Virtually all Republican leaders are united in opposition to it as drawn.

Senate discussion today of Daugherty was opened by Senator Robinson, who criticised Chairman Adams' statement opposing the resignation of the Attorney-General. Declaring that Adams was seeking to confuse the issue by making both the Daugherty case and the oil scandal appear to be political in character, Senator Robinson reiterated that Daugherty had lost public confidence and ought to be replaced. With thousands of Federal secret service operatives at his command, Daugherty, he argued, could hamper and embarrass the proposed Senate inquiry.

Senator Borah declared that Daugherty should resign immediately "in the public interest." This, the Idaho Senator said, required a personal sacrifice by Daugherty in order that the public might have confidence in the head of the department charged with responsibility for action not only in the oil cases but in matters relating to the Veterans' and other bureaus.

Wheeler Collecting Data.

There were many indications today of a stiff fight in the launching of the investigation under the Wheeler resolution. Senator Wheeler and his associates were busy collecting ammunition, while the Attorney-General also was reported to be preparing for the expected assaults.

Some Republican leaders were hopeful that action by Daugherty might at the eleventh hour avoid the open contest, under the belief that Senator Wheeler would be content to drop his resolution should Daugherty in the meantime resign. The Attorney-General, however, gave no indication of any change in his position and there was no sign of further immediate developments from the White House.

Republican Senate leaders who have advised President Coolidge of their belief that in the general interest the Attorney-General should offer his resignation also appeared content to let the matter rest in the hands of the President and Daugherty and allow events to take their evident course so far as the Senate is concerned.

Senator Borah in his address today stated his views frankly and as they were reported to have been given President Coolidge and Mr Daugherty in a White House conference last Sunday evening. In fact, his address was said to have been one contemplated just before Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, and Senator Pepper (Rep.), Pennsylvania, went to the White House and advised the executive that Daugherty ought to be replaced. At that time, Senator Borah was said to have agreed to withhold the address in the hope that results satisfactory to his views would come from the meeting of the Senate leaders with the President.

When Sacrifice Is Needed.

"Mr. Daugherty should realize," said Senator Borah, "there are times when a man must make personal sacrifices for the public good. I have no present interest in the charges against him, but the situation calls for a man at the head of the department of transcendent ability, personal health and vigor, and holding the utmost public confidence.

"I look on the Department of Justice as the key to the whole situation as it now lies. It must be apparent that legal proceedings must be had, not only for recovery of property, but for the punishment of guilty persons not only in the oil lease cases but in those relating to the Veterans' Bureau, alien property and other matters. It is merely a matter of public duty to try to get at the head of the department for handling these matters a man who has the public confidence.

"The greatest evil flowing from the matter under investigation for the last seven weeks has not been the loss of some oil or the possible escape of one or more guilty persons. It is that, from center to circumference, the people have come to doubt the efficiency, the competency, if not the cleanness of their Government. Every Senator should be ready to sacrifice not only his party, but himself, to correct that situation."

Having been told the sentiment among Republican Senators, Borah said, President Coolidge alone must answer to the American people for Daugherty's retention. The only way for the Senate to act, he said, was by impeachment, and he added that he was willing to "join with anyone laying the foundation for such action."

Senator Robinson's Speech.

Senator Robinson said that Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, had sought to serve both his country and his party by urging Daugherty's retirement.

Robinson quoted Daugherty's recent open letter to Senator Pepper (Rep.), Pennsylvania, and added that "One can't fail to admire the courage displayed by the Attorney-General in the position he had taken."

"Every fair-minded citizen will accord him the right of a fair investigation," the Democratic leader continued. "This does not mean, however, that in defiance of the opinion of the President and of others leaders of his party, he has a right to remain in the Cabinet while the inquiry is in progress.

"The purpose was first to serve the country and then the party. It was recognized that to go to the country with a discredited member of the Cabinet still in office would embarrass the party and probably mean its defeat."

Chairman Adams had made the question of Daugherty a political issue, the Arkansas Senator continued, and also was attempting to make the oil scandal a political issue. He suggested that Daugherty might use thousands of secret agents of the Department of Justice to "hamper, restrict and embarrass" the proposed investigation, and continued:

"Mr. Daugherty is entitled to fair investifigation before a just and impartial tribunal. Meantime, it is to be remembered that the executive is responsible for who constitutes his Cabinet members. He invites the responsibility that Senators Borah, Lodge and Pepper sought to avert."

Senator Borah agreed that the responsibility now lay with the President.

Says Responsibility Is Coolidge's.

"Mr. Daugherty cannot remain in the Cabinet an hour unless the President desires," said Senator Borah. "The responsibility is his He must answer to the people of this country for retaining Mr. Daugherty or anyone else. I assume that the President is ready to assume that responsibility."

Borah added that the Attorney-General should resign at once in the public interest, regardless of the basis of the charge against him.

Joining in the attack on Daugherty, Senator Heflin (Dem.), Alabama, charged that Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny had been rewarded with the naval oil reserves for campaign contributions made to the Republican party.

"Sinclair has got his," he said. "Doheny has got his. And they are both out for President Coolidge for re-election. Daugherty is slated to head the Republican delegation from Ohiao and Denby is slated to head the Republican delegation from Michigan.'

He declared Frank A. Vanderlip should be recalled by the oil committee for a more thorough questioning.

ADAMS' PLAN IN DAUGHERTY CASE LIKELY TO PREVAIL

G. O. P. Chairman's Appeal to Grant Attorney-General a Hearing Expected to Be Heeded.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Panic has seized the Republican leaders in Washington. Swept off their feet by the tales of an outraged public opinion, the grand old party is torn between fear of what may happen in the next elections and the knowledge that to yield to popular clamor is a confession of guilt which upon investigation might not be proved.

Attorney-General Daugherty is a dominant force in Republican politics. Not only is he a practical politician himself, but he has the courage of his convictions. Chairman John T. Adams of the Republican National Committee, who has boldly criticised Senators Lodge and Pepper for daring to suggest to President Coolidge that he call for Attorney-General Daugherty's resignation, does not live in the twilight zone of politics and his readiness to champion the cause of Daugherty can be taken to mean he has made his own investigation of the facts and has come to the conclusion there is no case against the Attorney-General, nothing except the impression resulting from the clever attacks made by the Democratic speakers in the Senate.

Adams' Strategy Will Prevail.

Chairman Adams' strategy will prevail. Attorney-General Daugherty will have his hearing. Adams represents the strength of the party organization. On one occasion during the Harding administration when Adams ventured to express the opinion that it would be unwise to agitate the world court proposal this campaign year, there was resentment in some quarters, but President Harding yielded to the counsel of Chairman Adams rather than split the party wide open. And President Coolidge, who has even more reason to remain regular and keep in the good graces of the national party organization, is likely to do the same thing.

It is Mr. Coolidge's real desire, anyhow. He does not think any member of his Cabinet should retire under fire and without a hearing.

Naturally the whole case is one of political tactics. From a strategic viewpoint the resignation of Secretary Denby was regarded by old-line politicians as a serious blunder, for it carried with it not only the impression that he feared a public hearing and investigation but it immediately stimulated Democrats to ask for more resignations and they centered their attack on Daugherty. It is excellent strategy from a party viewpoint for the Democrats to get the Republicans on the run and keep them there so the country will lose confidence in the Republican party. Men like Chairman Adams think the game has gone too far and that it is time the Republicans backed up against it and showed fight.

Attitude on Investments.

Unfortunately for the Republicans they are not themselves sure what evidence will be uncovered as the investigation proceeds, for nobody knows who speculated in stocks at the time the oil leases were made and the national Capitol is full of all sorts of rumors. But the Republican theory is that speculation or investment by itself is not reprehensible and that it will be up to the Democrats to prove that the men who speculated were in some way connected with the making of the leases themselves or profited by their connections with the Government.

The Democrats, on the other hand, are of the opinion that irrespective of whether definite proof is established, the oil controversy will give their stump speakers enough to talk about from now till next November.

Coolidge Approves Daugherty as Delegate to Convention

Attorney-General, on Ohio Slate, Pledged to Vote for President—McAdoo Will Contest With Cox.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—President Coolidge has approved the declaration of Attorney-General Daugherty as a candidate for delegate-at-large from Ohio to the Republican national convention, under pledge to vote for Mr. Coolidge as the Republican presidential nominee.

Mr. Daugherty was selected several weeks ago by Republican leaders of Ohio as one of the seven delegates-at-large to be placed on the primary ballot under Mr. Coolidge's name, but the Ohio law provides that a candidate for the presidential nomination must approve the declaration of each delegate committed to him.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23.—President Coolidge formally entered today the Ohio Republican presidential preference primaries by filing his declaration with Secretary of State Brown. Arthur L. Garford of Elyria, O., also filed with the Secretary of State an authorization for the use of his name as a second-choice candidate in compliance with the Ohio primary law.

Both President Coolidge and Garford also filed with the Secretary of State formal notice of the designation by them of Hoke Denithen of Marion, O., President Coolidge's Ohio campaign manager, as their representative "to sign all declarations and statements required of me to conform to the primary election law of the State of Ohio."

Mr. Coolidge also requests that his name be printed in the official primary ballot, thus officially entering himself in the primary of April 29, at which delegates to the national convention will be elected.

Announcement was made today that William G. McAdoo would carry his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination into Ohio and make a determined effort to capture the Buckeye delegates. James M. Cox, former Governor and Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1920, also is expected to enter the primary.

Secretary of State Brown announced candidates for the national convention were required to obtain the written consent of the presidential candidate whom they wish to support before they may enter the primary. This ruling reversed rulings of two previous State Secretaries.

James A. White, former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, entered the contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination on a platform which included law enforcement and tax reduction.

SENATORS TO GO INTO MESSAGES FROM CAPITAL TO PALM BEACH

nounced it as untrue in a telegram sent to the committee recently. Walsh expects that the brokerage survey may shed some new light on this subject.

It has not yet been decided when to recall Sinclair to the stand, but committee members indicated it would probably be during the coming week, after the committee has finished with its delving into local bank records concerning deposits of McLean.

The Federal and Commercial National Bank officers subpenaed yesterday are slated to be heard Monday just before or after Slemp testifies. So far the only facts known to the committee in this section are that Fall and McLean appeared together at Palm Beach, both pleading ill health and inability to come before the investigating committee in person, and both agreeing on Fall's story that his now famous $100,000 came from McLean, and not, as subsequently discovered, from Doheny.

Slemp went to Palm Beach at this time and was understood to be McLean's guest. No information has yet been given the committee as to why Slemp should have been present. When Walsh went to Palm Beach, put McLean under oath and drew from him the admission that Fall never actually got the $100,000 from the publisher, Slemp was not present, nor did Walsh encounter him there.

Would Ascertain McLean Deposits.

McLean's amended explanation that he gave Fall two sizeable checks, which Fall returned uncashed, never has been pursued further, nor has McLean supplied the committee with the canceled checks or any record of them. Hence the purpose in questioning the bank officials is to learn how much McLean had on deposit at the time and whether there was enough to cover the $100,000 which he says the checks called for.

McLean is due to go on the grill here—a subpena is already issued for him—but the time of his appearance is also uncertain. Committee members and the Government's special counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, have been negotiating with McLean's lawyer for nearly a week over when McLean shall appear and under what conditions.

Committee members have made known that McLean would like to tell his story of his relations with Fall, Daugherty and other prominent administration figures in private instead of on the witness stand. Most of the committee appear to be against this, insisting that McLean shall appear in the open and under oath.

Books of Cleveland Brokerage Concern Are Audited.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 23.—W. B. Horn, expert accountant for the Federal Trade Commission, has finished a two-day examination of the books of Samuel Ungerleider & Co., Cleveland members of the New York Stock Exchange, at the instance of the United States Senators inquiring into alleged speculation in oil stocks incident to the naval oil leases. Mr. Horn came here Wednesday to go over the Ungerleider's books at the company's main office here. He found nothing in the way of excessive transactions in any of the oil securities in which the Senate inquiry is trying to locate official speculation, Ungerleider said.

"We had no accounts and did no business with any of the Cabinet officials whose names have been mentioned in this inquiry," Mr. Ungerleider said. "Mr. Horn asked me if he might take our Washington branch office ledger with him back to Washington for use, if called," said the broker. "I promptly assented and he took it with him."

ITALY'S QUEEN DONS NURSE'S GARB AT SICK KING'S BEDSIDE

Personally Directs Everything in Sick Room—Illness Not Regarded as Serious.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 23.—Life in the Villa Savoya, the beautiful estate on the outskirts of Rome which is the real home of the Italian royal family, has been transformed into something like that of a nursing home with the illness of King Victor Emmanuel. Everything in the royal household is hygienically and scientifically subordinated to an unresting watch over the royal invalid.

In the white costume of a nurse, with her splendid hair covered with the veil of a Red Cross sister, the Queen supervises the smallest details of the sick room. She oversees preparation of the royal invalid's food, permits no one else to administer medicine. and sees to it that the doctor's slightest instructions are carried out precisely.

As soon as the King's illness with influenza became an acknowledged fact, telegrams were sent to all members of the royal family, but rather to prevent alarm because of exaggerated reports that might be published abroad than from necessity. The Queen sends frequent detailed telegrams or personaly telephones to the Princess Yolanda and the Queen Mother.

The best proof of the mildness of the King's malady is the fact that the Duchess of Genoa, her daughter and son and the entire court circle attended a fashionable ball last night.

ELECTRIC PLANT FIGHT WON

Senate Committee Upholds Ashurst In Yuma Irrigation Row.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—By a vote of 46 to 9, the Senate today restored to the Interior Department appropriation bill an item of $250,000 to build a hydro-electric plant in the Yuma irrigation project on the Colorado River.

Senator Ashurst had led a fight on this matter, accusing Senator Phipps of Colorado of serving his own financial interest by combining with Smoot of Utah in secret in committee to eliminate the item from the bill. Ashurst accused Phipps of owning stock in a power plant whose high earnings would be seriously curtailed if the Yuma plant were built. Phipps admitted the stock ownership, but he and Smoot denied personal considerations actuated them. When the matter was put to a vote at the demand of Ashurst, Phipps and Smoot found few to sustain them and the appropriation went back into the bill. It already had been agreed to by a House committee and had passed the House.

Keeling, president of a brick manufacturing concern, are expected to be tried next week as Police Chief Beavers is sufficiently convalescent to return to his office Monday. Physicians said today the Chief would go back to work Monday if the weather was agreeable. He has been threatened with pneumonia since the arrest of Mrs. Candler and the two men in an apartment at 48 Juniper street. He led the raid and is the principal witness against the woman and her two companions.

CASH IF THEY QUIT RUHR, EXPERTS TO TELL THE FRENCH

Dawes' Committee Accepts Rail Men's Estimate of 25,000,000,000 Gold Marks on German Lines.

CAN BE USED TO GUARANTEE A LOAN

Tribute Paid to Extraordinary Powers of Resistance Shown by Poincare in Tax Measure Fight.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

PARIS, Feb. 23. — General Dawes' first expert committee, after listening for three hours this morning to the railroad experts, Acworth and Leferve, accepted the latters' estimate of the value of the German railroads as 25,000,000,000 gold marks. Their debt is only 300,000,000 gold marks.

Thus th French case is borne out, that they can be exploited internationally as guarantee for a loan.

The Ruhr and Rhineland administration, at present run by France, is included in the experts' assessment. And it was made quite clear to the American correspondents tonight that the ultimate report will be tantamount to an invitation of the French to quit the Ruhr if they really want cash.

From 10 o'clock last night until 7 this morning Poincare did not leave the Chamber of Deputies, so determined was he to have his finance measures voted. Only 60 others remained. At 7 this morning Poincare arose and declared, "If, the present inquiry of the experts is crowned with success, don't let us forget that the other day one of the foreign experts expressed the opinion that the situation wouldn't be as happy as it is if we were not in the Ruhr. The fact is, that if we are going to get certain concessions from the Reich it is because we were installed in her richest territory."

Tribute is paid the Premier generally for the extraordinary powers of resistance he has shown in getting his measures through by a majority of 136. The impression now is that he may still "make the elections."

This morning Poincare had an extended conference with Gen. Degoutte, at which measures for the further evacuation of the Rhur were discussed.

French Exchange Rises Following Passage of Tax Bill.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Sharp recovery of French exchange today followed passage by the Chamber of Deputies of Premier Poincare's entire taxation and economy plan. The price of the franc at the opening of the market soared 12½ points to 4.36 cents, almost 30 points above its recent record low level. Belgian francs gained in sympathy, and demand sterling also strengthened.

Half of Loan to Germany for Belgium and France, Is Plan.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The loan of £250,000,000 to Germany will be recommended by the Dawes committee, according to a report in the Sunday Express. Half of this would go to Belgium and France, the French share being just enough to balance her budget. The other half would be used to establish a German gold note bank to stabilize the mark.

"Britain, although she is expected to furnish the greater portion of this sum, will not share in the distribution of reparations from this source," the Express states.

The loan would be raised on the security of railways in the Ruhr and Rhineland, which the experts committee will recommend should no longer be administered by the Franco-Belgian regime.

THE BARBER AND THE BURGLAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Joseph de Fato's barber shop at 2971 West Eighth street, Coney Island, four doors from the Coney Island police station, has been robbed six times in the last year, and today Joseph's barbering was materially hampered by the loss of 40 razors, in the latest burglary last night.

So Joseph went to work and printed a notice, which is now posted in the window of his shop, reading:

"I have been taken six times in a year. From tonight on the front door will be open. Walk in, you're next, and take anything you want. Don't break anything. When you go out please close the door. I live closeby. If you don't see what you want, make inquiries. There will be no interference from the police."

PITTSBURG RADIO CONCERT RETRANSMITTED OVER BRITAIN

American Programs to Be Part of Regular Features for British Wireless Fans.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The transmission of American concerts as part of the regular program for British radio fans was carried out successfully this evening. A concert from station KDKA, Pittsburg, was picked up by Bigginhill, Surrey, transmitted to London by telephone and retransmitted over the British Isles.

Soon after 11 o'clock, a voice was heard announcing the program, which included music by the "Westinghouse Band." The singing and playing of "God Save the King" and the "Marseillaise" followed, but this was very faint, owing to atmospheric conditions. The concert lasted 40 minutes.

British broadcasters say they intend to carry on experiments and hope they will be able to transmit American concerts nightly.

COOLIDGE SENDS HIS PERSONAL PHYSICIAN TO ATTEND HADLEY

President Concerned Over Indisposition of Chancellor of Washington U.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—President Coolidge today sent his personal physician, Lieutenant-Commander J. T. Boone, to attend Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley of Washington University, St. Louis, who is suffering from a slight indisposition brought about by the strain of traveling and public speaking.

Former Gov. Hadley came to Washington from Baltimore, to attend the meeting of the American Law Institute. He had to leave the meeting this morning because of a nose-bleed. When a friend told the President of the incident, he immediately volunteered to send Commander Boone to Hadley's aid. Mrs. Hadley thought at the time that the indisposition was too slight to warrant such attention, but when the former Governor became worse, she accepted the offer. It was said tonight that Hadley's illness was not serious. His departure for St. Louis, however, has been postponed from tomorrow until Monday or Tuesday.

BANKER HELD IN MURDER CASE

Six Other Prisoners Forced to Touch Body of Slain Detective.

By the Associated Press.

GLEN ROSE, Tex., Feb. 23.—The leading banker of the village, C. A. Milam, today took his place in jail alongside six persons previously accused in connection with the death of Richard Watson, detective, informer and indicted "moonshiner." Because of the flimsiness of the jail building here, the seven prisoners were driven away in automobiles tonight to Cleburne and Meridian.

Six men arrested Friday, shortly after rangers began a roundup of moonshiners and bootleggers, in connection with the assassination of Watson Thursday night, were taken to the home of T. A. Duncan, where Watson was killed and where he lay in a casket, and forced to touch the body with their hands and look at the wounds in the victim's head.

Kansas Farmers Killing Wolves.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 23.—Because wolves had become so bold that farmers feared to send their children to the rural schools, a war has been waged on the animals in Brown and Doniphan Counties, Kan., just across the river from here. Three wolves were killed near Hiawatha, Kan., yesterday. Two farmers reported they had killed wolves in their barnyards this week. Livestock and chickens have been attacked, the loss being particularly heavy in calves and sheep. Because of the cold winter the animals have become unusually bold.

SAYS FALL BROKE PROMISE ON LEASES

Senator Harreld Declares Secretary Told Him He'd Give Public Notice.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 23.—Albert B. Fall, when Secretary of the Interior, made a "definite promise" to Senator Harreld, Republican, Oklahoma, not to effect an oil lease without first giving public notice of his intention, Senator Harreld told a meeting of the Republican State Committee here today. After this promise, Senator Harreld said, "the deal was pulled off in a dark corner."

The Oklahoma Senator justified his action in voting for the Senate resolution asking for the resignation of Edwin Denby as Secretary of the Navy by declaring, "knowing, as I did, the facts, I could not vote any other way without putting the stamp of my approval on the most crooked deal in recent American history. Denby's usefulness as a public official was at an end."

In explaining the obtaining of Fall's promise, Senator Harreld said that in April, 1921, he had protested to the late President Harding against the plan of Fall and Denby to have the naval oil reserves taken from under the supervision of the Navy Department and transferred to the Interior Department.

"I had the definite promise from Fall then that these leases would not be made without first giving a public notice and then the deal was pulled off in a dark corner," the Senator said.

Senator Harreld declared that the oil lease scandal had "shaken the confidence of the people in public officials," and that "we must back Calvin Coolidge in his determination to punish the guilty parties, or see the Republican party swept out of power."

HOTEL LIABLE FOR VALUABLES

California Appeals Court Awards Carl Muehlebach $23,000.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—A hotel or public resort is responsible for the full amount of any valuables lost or stolen after being entrusted to its care, the District Court of Appeals here held today in granting Carl Muehlebach, Kansas City hotel owner, and Mrs. Muehlebach, full return on jewelry valued at $23,000, which was stolen from the safe of the Hotel Paso Robles at Paso Robles, Cal., in January, 1921.

The jewels were taken while the Muehlebachs were on a honeymoon trip. They sued the hostelry for the full amount, alleging that the night clerk, to whom they entrusted the gems, had fled with them. A lower court held that the liabilities of the hotel was fixed at $250 by statute. The District Court held, however, that the hotel in accepting the jewelry for safekeeping assumed responsibility for its full value and not a mere portion of such value.

FORFEITED BONDS IN FOUR YEARS TOTAL $94,250

Figures Based on Records of the Criminal Divisions of the St. Louis Circuit Court Only.

$20,700 OF THIS HAS NOT BEEN PAID

In Addition to This There Are 25 Cases Pending in Which Sureties Amount to $40,850.

In view of renewed discussion of the activities of professional bondsmen and obligations they undertake as sureties for alleged criminals, the Post-Dispatch has made an examination of the records of bonds forfeited in the Criminal division of the Circuit Court in the period of a little more than four years since Jan. 1, 1920, ending as of Friday. In that period 59 bonds for a total of $94,250 were ordered forfeited, and forfeitures not set aside.

The theory of a criminal bond is to assure the defendant's presence in court for trial, and bonds are forfeited upon defendant's failure to appear. The examination was confined to the Circuit Court because that is where more important cases are tried and where bonds range above three figures.

Tabulated results of the inspection follow:

Classification.	No.	Tot.Am.
Forfeitures pending	25	$40,850
Judgments entered	32	48,200
Judgments unsatisfied	18	20,700
Judgments paid*	5	6,600
Paid without judgment	2	5,200
Appeals pending	2	3,800
Partly remitted	7	17,100
Forfeitures set aside	163	———

*One paid in part.
By Governor, Circuit Attorney or Court.

Not all bonds, by any means, are furnished by professional bondsmen.

Outstanding Criminal Bonds.

There are at present outstanding in Circuit Court criminal bonds aggregating more than $1,000,000. Court attaches estimated that in the period covered by this examination there were about 5000 criminal cases, in one-third or more of which bonds were furnished. These figures may be compared with those for forfeitures for an idea of the magnitude of trouble caused by forfeited bonds.

The total of forfeitures ordered in the three criminal divisions of the Circuit Court since the first of 1920 is 222, but of these 163 have been set aside because bondsmen have produced their principals in court. Many of the forfeitures set aside had been ordered because of brief and unavoidable or excusable delays by defendants in showing up. Occasionally bondsmen have gone to considerable trouble to locate clients who thought it would be healthier not to take a chance in court. Judges setting aside forfeitures assess court costs involved against bondsmen or waive them, at their discretion.

25 Forfeitures Pending.

Of the remaining 59 forfeitures, 25 are pending, having been ordered at various times from Oct 17, 1922, up to last Monday. Bondsmen in these cases, the amount of bonds—the total is $40,850—and time of forfeiture are as follows:

1924—Sam Shapiro, $1000 on each of four bonds; James Laury, $1000; George T. Kylo, $800; Henry West, $1000; Marion Howard, $150. 1923—John P. Collins, $1500; Morris Geeser, $5000; Joseph Noskay, $2500 on each of two bonds; William Berberich, $1000; Louis Rose, $1000; John Oertll, $1000 on one bond and $800 on another; William A. Morant, $1000 on each of two bonds; George J. Dominick, $10,000 on one bond with John T. Kelly and $800 on another, singly; John T. Kelly, $10,000 on the bond with Dominick; C. W. Beck, $1500; Adolph C. Wiget, $1000; Meyer Holtzman, $1000. 1922—Rudolph L. Schaeffer, $800; I. Grodsky, $1500.

There are various reasons for delay in forcing satisfaction of a forfeited bond, either by payment or production of the principal. An instance is the case in which William Berberich is surety; his principal is in jail in Illinois.

Bonds Remaining Unsatisfied.

Out of all the bonds given in the period of this examination only 18 against which final judgments were entered remain wholly unsatisfied. They total $20,700. At the office of the Circuit Clerk for Criminal Causes the explanation is given that it develops upon the Sheriff to seize property of bondsmen who fail to satisfy judgments, but this is not done because of the Sheriff's inability to find such property. Rarely, it is stated, can a judgment be settled by seizure.

"Bondsmen who are able to pay, do so," said an attache of the Clerk's office, "but first they fight to the last ditch."

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—A hotel or public resort is responsible for the full amount of any valuables lost or stolen after being entrusted to its care, the District Court of Appeals here held today in granting Carl Muehlebach, Kansas City hotel owner, and Mrs. Muehlebach, full return on jewelry valued at $23,000, which was stolen from the safe of the Hotel Paso Robles at Paso Robles, Cal., in January, 1921.

The jewels were taken while the Muehlebachs were on a honeymoon trip. They sued the hostelry for the full amount, alleging that the night clerk, to whom they entrusted the gems, had fled with them. A lower court held that the liabilities of the hotel was fixed at $250 by statute. The District Court held, however, that the hotel in accepting the jewelry for safekeeping assumed responsibility for its full value and not a mere portion of such value.

FORFEITED BONDS IN FOUR YEARS TOTAL $94,250

Figures Based on Records of the Criminal Divisions of the St. Louis Circuit Court Only.

$20,700 OF THIS HAS NOT BEEN PAID

In Addition to This There Are 25 Cases Pending in Which Sureties Amount to $40,850.

In view of renewed discussion of the activities of professional bondsmen and obligations they undertake as sureties for alleged criminals, the Post-Dispatch has made an examination of the records of bonds forfeited in the Criminal division of the Circuit Court in the period of a little more than four years since Jan. 1, 1920, ending as of Friday. In that period 59 bonds for a total of $94,250 were ordered forfeited, and forfeitures not set aside.

The theory of a criminal bond is to assure the defendant's presence in court for trial, and bonds are forfeited upon defendant's failure to appear. The examination was confined to the Circuit Court because that is where more important cases are tried and where bonds range above three figures.

Tabulated results of the inspection follow:

Classification.	No.	Tot.Am.
Forfeitures pending	25	$40,850
Judgments entered	32	48,200
Judgments unsatisfied	18	20,700
Judgments paid*	5	6,600
Paid without judgment	2	5,200
Appeals pending	2	3,800
Partly remitted	7	17,100
Forfeitures set aside	163	———

*One paid in part.

By Governor, Circuit Attorney or Court.

Not all bonds, by any means, are furnished by professional bondsmen.

Outstanding Criminal Bonds.

There are at present outstanding in Circuit Court criminal bonds aggregating more than $1,000,000. Court attaches estimated that in the period covered by this examination there were about 5000 criminal cases, in one-third or more of which bonds were furnished. These figures may be compared with those for forfeitures for an idea of the magnitude of trouble caused by forfeited bonds.

The total of forfeitures ordered in the three criminal divisions of the Circuit Court since the first of 1920 is 222, but of these 163 have been set aside because bondsmen have produced their principals in court. Many of the forfeitures set aside had been ordered because of brief and unavoidable or excusable delays by defendants in showing up. Occasionally bondsmen have gone to considerable trouble to locate clients who thought it would be healthier not to take a chance in court. Judges setting aside forfeitures assess court costs involved against bondsmen or waive them, at their discretion.

25 Forfeitures Pending.

Of the remaining 59 forfeitures, 25 are pending, having been ordered at various times from Oct 17, 1922, up to last Monday. Bondsmen in these cases, the amount of bonds—the total is $40,850—and time of forfeiture are as follows:

1924—Sam Shapiro, $1000 on each of four bonds; James Laury, $1000; George T. Kylo, $800; Henry West, $1000; Marion Howard, $150. 1923—John P. Collins, $1500; Morris Geeser, $5000; Joseph Noskay, $2500 on each of two bonds; William Berberich, $1000; Louis Rose, $1000; John Oertli, $1000 on one bond and $800 on another; William A. Morant, $1000 on each of two bonds; George J. Dominick, $10,000 on one bond with John T. Kelly and $800 on another, singly; John T. Kelly, $10,000 on the bond with Dominick; C. W. Beck, $1500; Adolph C. Wiget, $1000; Meyer Holtzman, $1000. 1922—Rudolph L. Schaeffer, $800; I. Grodsky, $1500.

There are various reasons for delay in forcing satisfaction of a forfeited bond, either by payment or production of the principal. An instance is the case in which William Berberich is surety; his principal is in jail in Illinois.

Bonds Remaining Unsatisfied.

Out of all the bonds given in the period of this examination only 18 against which final judgments were entered remain wholly unsatisfied. They total $20,700. At the office of the Circuit Clerk for Criminal Causes the explanation is given that it develops upon the Sheriff to seize property of bondsmen who fail to satisfy judgments, but this is not done because of the Sheriff's inability to find such property. Rarely, it is stated, can a judgment be settled by seizure.

"Bondsmen who are able to pay, do so," said an attache of the Clerk's office, "but first they fight to the last ditch."

Bondsmen against whom judgments are standing, according to the Clerk's records, amounts of the bonds, and dates judgments were entered are as follows: . . .

Charles Jackson, $1000, Dec. 27; Marion Howard, $1000, Dec. 27, and $1000, Dec. 31; Jessie Davies, $1000, Dec. 21; Harry Anastas, $2500, June 2, 1922; L. Kohn, $1000, Dec. 5, 1922; Fred A. Dalton, Mrs. E. H. Miller and John T. Manning, each on an $800 bond, June 16, 1922, but this judgment was set aside and new one entered Feb. 16, 1923; Jacob McAfee, $800 Oct. 28, 1921; William Troll, $1500, Dec. 16, 1921; estate of the late Christ Schawacker, $3000, June 16, 1922; A. F. La Pierre, $800, Dec. 29, 1920, but this judgment was set aside and new one entered April 29, 1921; Simon Stein, $800, Sept. 23, 1921; Meyer Koslov, $800, Oct. 15, 1920, and $1500, April 23, 1920; Albert Mueller, $800, Nov. 5, 1920; Vito Viviano, $800, Nov. 5, 1920.

A. F. La Pierre, against whom judgment on an $800 bond was entered, was president of the defunct Lyre-Ola Manufacturing Co., which went into bankruptcy a short time after this judgment. During the course of the bankruptcy proceedings he disappeared and it was learned he went to Italy.

Surety on an $800 Bond.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Manning, who is one of the sureties on an $800 bond against which judgment was entered a year ago, yesterday said he had asked the Governor to remit part of the bond, but that he would pay whatever he had to; already, he said, he has paid $385 costs.

"Mrs. E. H. Miller, who is on the bond, too, asked me to represent her son-in-law, Kenneth Brown, who was charged with forgery," Manning said. "I agreed, and got Fred A. Dalton, a bondsman, to sign with us. I feel I am responsible for the bond. Brown disappeared about three days before his case was called."

George J. Dominick, professional bondsman, has two appeals from judgments on bonds pending in the Supreme Court of Missouri. Because of these judgments and an outstanding forfeiture of a $10,000 bond against him, he has not been accepted as a surety in Circuit Court of late. One of his appeals is on a judgment entered against a $3000 bond May 27, 1922, and the other concerns judgment on an $800 bond, Dec. 8, 1922.

Action By Governors.

The records show that Gov. Hyde has partialy remitted four bonds having an original total of $12,800, as follows:

Gaetano Viviano, $2000, judgment May 27, 1922; paid $100 and costs of $144; $1900 remitted, Sept. 21, last.

John G. Oehler, $5000, judgment June 16, 1922, paid $1000 and costs of $282; $4000 remitted, Dec. 5, 1922.

John Kelly and Charles Nash, jointly, $5000, judgment Dec. 16, 1921; appealed; appeal dismissed; paid $2500; $2500 remitted, Nov. 13, 1921.

John Kelly and Charles Nash, jointly, $800, forfeited in 1920; paid $400; $400 remitted, Nov. 13, last.

Former Gov. Gardner partially remitted one bond in 1920. Robert E. Wilson was surety and the sum was $1000. Judgment was entered Dec. 10, 1920; $500 and costs were paid and $500 remitted.

Oehler, who obtained one remission from Gov. Hyde, had another bond, for $2500, forfeited in 1921, but paid $500 and costs, Nov. 17, 1922, and the Circuit Attorney set aside payment of the balance. An $800 bond on which Clarence L. Owen was surety was forfeited in 1920; $200 and costs was paid and the Court remitted the balance for good cause.

Judgments which were satisfied by payments were: Sam Andrews, $800, 1922, and $1000, 1923; "Cap" Troll and Clarence L. Owen, jointly, $800 on a $1500 bond, 1920; Louis Seidel and A. Fishman, jointly, $800, 1921.

Satisfied Without Judgment.

One instance is recorded of a $5000 bond being satisfied without judgment. George W. Beatty, who used to give flying exhibitions at Kinloch Field, was arrested here in 1921 as a fugitive from justice He arranged this bond with the National Surety Co., but failed to appear in court. The company promptly paid the bond. John T. Kelly paid a $200 bond, forfeited in 1921, without judgment

Paul V. Browne was surety on a $2500 bond forfeited in 1921, against which judgment was entered April 7, 1922. He appealed, then dismissed the appeal and paid $1250 and costs last December; he owes $1250 still.

Approval of sureties offered on bonds rests entirely in the discretion of the Judges, whose power is virtually absolute in this respect.

known because of his insistence that he was careful, though his police record did not bear out this claim.

Hooper, the driver from whom the car used by Taylor was taken, said that the man who held him up remarked, "This is an old story to me. I took Felix's car from him this way, and didn't hurt him, and I won't hurt you if you do as I say." Although promising the driver a $20 share in his night's spoil, the man played safe by robbing the driver of $15, of which he returned 75 cents, saying he did not wish to leave a man broke. He told Hooper, if he wished to get the car back, to report it merely as having been stolen, and Hooper did this at first, but after talking with his relatives he told the police all the facts.

"Why did you confess?"

"Well, I wasn't going to. But they got Gardner and he told everything. And the detectives said, 'You'll tell everything, too, when you go before the Judge.' They got us over in court and Rou told what we did. So I thought what's the use. They know everything. I might as well tell them and stop 'em from asking me questions."

He had kept silent about the pocketbook, he said, and about Gardner's alleged part in the affair until he had heard that Gardner was trying to evade equal guilt with him and Rou.

SHIP BOARD OFFICIALS TO QUIT

Love and Sheedy Said to Plan Action Following Salary Cut.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—While official confirmation was lacking tonight, William J. Love and Joseph E. Sheedy, vice presidents of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and veteran shipping men, are understood to have tendered their resignations to Admiral Leigh C. Palmer, new head of that organization, or contemplate doing so in the immediate future.

A few days ago Admiral Palmer announced, in reply to questions, that he had recommended to the Shipping Board that the salaries of all vice presidents be reduced to $18,000 a year, as a measure of economy and without in the slightest degree reflecting upon the men involved. The board approved the resolution. Love and Sheedy thereby suffered a reduction from $25,000, or more than 25 per cent, while Vice Presidents W. B. Keene and Sidney were reduced from $20,000. This is the second large reduction in salary suffered by Love, who was originally brought into the fleet corporation organization by former Chairman A. D. Lasker of the Shipping Board as vice president at $35,000 a year. Congress took a hand later and fixed a limitation of $25,000 on the salaries of experts in the organization. J. Barstow Smull, then president of the fleet corporation, and Love continued on the job at the reduced stipend. When Sheedy came in the salary was $25,000 a year. Smull resigned at the time Chairman Lasker retired.

Oklahoman Announces He Will Not Seek Re-Election This Year.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Feb. 23.—United States Senator Robert L. Owen, Democrat, will not be a candidate for re-election this year, according to a letter received today from the Senator by Gov. M. E. Trapp.

A desire to retire to private life and "to be entirely fair to the people of Oklahoma,' who "three times have greatly honored me with their confidence," are the reasons given by the Senator for his decision not to seek re-election.

LAUMEIER HEARD IN HIS SUIT OVER BOY'S PARENTAGE

Wealthy Real Estate Dealer Testifies He Is Not the Father of Son of His Former Wife.

JUDGE TAKES CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

Plaintiff Seeks Custody of the Child Should the Court Render a Decision Against Him.

The petition of Herman H. Laumeier, a wealthy real estate dealer, to determine paternity of a boy born to his former wife, Miss Byrd Shoemaker of New York, six months after she obtained a decree of divorce, was taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Hall. She divorced Laumeier in June, 1919, and the child was born at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium Dec. 28 following.

Laumeier asserts that he left his wife immediately after their marriage in June, 1918, and never lived with her, although she alleged he is the father of the child. She explained that just prior to the divorce she lived at the Sterling Apartments in this city and he visited her there. "I was never in the Sterling Apartments," he replied.

Laumeier the Only Witness.

He was the only witness to take the stand. His lawyer, Randolph Laughlin, offered in evidence various depositions to support his contention. Miss Shoemaker was not present. Attorney Samuel H. Liberman appeared and demanded a continuance on the ground that the Circuit Court did not have jurisdiction, but the motion was overruled. It was stated the Missouri Supreme Court decided the court here had jurisdiction to proceed. Liberman contends original jurisdiction is in New York, where Miss Shoemaker filed suit to force her former husband to recognize the child as his.

According to petitioner's testimony he did not see his wife from the day after their marriage until November, 1918, when she interviewed him at the Missouri Athletic Association and got him to go with her and pay a $70 hotel bill she said she owed at the Statler. He said he later learned the bill had been incurred by a man and that Miss Shoemaker was not registered.

"The next time I saw her," he continued, "was on Sept. 30, 1922, when I landed from a European trip. She met me at the steamship dock with the child in question and said I was the father. At the same time she had me served with her New York suit demanding that I pay $5000 for his support. That was the first I heard of any child."

"Paid $20,000 to Get Rid of Wife."

The marriage took place at Salem, Ill., where Laumeier, Miss Shoemaker and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Limburg stopped over at night on an automobile trip. "We had a lot of beer and whisky," Laumeier testified, "and I have no recollection of any ceremony. On being told I was married I immediately left the party and went to Chicago. On returning home I consulted a lawyer about a divorce and I had to pay $20,000 to my wife to get rid of her. She filed the suit, which went by default."

Last July Laumeier appeared before Judge Hall and gave similar testimony in a suit he filed against his former wife and the child to quiet title to certain real estate. In that case he alleged that the paternity claim made it difficult for him to give a clear title in disposing of real estate. The jurisdiction of the court also was attacked in the title case but Judge Hall rendered a decree in Laumeier's favor.

Nature of Present Suit.

In the present case Laumeier asks that he be given custody of the boy should the court decide the boy is his. In the event the court concludes petitioner is not the father then an injunction is sought to enjoin the mother from asserting any further claim in the matter.

ST. LOUISAN SILENT DESPITE VETERAN BUREAU CHARGES

John W. Thompson Says He Heeds Lawyer's Advice in Not Commenting on His Alleged Deals.

HIS NAME MENTIONED OFTEN IN INQUIRY

Man Who Declares He Was Go-Between Testifies to Secret Agreement With Forbes on Contracts.

John W. Thompson, railroad contractor, having his office in the Boatmen's Bank Building and residing at 17 Hortense place, is a conspicuous figure in the inquiry into the administration of the Veterans' Bureau by Charles R. Forbes. His name has been mentioned frequently in the inquiry, which has been in progress more than four months.

Elias H. Mortimer, who says he served as go-between in the negotiations between Forbes and construction firms, has given most of the testimony regarding Thompson, in statements before the Senate's investigating committee. Within the past week Mortimer appeared before the Federal grand jury in Chicago, to which the inquiry has been transferred.

Linked with Thompson's name in the inquiry has been that of his former business associate, James W. Black, now dead.

Again Refuses to Talk.

The purport of Mortimer's testimony has been that Thompson & Black, then a partnership concern with offices in St. Louis and Chicago, made a deal through him by which they were to get their choice of the contracts for constructing Veterans' hospitals, and that they chose the hospital job at Northampton, Mass., which later was awarded to the Pontiac Construction Co., a subsidiary firm of Thompson & Black. The award was made in spite of the fact that another firm made a lower bid.

Whenever asked to make a statement for publication as to the matter, Thompson has declined to talk or has denied knowledge of the matter. When a Post-Dispatch reporter saw him yesterday, he again refused to make a detailed statement, saying he was keeping silent on advice of his attorney.

Mention of Thompson in Inquiry.

The statements made during the inquiry, connecting Thompson and his deceased partner with the alleged irregularities in the administration of the Veterans' Bureau, have been as follows:

Oct. 24.—Mortimer testified that Black told him that Black's partner, Thompson, advanced $32,000 to Forbes in loans. He testified that from February to June, 1922, Forbest had conferences with Black & Thompson concerning contracts, and promised that their firm would be cared for in the letting of contracts over which he said he had authority. The officials of the company also were given a confidential list of hospital sites, Mortimer said, and they picked the one at Northampton as their choice.

Mortimer testified that Forbes told Thompson to go to Washington and keep in touch with Charles F. Cramer, general counsel for the Veterans' Bureau, and assured Thompson that if any other bid were submitted lower than that of the Pontiac Construction Co., a Thompson & Black subsidiary, time would be made the essence of the contract, to assure awarding it to the Pontiac Co.

Mortimer said Thompson and Forbes were at parties given at the New York apartment of a Mr. Content, a friend of Forbes. Mortimer said that while he, Forbes and Thompson were in Chicago, Forbes wanted $10,000, and he, Mortimer, borrowed the money from Thompson.

Nov. 16—Mortimer testified that a code was used in communications between Forbes, Black and others in the summer of 1922.

Forbes, testifying before the committee, denied the code story. He said he was introduced to Thompson by Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, sister of President Harding and wife of the Superintendent of Prisons. Forbes denied other charges of Mortimer, and said award to Pontiac Co. was on bona fide time basis.

Nov. 17—Mortimer testified that Thompson telegraphed to Mortimer and Mrs. Mortimer, and that Thompson promised Mrs. Mortimer the gift of an expensive car, but that the car never was delivered. Mortimer told of arrangements for Forbes and Black to meet at Seattle, Black wiring that he would have "all the Scotch generals there with Haig in command."

Nov. 20—Conflicting testimony given as to time when the Pontiac Co. bid was put in. The time set was 11 a. m. July 3, and some witnesses said Pontiac bid was not submitted until after that time, others that it was within the time specified.

Jan. 7—John F. O'Ryan, counsel for Senate Investigating Committee, in his report to committee named Thompson as party to a conspiracy with Forbes. O'Ryan said the award of the Northampton hospital contract to the Pontiac Co. was a "specific example of the accomplishment of the conspirators."

Feb. 14.—Mortimer, testifying before Chicago grand jury, reported to have told of interest of himself and Forbes in a railroad construction enterprise of Thompson & Black in the Republic of Colombia. He said Thompson & Black sought Forbes' aid in getting contracts for the work.

Feb. 20—Mortimer reported to have retold to grand jury the story of a secret code, used in communications between Forbes and Thompson & Black. He also related that the code was used in negotiations for three hospital contracts, those at St. Cloud, Minn.; Livermore, Cal., and American Lake, Wash. He said it was agreed that the profits, estimated at $450,000, were to be split three ways, one-third going to Director Forbes. Thompson & Black and Hurley & Mason of Tacoma, Wash., were named by Mortimer as two firms which were parties to the agreement and were provided with the secret code.

INTERNATIONALE SAYS TASK OF RED ARMY IS NOT FINISHED

Russia Still Surrounded by Ring of Capitalistic States, It Is Pointed Out.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 23.—"The task of the Red Army is not yet accomplished; its struggles are not yet finished," says a statement by the executive committee of the Third Internationale on the occasion of the organization's anniversary.

It points out that Russia still is surrounded by "a tight ring of capitalistic states," and that at any time the workers and peasants of some other country may seize power in that country and precipitate a world-wide struggle between capital and labor.

There were no parades, as on previous anniversaries of the Internationale. The newspapers are replete with pictures of Leon Trotzky and cartoons appropriate to the event from the communist viewpoint.

DENY INDORSEMENT OF "VETERANS' ASSOCIATION"

Better Business Bureau and Advertising Club Issue Statement Regarding Matter.

The Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Club have issued a statement denying that they have indorsed the activities of the Missouri Veterans' Association, which is selling tickets for a dance to be given at Hotel Statler March 29.

Telephone solicitors of the association, representing themselves as army officers, have informed corporations and individuals that the dance is being backed by the Better Business Bureau and Advertising Club. This representation has been made without authority, the two organizations assert.

One of the solicitors introduced himself to the cashier of a manufacturing concern as Col. McBride. The cashier presumed he was Col. McBride, State commander of the American Legion, but when she discovered her mistake and so informed the solicitor he said he was Col. McBride of Kansas City, and that he and the other Col. McBride frequently were confused.

The Missouri Veterans' Association is purported to be an organization of ex-service men, and the Better Business Bureau and Advertising Club have asked to be notified of any misrepresentations made by solicitors of the association.

"NO GAMBLING" SIGN MOCKS FOLEY RAIDERS

And Sheriff's Men Have to Furnish Own Lights to See It.

A raiding party from Clayton, which went to Tony Foley's gambling establishment at 6128 Easton avenue, Wellston, last night, had to furnish its own lights. The place was dark, and the raiders' flashlights showed no person about the premises, and no "evidence" which appeared worth taking. They did discern a large sign on the wall, which read:

"Absolutely No Gambling Allowed."

Foley's place was reopened about two weeks ago, after East Side gambling places were closed. Complaints were made to the Sheriff, and in the last few days Wellston ministers have signed a telegram, complaining of the place, which was sent to Gov. Hyde. All this would seem, to the experienced eye, to point to a Saturday night raid, and so Foley and his associates observed the occasion as "silent night."

As there was nothing to do where there was nothing doing, the raiders turned their attention to Wellston "soft drink parlors." Sheriff Willmann has announced that he intends to keep city "red hots" from congregating in the county.

But the persons who were found in the two open "soft drink parlors" did not appear to be red hots. They did not even look lukewarm, and the raiders, after looking for liquor and finding none, went on to two other places, which were found to be closed for the evening. Then they went back to Clayton. Deputy Sheriff Charles Kick headed the party of four, and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Russell was another member.

Other gambling houses generally understood to have reopened recently in the county were not visited.

FIVE CONVICTIONS IN FRENCH WAR DAMAGE FRAUD CASES

Two Men and Two Women Get Prison Sentences and Merchant Is Fined.

By the Associated Press.

LILLE, France, Feb. 23.—Five persons today were convicted of fraud in the collection of indemnities for war damages and sentenced to fines or imprisonment. August Deloffre, a merchant, was ordered to repay the Government 53,000 francs overpayment. Two other men and two women were each sentenced to three months' imprisonment, fined 500 francs and ordered to return all payments received, and their rights to damages were canceled.

The "devastated regions scandal" was recently aired in the French Parliament and also considered by the Cabinet. Masses of documents were said to have been seized which showed that the devastation claims and payments had been padded by billions of francs.

REED SPEAKS ON CENTRALIZATION IN GOVERNMENT

Senator Also Refers to Oil Reserve Scandal and Federal Administration of Railroads.

HEARD BY STUDENT CLUB OF ST. LOUIS U.

He Will Open Campaign for Missouri Democratic Delegation for Presidency Tomorrow.

OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR NOMINATION

SENATOR JAMES A. REED

Senator James A. Reed, here to open his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke last night before the Commerce Club of St. Louis University, at the Claridge Hotel, on centralization in government.

The speech was termed by Reed a nonpolitical one, yet it concluded with interrogative reference to persons named in the naval reserve oil scandal, and contained mention of other subjects of his campaign speeches, including the maternity bill, with excerpts of his "motherhood" oration.

"There are men in the oil business who should be in the penitentiary," the Senator said. "It is a singular fact that one of these men employed as his lawyers five men who were in the Cabinet or had been.

Reference to Oil Lawyers.

"What do you think he was buying? Legal talent or influence? I don't say these men knew what they were selling. I don't know how much brains it takes to know that. But it does seem to me that when this Government confers a great honor upon a man he owes it a debt while in office and when he gets out that will never permit him to raise his hand against his benefactor."

Referring to tendencies to drift from constitutional government as intended by the founders of the nation, the Senator declared that "the last two amendments to the Constitution of the United States were adopted by vote of fewer than 4000 men in legislative bodies." "There ought to be an amendment providing the Constitution can only be amended by a vote of the people," he said.

Speaks Better When Mad.

In opening the Senator deplored the fact that no one had said something to make him mad just before he started to talk "so I could make a good speech. I find myself in the condition of an old race horse which has to go around the track eight or ten times to get warmed up or has to be doped to make the hurdles."

He did not refer to William G. McAdoo, one of his opponents for the Democratic presidential nomination by name, but made pointed reference to the Federal administration of railroads, declaring the policies of the Government in dealing with railroads constituted an "unjust perversion of a power granted by the Constitution," of regulating interstate commerce

Two Reed Speeches Tomorrow.

Senator Reed is to speak to the City Club after luncheon tomorrow, and tomorrow night he is to speak in the Pershing Theater. The theater speech will be the formal opening of his attempt to get an instructed Reed delegation from Missouri to the New York convention. He will speak in eight places in Missouri within the next two weeks.

The Pershing Theater speech will be broadcast by radio by the Post-Dispatch, station K S D.

In his speech last night, Senator Reed said in part:

"There is one great cause for the present deplorable condition at the Capitol. It is found in the fact that we have been concentrating at Washington a vast number of powers and activities which do not legitimately belong to the Federal Government.

Drift to Centralization.

"For years there has been an absolute epidemic of bills, the object of which was to take from the people of the United States powers and rights which belong to the individual, to the community, or to the state, and centralize them at the Capitol.

"Every man who conceived that something was wrong in the harmony of life, or the machinery or creation, has rushed to Washington, organized a propaganda, and undertaken to place in a Federal statute the particular scheme he had in mind.

"We have organized boards and bureaus that run beyond the scores and into the hundreds. There is scarcely anything, from the feeding of babies to the manning of battleships, that is not now under some sort of governmental supervision.

Theory of Regulation.

"The theory of these well intentioned people is that from the cradle to the grave every human being must be regulated in his morals, his habits and almost in his clothes, by a law of Congress. Over 600,000 men and women draw pay from the Federal Government. They are engaged in every conceivable sort of activity, from superintending the food mothers shall feed their babies to the management of great railroad and business enterprises.

"They rush into the homes, spy upon the people, shoot down citizens without warrant and without right, inspect the books of partnerships and corporations from the small to the great, and undertake in every imaginable way the supervision and regulation of humanity.

"The result is that there is so much going on in Washington that no human being has any conception of what may be happening even in the office next door.

Contrary to American Spirit.

"The policy of concentrating business at Washington is not only contrary to the spirit of American institutions, but is violative of the very fundamentals of liberty."

Senator Reed then gave a historic survey of the idea of individual liberty and local self-government in America. Non-interference on the part of the Federal Government, beyond the exercise of certain powers necessarily granted, was a basic principle, he said.

"All this we have abandoned," he declared. "We appoint commissions to inspect women who are suspected of impending motherhood; we appoint the incompetent and unemployed of the country to pry into the business affairs of the people; we suborn the states by Government largees, doled out upon condition the state shalll pass laws that may be demanded by some Federal bureau upon pain of not receiving any part of the Government bounty. We have proceeded in this wise until there is, I repeat, concentrated at Washington such a multitude of bureaus and subbureaus, commissions and subcommissions that no human brain can keep account of what is going on. Under such conditions corruption is bound to creep in. Incompetency is certain to result, and the vast machine is certain to grind out a grist corrupted by wrongs and infamy.

Process a Grave Mistake.

"The whole process is a grave mistake, proceeding upon the idea that a few men in Congress know better what the people of a community need than the inhabitants thereof. The protagonists of this theory assume that a Congress sitting at Washington can pass better laws for the government of the State of Missouri than the people of Missouri can pass to govern themselves, and so likewise of every other state. The exact converse of this theory is the truth. The economic conditions of Maine probably are more divergent from the economic condition of Mississippi or Georgia than those existing between France and Germany, or England.

"The theory also contains the fallacy that the Congress of the United States is possessed of infallible judgment and unfailing honesty. As to the latter, we can concede honesty of purpose if we make due allowance for political advantage, but as to the first proposition, no greater mistake could be made.

"Without reflecting in the least upon the intelligence of Congress, it may be safely asserted that the members of that body are not in intelligence and experience much above that of the average intelligent man of any community in the United States.

What Citizens Need to Do.

"What we need to do is to get back to the old fundamentals, discharge the useless boards and bureaus, get rid of some hundreds of thousands of incompetent employes, to return to the old idea that the states and the peoples thereof are sufficiently intelligent to control their own affairs.

"Government should be kept so close to the people that the people can know what is going on. A distant government is nearly always a corrupt government."

OLD LAND SUIT DECIDED

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 23.—The Supreme Court today decided a Fentress County case recalling the residence in this state of the family of Mark Twain. It was an ejectment suit involving title to land held under a grant issued in 1838 to G. W. Kerr.

Subsequent to this grant Orion Clemens, a relative of Mark Twain, instituted a suit in the chancery court at Jamestown, under which title was divested out of the heirs of G. W. Kerr and vested in Clemens. This title of the Clemens heirs was set up in defense of the claim of complainants who are descendants of the grantee Kerr.

The Chancellor found for the defendants and his decree was affirmed.

OFFICE MANAGER SERIOUSLY HURT RESISTING ROBBER

Fred Schneider in City Hospital in Critical Condition With Bullet Wound in Neck.

HOLDUP IN HEART OF FINANCIAL DISTRICT

Thief Escapes With $600 After Girl Office Employe Screams and Runs for Help.

Fred Schneider, 32 years old, of 3356 De Tonty street, who was shot by a lone robber in a holdup yesterday of the downtown office of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Baltimore, of which Schneider is office manager, was in a critical condition at city hospital late last night. He was shot because he attempted resistance.

The robber got away with between $600 and $700, part of the week's payroll of about $1700. The office is on the second floor at 411 Olive street, in the center of the financial district. The robbery was at 10:10 a. m., when the streets were crowded.

Schneider and his assistant, Miss "Billie" Kuna, 19, of 1819 Geyer avenue, were making up the payroll, facing each other at a double desk in the large office room. The office manager was doing the cashier's duty because the latter was called away today. Two other young women were working in the room.

The robber, who wore a light cap and brown overcoat, entered through the anteroom and stood beside Miss Kuna, drawing an automatic pistol and ordering her to "keep still and don't get up." Then he went close to Schneider, who had watched his movements. The office manager arose half way. The intruder turned his weapon towards him. "Keep your seat," he commanded. Schneider seized one of the robber's wrists and was in turn knocked to the floor with the butt of the pistol.

Schneider tried to get up and the robber fired once at close range, the bullet entering the back of Schneider's neck and emerging in front. Miss Kuna screamed and ran through the anteroom to get help from a group of about 50 company agents holding their weekly meeting across the hall. As she ran out she saw the robber gathering money from the desk, and a moment later he rushed out through another door and passed her in the hall. She screamed again, but he had fled down the narrow staircase, out of the building lobby facing Olive street, and was lost in the city's rush.

Meanwhile the other young women in the office had fainted. Miss Kuna's screams brought agents and tenants to the hall and one of these picked up $45 of the payroll which the robber had dropped in his haste.

At the hospital, although in severe pain, Schneider related that the first he knew of the robbery was when he saw the robber's pistol flourished and tried to push it away.

ELECTION TUESDAY ON AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION

Friends of 21 Proposed Changes Urged to Vote in Force to Reduce Danger of Defeat.

EVEN BREAK OUTSIDE CITIES IS HOPED FOR

Probability of Light Balloting in St. Louis Not Regarded as Reassuring in View of Opposition.

Advecates of the 21 proposed amendments to the State Constitution, which will be voted upon in a special election to be held throughout the State Tuesday, last night issued an appeal to all friends of the changes to let nothing prevent them from casting their ballots. Probability of a light vote in St. Louis does not reassure those in charge of the campaign for the amendments, it being well known that rural Missouri is chronically opposed to changes in the fundamental law, and rarely discriminates between what is good and what is not good.

One factor, however, usually counted as among the State's most serious shortcomings, may operate this time for its great good—mud roads.

For the dirt highways in interior Missouri today are virtually impassable for almost everything but air-going vehicles, due to the rains, snows and frequent hard freezes and succeeding thaws of the last two months.

Bad Roads May Help.

Ten years ago this would not have mattered, for rural residents then did their traveling on horseback or in horse-drawn vehicles. Not so today, however. Automobiles are the rule, and rare is the individual who would take an automobile over the roads out-State at this particular season.

Everything considered, supporters of the amendments expect to get about an even break in the State outside of the four or five larger cities. If their friends there go to the polls in force, a majority of the amendments will be adopted; if not, defeat may be their portion.

Polls Open at 6 O'Clock.

In St. Louis, the polls will open at 6 a. m. and remain open until 7 p. m. In general, the polling places are the same as those used in the last election.

Approximately 257,300 eligible voters are on the registration books at present, but many of them will be unable to vote Tuesday because they have moved since the last election and have failed to have their registration transferred. Only about 5000 took advantage of the opportunity afforded recently to make such transfer.

Most of the Republican City Committeemen, through their ward organizations, are said to be favorable to the amendments generally, though neither the City Committee nor the ward organizations as such have taken formal action in favor of the changes.

Two Amendments Menaced.

This lack of positive effort on their part, and the active fight by Democratic City Committeemen against No. 7, is held to contain great menace for the fate of that amendment, and possibly for amendment No. 11, which would give to Missouri cities local self-government and power to expand for municipal purposes across county boundaries and to have limited control over their own police departments. Some of the Democratic Committeemen are fighting that proposal because of the police provision, not desiring Republican St. Louis to manage its policemen, but preferring rather that the Governor a Democrat in Missouri more often than not, hold that power.

However, other powerful influences are at work in the opposite direction. The League of Women Voters, for instance, announced yesterday that a special information and automobile service for voters would be maintained from 8:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. election day. Voters may obtain any information about the election by calling Olive 6011, and those who desire transportation to the polls may get service by doing likewise.

SUING BOK, CONTESTANT ASKS $1,100,000 FOR PUBLICITY

Also Demands the $100,000 Prize, Alleging His Plan Deserved Unanimous Award.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—A summons and complaint for $1,100,000 damages was filed against Edward W. Bok, donor of the American peace award, today, by Frank Hendrick, a lawyer, who was one of the more than 22,000 persons to submit peace plans in competition for a $100,000 prize.

Hendrick based his suit on the contention that the plan submitted by him, "if fairly considered," would have been unanimously selected as the prize winner. The demand for $100,000 is for the prize offered by the former publisher and the suit for $1,000,000 represents, Hendrick contends, the value of the publicity Bok has received as a result of the prize award.

Hendrick avers that the peace plan he submitted "was and is so novel and clear and interesting that it would, upon first reading, engage the serious attention and consideration of any person competent to judge of the merits of the proposal of a practical plan by which the United States might co-operate with other nations to preserve the peace of the world."

Alleging that the best plan submitted "has not been selected by the jury of award or otherwise in accordance with the terms of the advertised offer," Hendrick complained that the popular referendum to which Bok looks for final judgment is operated in an "unfair, partial and improper manner." He added that Box "failed and refused to submit his plan to the voters."

ELOPE AS PARENTS SIT IN COUNCIL ON THEM

Youth, 18, and Girl, 17, With Phone Message, Shatter Decision They Must Wait.

There was a serious family council at the home of Eugene C. Dreyer, 83 Arundel place, Thursday evening, for the Dreyers and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mathes were profoundly considering the attachment which Felix Dreyer, 18, and Frimuth Mathes, 17, had formed for each other. The Dreyers and the Matheses had come to a definite conclusion. Those children must wait at least two years before the Dreyers and the Matheses would allow them to be married.

It was 11 o'clock, and now that the question was settled, the Matheses thought they would go home. Then the telephone bell rang. Somebody wanted to speak to Mathes. It was his daughter, who informed him that she and Felix had just been married by a Justice of the Peace at Clayton; she couldn't talk longer because she and Felix just had time to catch the train for Chicago, and she'd tell them all about it later.

School Romance.

It was about four years ago that young Dreyer and Miss Mathes started to go to dances together. She was then in Soldan High School, from which she graduated last month. In the succeeding years she and Dreyer attended nearly all the dances and parties of their set together. Their companions whispered that they liked each other, and when Miss Mathes graduated from high school, Dreyer told his father that he thought he'd get married.

Dreyer, president of the Dreyer Commission Co., by which Felix Dreyer is employed, told his son he didn't think he would—for a few years at least. Miss Mathes had told her parents much the same thing, and had got much the same reply.

Last Thursday evening, when young Dreyer was speaking to Miss Mathes, Dreyer's father got on the line and told Miss Mathes that he'd like to speak with her father. All of which resulted in the family conference, which was so suddeny disrupted.

Off and Away in a Taxi.

It is supposed young Dreyer and Miss Mathes feared parental interference. They had an engagement that evening. When the Matheses left their home, 5635 Waterman avenue, to counsel with the Dreyers, Miss Mathes packed her suit case.

Along came a taxicab, with Dreyer and another couple in it. When it left, it had added Miss Mathes and her suitcase to its load Then Clayton, a marriage license, a Justice of the Peace, and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Dreyer will reside with Dreyer's parents on Arundel place. They expect to return to St. Louis today, when at another family conference, they'll tell the Dreyers and the Matheses all about it.

5000 SHIPYARD WORKERS STRIKE AT SOUTHAMPTON

New Walkout Looms in Britain With Peace in Dock Men's Dispute in Abeyance.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The strike of the dock workers is still in progress. The situation was without change today, and the proposed settlement is still in abeyance. Disputes now are threatening the shipbuilding trade, the Federation of Engineering and Shipbuilding Trades demanding a considerable advance in wages.

The only yards yet affected are those at Southampton, where 5000 shipyard workers threw down their tools to maintain their demand for an advance of 17 shillings weekly. They represent all the skilled workers in a dozen unions, with the sole exception of the boilermakers. Thus, almost the whole of Southampton's shipyards have been brought to a standstill, and there are fears that the strike may extend to other areas.

STATE INHERITANCE TAX AGENT DIES AFTER AN OPERATION

William J. McPherson, 62 years old, of 5132 Maffitt avenue, a State inheritance tax agent, died at Deaconess Hospital yesterday afternoon. McPherson is said to have received an internal injury from a sudden jerk, while riding in a street car, about a month ago. Three weeks ago he was operated upon in an effort to save him, but death resulted from peritonitis.

McPherson was born in Indiana, but came to St. Louis when a young man. He had been a tax agent for the past four years, and had served three terms as a State Representative, being elected as a Republican candidate. He is survived by his wife, a son, and three daughters. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m., Tuesday, from an undertaking establishment at 4234 Manchester avenue. Burial will be at Valhalla Cemetery.

Police Asked to Find Two Dogs.

The police were requested yesterday to search for two stolen dogs, one the property of Frank V. Brecht of 4 Forest Ridge avenue. St. Louis County, and the other of Carl F. G. Meyer of 5503 Clemens avenue. Brecht's dog, a Great Dane, valued at $500, disappeared from his rear yard last night. Meyer's dog, a German police dog, 2 years old, named "Stroller," was stolen last Wednesday night.

PEACE REPORTED RESTORED IN WILLIAMSON COUNTY

Garrison of National Guardsmen Reduced to One Company Stationed at Herrin.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Feb. 23.—The garrison of Illinois National Guardsmen in Williamson County has been reduced to one company stationed in Herrin, and the new peace officers, selected by a citizens' committee of "neutrals," have taken office. The Carbondale, Cairo, Paris and Mount Vernon companies of guardsmen went to their homes today. The Salem company remains.

John Schaffer, former Marion Chief of Police, today was commissioned as Chief Deputy Sheriff by Sheriff George Galligan, and three new field deputies also were commissioned. Schaffer's salary was fixed at the same as Galligan's by action of the county board and he will have charge of all raiding in the county.

The citizens' committee, which comprises citizens from all over the county who belong to neither the Ku Klux Klan nor the anti-klan forces, today issued a formal statement of what it had accomplished and complimented both sides for their co-operation and fairness. In speaking of Sheriff Galligan, they said: "This committee desires to thank Sheriff Galligan for his spirit of fairness and for the concessions that he has been willing to make." He has turned the management of his office over to the new chief deputy, who formerly was a deputy sheriff, and is credited with being a fearless police officer.

The first of a series of mass meetings in the interest of law and order arranged by this committee is to be held in Herrin Monday night.

HUGHES SAYS NEED IS NOT MORE LAWS BUT ENFORCEMENT

Refers to Growing Mass of Legislation and Opinions in Address Before American Law Institute.

"LIBERTY UNDER LAW BUT HOW MUCH LAW?"

Says Main Trouble Lies With Legislatures Which Satisfy Opposing Policies by a Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The need of the hour in the United States "is not to make law but to enforce law," Secretary Hughes said here tonight before the American Law Institute.

"We have vindicated the right of self-government," he said. "Are we developing the competency to exercise that right?

"We lack nothing in initiative, skill, in resourcefulness in industry and commerce, in ingenuity of adaptations and facilities of communications. We fall down in government not because we do not have the mechanism of efficient government, but because of inexpertness."

Referring to the growing mass of law and legal opinions in the United States, Hughes said that in one year there were 175,000 pages of decisions, an average of 12,000, or more, statutes, and an average of 13,000 recorded decisions of the highest court.

His View on Opinion.

"We have liberty under law," Hughes said. "But under how much law!"

The Secretary of State contended that judges should write their opinions because "The bar knows that the best security of good and faithful work is that the Judge must state his reasons."

"For generations we have talked of the evil of multiplying laws," he said. "Lawyers decry the multiplication in the meetings of bar associations and then, sitting in legislative halls, do their full share to increase it.

"The main trouble with the volume of litigation is not with the courts, but with the legislatures. The evil resides not merely in the number of laws. It is in badly drawn laws. It is also in the compromises of legislation where the contests of opposing policies are satisfied by ambiguous phrases which transmit the difficulties of legislative bodies to the courts who are left with the burdensome task of discovering the legislative intent when actually there has been no defined legislative intent.

Importance of Criminal Law.

"Perhaps the greatest need of all is the improvement in the administration of the criminal law by certainty in its definition and celerity in its administration. At this moment when law enforcement is so difficult, an adequate and competent criminal administration is more important than ever.

"The great duty of the hour is not to make law but to enforce law, to establish the fundamentals of security of life and property, and to maintain by enforcement respect for law in our great cities."

GANGSTER FINED $200 ON CONCEALED WEAPON CHARGE

William Longo One of Five Arrested in Vicinity of "Jelly Roll" Hogan's Home.

Upon his plea of guilty of carrying concealed weapons, William Longo, alias Frank Bovo, a Hogan gangster, was fined $200 in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court yesterday.

Longo was one of five Hoganites arrested by a squad of police under Detective Sergeant Archey, after an automobile chase in the vicinity of the home of "Jelly Roll" Hogan, leader of the gang, at 3035 Cass avenue, March 22 last. Revolvers were found in the gangsters' car, and charges of carrying concealed weapons against all of the occupants resulted.

The case against Charles Mercurio was continued until Monday. Previously Pat Scanlon was fined $100 and John "Kink" Connell was acquitted. Harry Greenberg is still to be tried.

Sea Job for Shenandoah Before Flying to Pole

Moffat Discusses Future Plans for Dirigible—Trip to Pacific Coast Likely.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Abandoning hope of getting congressional authorization for the flight of the airship Shenandoah to the north Polar region next summer, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, today conferred with Lieutenant Commander Zachery Lansdowne, now commanding officer, regarding plans for the future use of the ship.

The understanding is that the Shenandoah, following the thorough overhauling now in progress at Lakehurst, will make several long flights, probably going as far as the Pacific Coast, stopping at Fort Worth, Tex., where a mooring mast is to be erected. It is expected the Shenandoah also will undertake one or more flights over the sea. This will depend to some extent on whether for the flight one of the fuel ships designated for that purpose is converted into an air craft tender with mooring mast, to serve as a fleet base.

Little Hope for Sanction.

Commander Lansdowne in his conference with Admiral Moffett today expressed confidence that the repairs on the Shenandoah could be completed in ample time to make the north Polar flight. However, leaders in Congress have made it clear that there is no chance of putting through the specific authorization desired by President Coolidge in the near future. Meanwhile all work incident to preparation for the flight has been stopped.

The Shenandoah was designed primarily for service as a long-distance scout with the fleet. Authorization has been given for the conversion of a large fuel ship into a tender with mooring mast. The erection of mooring masts at Fort Worth, Tex., and San Diego, Cal., has been authorized, and the materials for these two masts fabricated.

Commander Was With Peary.

It was pointed out by Navy Department officials today that Lieutenant Commander Robert L. Bartlett, member of the special board appointed to work out plans for the Polar expedition, was in error when he stated last night in a radio address that the Shenandoah would leave Lakehurst June 1 for the flight. Commander Bartlett prepared this address some time ago, and did not correct it in the light of the President's order calling off the flight until Congress specifically sanctioned it. Commander Bartlett was skipper of the Roosevelt, on which the late Admiral Robert E. Peary made his last and successful trip to the north pole. He was looking forward enthusiastically to a trip to the north Polar region on the Shenandoah.

R-36 Not in Condition for British Flight to Pole.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—In view of reports that a British dirigible would attempt a North Pole flight next summer, the Air Ministry denies that any request has been received for the purchase or loan of airship R-36.

This craft, which now is stored at Pulham, is stated to be in no condition for such a flight and her overhauling would require months, even should the Air Ministry sanction such an expedition, which officials consider extremely unlikely. The figure of £5000 ($25,000), which has been mentioned as an estimate of the cost of the project, is regarded with the utmost skepticism by officials, who consider that £150,000 ($750,000) would be nearer the sum needed.

TWO MEN KILLED IN SEQUEL TO DRY RAID MADE IN 1920

Former Enforcement Officer Kills Booneville (Ark.) Man and Is Slain By Latter's Brother.

By the Associated Press.

BOONEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 23.—A three-cornered pistol duel—sequel of a prohibition officer's raid four years ago—was fought in the streets of this little town late today and two men were killed and a third arrested on a charge of murder. W. H. Wilson, 56 years old, former Federal prohibition enforcement officer, shot and killed Jess Wooleydge, 30, a farmer, and Wilson was shot to death by Edward Wooleydge, according to witnesses.

Bad feeling was said to have existed between Wilson and Jess Wooleydge as the result of a liquor raid conducted by Wilson on the Wooleydge farm four years ago. The men met here today and quarreled. Both drew their weapons. Witnesses said Wilson tripped Wooleydge and shot him to death as he lay on the pavement.

Edward Wooleydge, younger brother of the slain man, witnessed the slaying across the street, it was said, and when his brother was shot, started to the scene. Spectators declared that Edward Wooleydge was in the middle of the street, when Wilson turned and saw him. Wilson immediately opened fire, it was said, but without effect. Young Wooleydge then drew his revolver, witnesses said, and fired several times at Wilson, who fell dead beside the body of his victim.

MOTORIST FLEES WHEN AUTO RUNS DOWN TWO

Old-Style Ford Lamp Clew by Which Detectives Hope to Apprehend Him.

A broken lamp from an old-style Ford automobile is being used by detectives to trace the motorist who feloniously fled after his machine ran down George F. Aschemoor, 53, living at the city infirmary, and Miss Maggie Burke, 42, 6438 Arsenal street, as they crossed Arsenal street near Miss Burke's home at 8:30 p. m. yesterday. Aschemoor is in a critical condition, suffering from fractures of his skull and left leg. Miss Burke was badly cut and bruised.

There were no witnesses. Aschemoor lay near a street crossing and a few feet away a patrolman picked up the lamp. Miss Burke said the machine, moving east, gave no warning of its approach. It moved at high speed and did not stop after they were hit, she said.

STATEMENT BY BUSCH ON HOSPITAL STORY

Says He Was Asked if Brewery Would Sell Bevo Building.

August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., yesterday issued a statement explaining what had transpired in connection with the formerly proposed use of part of the Anheuser-Busch brewery for a disabled veterans' hospital.

His statement was prompted by the declaration of Col. H. D. McBride of St. Louis, State commander of the American Legion, in Kansas City Friday that a committee sponsored by the Veterans' Bureau visited St. Louis to "approve purchase of the brewery" for such a hospital. McBride, intimating that watchfulness of the legion frustrated the deal, decalred the legion was "prepared to go to any extent to keep the Forbes crowd from dumping our wounded comrades into a brewery to satisfy a group of politicians."

The Busch statement, in part, follows:

"Some time ago Busch was approached by a man not connected either with the brewery or the Federal service and was asked if the brewery would sell the Bevo building, Broadway and Pestalozzi streets, to the Government for a soldiers' hospital. Busch stated that his company would sell the building, which is near Lyon Park, if the proper price were offered; that he was not interested in the proposition, although he would not refuse a fair figure for the building.

"Nothing was said then or at any time indicating that anyone desired to buy the brewery plant as a whole for this purpose, or for any other purpose. The conversation related entirely to one building, which contains more than 27 acres of floor space and is new, thoroughly sanitary and absolutely fireproof building, isolated on all four sides by streets. With it was to be sold a large plot of ground adjoining, which was to be made into a recreation ground for the patients. The building covers a city block and it also was contemplated that the roof would be used for a recreation ground.

"Busch stated he made no attempt to influence a decision on the question; that thereafter the man who had approached him went to Washington and conducted negotiations respecting the building; that later some officials came here from Washington, examined the building, and indicated that it was satisfactory for the purposes contemplated.

"He added that had any suggestion been made to him to use the brewery plant as a whole for hospital purposes, he would have rejected it at once, because the whole plant is not suitable for hospital purposes and he desires to use the plant for his own business."

McAdoo on $1,000,000 Contingent Fee From Doheny

Says Sum Would Have Been Light Compensation for Success in His Mission to Mexico

Candidate's Failure to Explain This Alienates Many of His Backers Who Expected Full Statement at Chicago Meeting.

L. Chadbourne, Daniel C. Roper and two or three others.

McAdoo in the meantime had communicated with his committee chairman, David Rockwell, asking that a meeting of the representatives of the McAdoo organization be held in Chicago to pass "in cold blood" upon his political fate in view of the revelations before the Senate investigators. In his letter McAdoo wrote:

"I want this Chicago conference to consider and determine whether or not the fact that an honorable professional service rendered by me to a client, but having no relation whatever to the oil leases now under investigation by the Senate Committee, is prejudicial to my leadership in the cause of progressive democracy."

The Chicago conference was thereupon arranged and was discussed at the meeting in Washington. McAdoo's friends at this meeting also discussed the results of the Senate hearing. They deplored the failure of the inquisitors fully to develop all the facts in the case, notably those set out above.

Candidacy Was Impaired.

When the Washington meeting broke up it was with the definite expectation that McAdoo would make a full and frank statement at Chicago regarding all these matters. The conferees were, of course, agreed that his candidacy had been seriously impaired by the exposure of him as Doheny's attorney. They believed, however, that much of the impairment could be overcome if McAdoo were fully to unburden himself at Chicago, and take the public entirely into his confidence.

In the opinion of those who urged McAdoo to take this course, and understood that he intended to do so, the address he made at Chicago utterly failed to accomplish the purpose they had in mind. The candidate, on the contrary, it is stated, believes he did all that could have been expected of him.

So convinced are some, at least, of those who participated in the Washington meeting that the Chicago conference was abortive, the World is informed, that they have withdrawn further support of McAdoo in his fight for the Presidential nomination.

McAdoo resigned as Secretary of the Treasury Dec. 14, 1918, after having served from March 4, 1912. It was "about a year" after his resignation that he first became associated with the Doheny interests. The situation in Mexico was becoming critical at that time. A new Constitution had been adopted in 1917 and in it appeared the now famous Article 27, which asserted the Mexican Government's right to all mineral deposits, including oil.

Developments in Mexico.

The strongest possible opposition to this provision had been put forward by American interests, notably the oil companies, but in the fact of this opposition the year 1919 not only saw Article 27 still untouched but extremely likely to be made retroactive in its effects on lands secured before its adoption.

The Carranza government, indeed, under the terms of this article, in December, 1919, forcibly stopped the drilling of oil wells. Twenty-one big American oil companies protested to Congress. This marked the first crisis over the new Constitution, particularly when Mexico, after attempting to oust American companies, issued permits in January, 1920, to 46 foreign companies.

The Americans charged the British were being favored. The Carranza Government retorted Americans would not obey its governmental decrees, but eventually a modus vivendi was reached.

A provisional Government was declared in Mexico on April 24, 1920, and demanded that Carranza resign as President. On May 10 Carranza fled Mexico City and two days later Adolfo de la Huerta was named as provisional President by the revolutionaries. Carranza was killed on May 23 and De la Huerta was elected to the presidency May 25.

No further developments came on the surface, but in July following it was announced that the oil companies were pleased with the Huerta regime. Almost directly afterward, however, the Huerta Government gave notice that if the taxes on production and export of oil were not paid by Aug. 31 wells would be sealed. These taxes had been one of the vexatious issues in the issue.

On Aug. 30 six big American oil companies paid the taxes. Mexico then decreed that the titles of all companies refusing to pay would be denounced.

Oil Men Made Protest.

In September the Association of Producers of Petroleum filed with the State Department formal protest against Huerta and on Sept. 9 a note was dispatched from the United States conveying this protest to Mexico. In the meantime Obregon had been elected President, and for three months more matters progressed without outstanding incident.

On Dec. 29, 1920, it was announced in Los Angeles that McAdoo was going to Mexico City. The first stories stated he was making the trip on behalf of the stockholders of the Mexican National Railways.

McAdoo left Los Angeles on Jan. 30, 1921. He arrived in Mexico City on Feb. 3 and conferred with President Obregon on Feb. 7. Just what transpired at this meeting has never been made known, but, instead of improving, conditions became suddenly worse.

The Mexican Supreme Court rendered a decision returning one rich mine to former Mexican owners. The United States protested the issuance of patents to Mexicans covering lands owned by Americans. Obregon notified the oil companies he would suspend all oil operations conducted under the denounced titles.

Then Obregon, on Feb. 19, less than a fortnight after the McAdoo visit, ended the modus vivendi that had been reached by Carranza and the American companies, and forbade drillings on lands not manifested under the decree of Aug. 8, 1918. In June an increase in the export tax on oil was announced.

New Tax Went Into Effect.

The next day Doheny predicted that the tax would be withdrawn. The Associated Oil Producers made a formal protest to the State Department against the new tax, but it went into effect July 1.

The only statement McAdoo has ever made regarding the conditions under which he was to receive his additional fee of $900,000 was this passage in his letter of Feb. 7:

"At that time Mr. Doheny stated that the properties of the Doheny companies then threatened with confiscation were worth several hundred million dollars, so that the question was vital to his companies, and he would be willing to pay 10 times the fee if we got for his companies a satisfactory settlement in the Mexican question.

"No additional fee was ever paid."

As to the appearances of McAdoo before Government departments in behalf of other interests than those of Doheny, it may be said that at least two Senators are inquiring into one categorical but unsubstantiated story that after he had been retained an Ohio industrial corporation obtained a 50 per cent reduction in an income tax case involving several million dollars. McAdoo is said to have received a fee of something more than 5 per cent of the money saved.

Discussion of the political aspects of the fact that the full story of McAdoo's relations with the Doheny interests had not been brought out has been growing steadily. Tuesday last the New York Times, in an editorial entitled, "Chicago Not New York," summarized the views of McAdoo supporters who have withdrawn their backing from his candidacy. Remarking that anti-McAdoo delegates to the Democratic national convention in New York "will make everything possible out of the fact that their man was not on Doheny's payroll," the editorial continued:

"They will also be more than human and less than politicians if they do not point out the danger of ing a candidate about whom the inquiry was not pressed hard by the Senate Committee. The Republican members of it were extremely deferential to Mr. McAdoo. They asked him almost no questions. It almost seemed as if they did not want to do anything which might interfere with his nomination by the Democratic party.

"This may have been mere politeness, but it looked exceedingly like political guile and a deferring of investigation until a date when it might do their political opponents more harm than it could at the time. There was, for example, in Mr. McAdoo's letter to the Senate committee one statement which seemed fairly to invite questioning. After referring to his acceptance of the retaining fee of $100,000 from Mr. Doheny, he wrote:

"'At that time Mr. Doheny stated that the properties of the Doheny companies then threatened with confiscation were worth several hundred million dollars, so that the question was vital to his companies, and he would be willing to pay ten times the fee if we got for his companies a satisfactory settlement in the Mexican question. No additional fee was ever paid.,"

"What Was the Service?"

"What was the service," asked the Times editorial, "for which Mr. Doheny was willing to pay Mr. McAdoo $1,000,000? Did the latter attempt to earn that fee but failed? How strange it is that no Republican Senator thought of asking Mr. McAdoo those questions. If this was merely an oversight, they will doubtless be ready to recall him later—perhaps after his nomination for the Presidency—for further interrogation."

This excerpt from McAdoo's letter of Feb. 7 is, as has been said, the only reference to the contingent fee of $1,000,000 contained in the record of the Public Lands Committee at Washington. McAdoo's opinion on the right of an attorney, once a member of the presidential cabinet, to appear with a retainer in matters affecting the relations of the Government with clients represented by him, were set forth in this part of his letter:

"With the growth of Governmental instruments, the contacts of modern business of all kinds with the Government have become more frequent and necessary and no lawyer can enjoy a remunerative practice without appearing in behalf of his clients before the courts, governmental agencies, commissions and departments.

"If public opinion barred a lawyer who had held public office from such work his opportunity to make a living or acquire a competence for his family would be at an end."

"In addition to arguing cases in the courts," McAdoo also wrote the Senate committee, "I have argued matters before some of the Federal departments and have filed briefs and memoranda in these departments, among the State and Treasury Departments and the Shipping Board."

Explanation of Legal Work.

The importance—political as well as personal—of a full explanation by McAdoo of his legal undertakings before the departments of Government referred to in the above paragraphs from his letter was one of the points stressed by the conference of his friends in Washington.

The only announcement of McAdoo, which it was argued, even approached an explanation of why he did not summarily sever his relations with Doheny following the revelations connecting ex-Secretary Fall was contained in this passage from his letter of Feb. 7 to the Senate committee:

"When I read in the newspapers Mr. Doheny's amazing disclosures about his transactions with ex-Secretary Fall I refrained from immediately terminating my professional services with him, as was my first impulse, although I have now done so, fearing that the newspaper accounts might be as vicious and unfair to him as Charles P. Taft's partisan organ, the Times-Star of Cincinnati, had been to me when in its issue of Feb. 1 it set out in flat head lines on its front page the following malicious, and I charge purposely malicious, libel and lie: 'McAdoo received $250,000 from the Doheny interests; was paid $50,000 a year "on outside" while he was Secretary of Treasury.'"

Answering insinuations that his prestige as a former member of the Wilson Cabinet and as a prospective nominee for the presidency had enabled him to obtain large legal fees, McAdoo wrote:

"I never dealt in political influence, nor did I ask or promise, or give or receive political favor or other favors."

A perusal of the record of McAdoo's examination before the Public Lands Committee and of the text of his letters to the committee does not disclose any explanation of Doheny's statement on the stand, as reported by the World's Washington correspondent, "the big fellows got the fees and sent young men from their offices to do the work." Nor does investigation disclose any reply by McAdoo to the statement of Doheny that he "thought" McAdoo's firm had represented him before the Shipping Board.

The supporters of McAdoo, who questioned his availability as a presidential candidate unless he made a full and frank disclosure before the Chicago meeting of his political followers, considered entirely inadequate, the World was informed, his almost casual reference in his prepared address at Chicago to the oil scandal developments. They were contained in sentences such as:

"The condition of affairs at Washington beggars description." "There is demoralization in Government at Washington." "I have severed my professional relations with the Doheny company; I owe them nothing and they owe me nothing."

In his testimony before the Senate committee McAdoo did declare that he considered the facts about his professional service, even for Doheny, "irrelevant to the subject matter" of the inquiry, yet manifested a desire to answer any and all questions.

Political leaders who regarded as significant the deferential attitude of the Republicans toward McAdoo when he was in the witness chair point to what they call the "apologetic" manner in which Senator Lenroot handled the ex-Secretary of the Treasury.

Senator Lenroot explained to the witness that it was at the insistence of Senator Reed of Missouri, who also was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, that "Mr. Doheny was asked the question in which your (McAdoo's) name was drawn out as one of the counsel."

Glad It Was Brought Out.

"Do you think this committee," Senator Lenroot even asked, "would have been justified in refusing that request of Senator Reed?"

"No, sir," McAdoo responded. "I am glad you brought it out. I hope the committee will not think I am criticising them in any way for bringing out these facts. On the contrary, I think nothing was left to you, in the face of that statement, except to bring it out. And, I repeat, I am glad it was brought out."

"You have now severed your connection with Mr. Doheny?" the witness was asked.

"I have, sir. I did it Feb. 2," McAdoo answered.

"The day after he testified?" politely continued Senator Lenroot. "The day after he testified," reechoed McAdoo, who added that the reasons for his resignation had already been outlined in his letter Feb. 7.

When McAdoo explained he was retained as a special counsel by Doheny "to pass upon such matters and to give advice upon such matters as he (Doheny) presented to me," he added that Doheny could have consulted him on matters other than those relating to Mexico, but he never did.

"You would have advised him, if he had asked you?" was the next question. "I would have advised him if he had asked me," repeated McAdoo. "I am free to say that if he had advised with me about this matter he never would have gotten into this difficulty."

"You referred," came another question from Senator Lenroot, "to a contract you had with Mr. Doheny? He desired a four-year contract and you agreed to a three-year contract?" "He suggested he would be glad to retain me," McAdoo conceded.

Switched to Other Matters.

It was at this point, when it was assumed a sequence of questions would lead logically to an interpretation regarding the $1,000,000 contingent fee, that Senator Lenroot rather abruptly switched to consideration of the McAdoo letter to the committee, reading, however, only that section referring to the oil disclosures as a "nauseating scandal."

Neither Walsh of Montana nor Senator Dill of Oregon, both Democrats, who also questioned McAdoo, went into the $1,000,000 contingent fee, nor McAdoo's legal services for clients before the Treasury and other departments.

Senator Bursum (R., N. M.), confined his questions to an alleged appearance of McAdoo before the Treasury Department in behalf of the Security Investment Co. McAdoo denied he had appeared for the firm in any tax matter.

SEES NO M'ADOO OR COX SUPPORT BY TAMMANY HALL

New York Congressman Declares Ohioan Has No Chance of Again Leading Democrats.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Tammany Hall will not support the presidential candidacies of either William Gibbs McAdoo or former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, according to statements made on the floor of the House today by Representative Griffin of New York City, member of the organization. Neither is Griffin certain the organization would support former Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass.

In arguing for the excess rpofits tax, Griffin denounced former Gov. Cox, Democratic standard bearer in 1920, for his stand against the tax and declared "James Cox has no chance of again leading the Democrats in a presidential race." Republican Floor Leader Longworth said Griffin's remarks "show that Tammany Hall is not going to support the former candidate (Cox). I am not advised whether it intends to support Mr .McAdoo, but I am going to read what a former Secretary of the Treasury said—and Mr. McAdoo was Secretary of the Treasury and an able one—upon the subject of the excess profits tax. I don't know whether the gentleman from Tammany will agree with me or not."

Griffin: "I do not think I will. I do not think Tammany or the democracy of New York will support Mr. McAdoo."

McADOO WIRES STATEMENT ON CONTINGENT FEE

(The New York World asked W. G. McAdoo yesterday for any statement he cared to make regarding the $1,000,000 contingent fee from the Doheny interests. He wired this answer last night:)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—The matter of my employment in connection with Mexican affairs by the Doheny companies has already been covered in my testimony before the Senate committee and in my Chicago speech on Feb. 18, but I am willing to restate the facts.

Of course, this matter has nothing whatever to do with naval oil leases under investigation by the Senate. It seems to be an attempt to make the practice of my New York law firm and myself a political issue when it is wholly immaterial to the subject under investigation.

Throughout the Wilson administration these oil reserves were absolutely protected. I

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Dring lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

POLICEMAN ON WATCH IN STORE CATCHES ROBBERS

Two Youths, Fired on When They Try to Hold Up Kroger Manager, Surrender.

ONE OF THEM DROPS REVOLVER TO FLOOR

Real Estate Dealer Frightens Burglars From Home; Police Find Loot and Arrest Three Men.

Patrolman Henry Urspruch of Wyoming District sat in his civilian clothes, behind the stove in the rear of the Kroger store at 3942 Iowa avenue, last night. His job was to watch for "stick-up" men who have made a habit of invading Kroger stores on Saturday nights.

At 6:45 o'clock Manager Louis Brouk was weighing potatoes for a woman customer. Two young men ran in, one with a revolver which he thrust between Brouk and his customer. "Stick 'em up!" he ordered. Brouk dropped the potato bag. The customer dropped to the floor.

Urspruch leaped from his chair and fired two shots. One pierced the front plate-glass window of the store. The man with the revolver dropped his weapon and both threw up their hands.

At the station they said they were Leonard L. Helker, 19 years old, of 3418 Minnesota avenue, and James C. Rader, 23, of 3241 Michigan avenue. They admitted that they intended to rob the store.

Routs Burglars From Home.

As George Wanstrath, real estate man, approached his home at 4143 West Kossuth avenue, at 8 p. m. yesterday, he noticed the lights were on and knew something was wrong. Detectives came and searched the neighborhood. In an ashpit behind 4121 Farlin avenue they found the loot—clothing, jewelry, pre-Volstead liquor and other things—all valued at $860.

Wanstrath's property was restored and two detectives hid near the ashpit. Presently three young men strolled down the alley and were arrested. The detectives say they peered into the ashpit. The prisoners deny it. They gave their names as Thomas Smith, 16, 4612 San Francisco avenue; Sidney Bryant, 4629 Margaretta avenue, and Francis Clifford, 4612 Margaretta avenue.

Arnold Koehler, grocer at 5645 North Market street, reported to the police that he was robbed of about $500, his day's receipts, by a man who invaded his store with a revolver at 9:30 p. m.

Factory Office Held Up.

Two young robbers, both armed and masked, invaded the office of the H. C. Atkins Manufacturing Co., 745 South Third street, at 3 p. m. yesterday, and escaped with $15 in cash, after slugging Lester Crancer, 21, of 5324 Conde avenue, a bookkeeper. Crancer and Frank Bugnitz of 3535 Page boulevard were slow to respond when commanded to "Stick 'em up." Crancer was hit on the head with the butt end of a revolver and Bugnitz was knocked down by a blow in the stomach. The robbers took the money from a safe and drove south in an automobile. Crancer was treated for a lacerated scalp.

Two department store delivery chauffeurs were held up yesterday afternoon. Sam Stein, 3122 Sheridan avenue, driving for Stix, Baer & Fuller, was robbed of $58 by a man who boarded his truck in the 4100 block on Cleveland avenue. Edward Zempelman, 4650 St. Ferdinand avenue, chauffeur for Nugent's, lost $25 to a man who stepped on his running board, at 3406 Hawthorne place.

The police campaign to end crime in St. Louis resulted in the arrest of 359 suspected persons last night. Of this number 23 were of the class known as police characters with records of previous arrests. Eleven saloons were raided.

SARGENT PAINTINGS INSURED FOR $1,000,000 AT EXHIBITION

Measure Taken to Protect Owners Against Vandalism Like Spattering of "The Synagogue."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Fifty-nine oil paintings and 13 water colors by John Singer Sargent were insured for $1,000,000 today as an exhibition of the artist's work opened in Grand Central Gallery.

The insurance, it was said, was to protect the owners of the pictures against posible vandalism of the sort that resulted in the spattering of ink on Sargent's "The Synagogue" in the Boston Public Library.

The paintings, assembled from all parts of the country, are valued at from $6000 to $60,000 each. They were executed within the last 50 years, and include portraits of many prominent persons.

DRIVER ADMITS SELLING SHOES HE WAS TO DELIVER

Says He Got $2 for Two Cases, Each of Which Was Valued at $56.

Lieut. William Murphy and his detective squad were assigned yesterday to discover how cases of shoes disappeared from the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Co., 1412 Washington avenue. They followed Frank Ruhr, 1833A Benton street, a chauffeur for the Morgan Express Co., when he drove off with two cases of shoes to be delivered at 1126 St. Charles street.

Instead, Ruhr drove to the shoe shop of Alex Rochman at 1829 Franklin avenue. He left the shoes there and was arrested at Nineteenth and Benton streets. Rochman was arrested in his shop.

Ruhr said he offered to sell the shoes to Rochman for $5 a case. Rochman talked him down to $1 and took the shoes, he said. Rochman denied the purchase, but the two cases were found in his shop. They are valued at $56.40 each by the shoe company.

WIFE OF "SPLENDID AND GOOD" HUSBAND RUNS FOR CONGRESS

Mrs. Mary Hart of Illinois Says She Has Two Sons and Two Daughters Equally Good.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Mrs Mary Hart, mother of four children, came from her home in Benton, Ill., today to address the Illinois Woman's Democratic Club and tell some of the ideas behind her candidacy for Congress as a member at large from Illinois. She explained that she favors the soldiers' bonus, strict enforcement of the Volstead act, lower taxes and restricted immigration. As to her qualifications, she said:

'I am first of all the wife of a splendid and good husband, and mother of two sons and two daughters equally splendid and good. Do you think that qualifies me for the office?"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Gasoline production in the United States, established a new high record in 1923, amounting to 7,555,945,143 gallons, an increase of 21.83 per cent over 1922, according to figures issued today by the Bureau of Mines. Stocks on hand Jan. 1 were 1,074,899,650 gallons, an increase during the year of 191,106,789, or 21.62 per cent, and imports totalled 191,313,540 gallons, a gain of 207.81 per cent. The December output, 659,168,606 gallons, was a new monthly record.

$5000 Robbery at Store.

The Wagner store at Festus, Mo., was entered early yesterday morning and $5000 worth of women's suits and coats, men's suits and trousers, overalls and socks was stolen and carried away in a motor truck. Sheriff Byrd tracked the truck three miles toward St. Louis through the snow and picked up a bundle of socks that had been dropped. The robbers left as clews a jimmy and numerous finger prints.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

W. G. O'FALLON WEDS WASHINGTON GIRL

Ceremony Takes Place at Home of His Mother in St. Louis.

William Glasgow O'Fallon, 495 Argyle place, and Miss Catherine Newton Spencer of Washington, D. C., were married at 4:30 p. m. yesterday at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. W. S. McChesney Jr., in the Oxford apartments.

O'Fallon was divorced in April, 1922, by the former Cora South Brown, daughter of the late Dr. John Young Brown, on the ground of general indignities. Custody of their two sons, then 10 and 7 years old, was awarded her. An alimony settlement was made later. O'Fallon had divorced a Texas girl prior to his marriage to Miss Brown.

O'Fallon, who gave his age to the marriage license clerk as 35 and that of his bride as 25, met Miss Spencer two years ago when he was in Washington as a member of the coal commission for distribution to Southwestern railroads.

As a grandson of the late John Julius O'Fallon, head of the estate which sold O'Fallon Park to the city in 1875, O'Fallon inherited a sixth of the estate, the personalty of which was inventoried at $512,350, on the death of his grandfather in 1922.

His bride is a daughter of Mrs. Thomas H. Spencer, of Washington. After a honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. O'Fallon will reside at the Argyle place address.

MILLION WAS PROMISED M'ADOO BY E. L. DOHENY

is responsible for the oil scandal and nobody else.

Willing to Pay Ten Times the Fee.

I stated specifically to the Senate committee that my former law firm, McAdoo, Cotton & Franklin, had accepted employment nearly a year after I left the Cabinet to represent the Doheny companies in their Mexican difficulties for a fee of $100,000 and that "at that time Mr. Doheny stated that the properties of the Doheny companies, then threatened with confiscation, were worth several hundred million dollars so that the question was vital to his companies and he would be willing to pay 10 times the fee if we got for his companies a satisfactory settlement in the Mexican question. No additional fee was ever paid."

In my Chicago speech I said: "Before I proceed to discuss other matters I wish to make certain that the record of my professional employment by Mr. Doheny's companies is clear to you. As I stated to the Senate committee, my firm received a fee of $100,000 for services rendered in connection with his Mexican difficulties beginning nearly a year after I left the Cabinet and ending in the early part of 1922. Subsequently, for two years, I personally acted under a retainer of $25,000 per annum as special counsel at Los Angeles.

"As I also stated to the committee, the Mexican properties of Mr. Doheny's companies were represented as being worth several hundred million dollars and their preservation from threatened confiscation was vital, and therefore in his letter to my firm transmitting the retainer, he offered to pay additional compensation if we could get for his companies a satisfactory settlement in the Mexican question."

Both of these statements were given in full to the press and as far as I know were generally published.

Would Have Paid $900,000 More.

These statements conveyed no uncertain meaning. They meant what they say, namely, that if my firm had succeeded in getting a satisfactory settlement of the Mexican question, Mr. Doheny's companies would have paid an additional fee of $900,000. With several hundred million dollars of property at stake our services, had they been effective, would have been lightly compensated by the additional fee. In January, 1922, my New York law firm had dissolved, and, a final solution of the ever-present Mexican problem not having been reached, the matter was finally disposed of by the acceptance of $100,000 fee previously paid in full satisfaction of service rendered.

I terminated my retainer with the Doheny companies Feb. 2, not long after Mr. Doheny's testimony concerning the Fall transaction. I stated to the Senate committee the reasons therefor in the following words: "When I read in the newspapers Mr. Doheny's amazing disclosures about his transactions with ex-Secretary Fall I refrained from immediately terminating my professional services with him, as was my first impulse, although I have now done so, fearing that the newspaper accounts might be as vicious and unfair to him as Charles P. Taft's partisan organ, the Times-Star of Cincinnati, has been to me when in its issue of Feb. 10 it set out in flat headlines on its front page the following malicious, and I charge purposely malicious, libel and lie—'McAdoo received $250,000 from the Doheny interests, was paid $50,000 a year on outside while he was Secretary of the Treasury.'"

With regard to your question on other employments of my former New York law firm, I was asked by Senator Bursum, "During the time that you were counsel for Mr. Doheny, did you at any time for Mr. Doheny or in his behalf or in behalf of his companies or allied companies or the Security Investment Co. appear before the Treasury Department in behalf of obtaining a reduction of internal revenue taxes?"

I replied, "I did not."

"Wholly Immaterial."

Neither did my firm. We were never consulted about that. Certainly there was nothing in this question to suggest or imply that I should proceed to discuss all of the employments and professional relation with other clients of my New York law firm. These matters were wholly immaterial to the inquiry and have nothing to do with the oil scandal.

I stated that my firm had appeared before the Treasury and other departments in the necessary and proper practice of our profession.

I quote from my statement to the committee: "With the growth of governmental instruments the contracts of modern business of all kinds with the Government have become more frequent and necessary and no lawyer can enjoy a remunerative practice without appearing in behalf of his clients before the courts, Governmental agencies, commissions and departments. If public opinion debarred a lawyer who had held public office from such work his opportunity to make a living or acquire a competency for his family would be at an end.

"In my work, both in New York and Los Angeles, I have accepted such law business as has been offered to me which I was legally entitled to take, provided the business was honorable and proper. In addition to arguing cases in the courts I have argued cases before some of the Federal departments and have filed briefs and memoranda in these departments, among others the State Department and Treasury Department and the Shipping Board."

"Law Practice Not an Issue."

Clients of my New York law firm are unrelated to the oil inquiry and without the permission of such clients and the consent of my former law partners such information is clearly inadmissable. My private practice is not a public issue, but if the law practice and the private business of candidates for the presidency, Republicans and Democrats alike, is to be the issue in the forthcoming campaign, instead of principles and policies which concern the welfare and future of the American people, then I suggest that all candidates for the presidency be asked to appear before an investigating committee of the Senate or of the House and give the intimate details of their professional and private affairs. I will make no objection to the jurisdiction of such a committee if all other candidates will do likewise.

Of course, all of this has nothing to do with the oil scandal. The real point is to discover and to punish all responsible public officials who have betrayed the public interests and all others who have been guilty of wrong doing in this connection.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when properly prepared and taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest quality Willow charcoal powdered to extreme fineness, then compressed in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Many physicians advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. They are also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores. For a free trial send your name and address to F. A. Stuart Co., 10 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich. You get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

County Republican League Requests Another Day.

Request that an additional registration day be provided in St. Louis County was filed with the Board of Election Commissioners at Clayton yesterday by the Republican League of St. Louis County.

The petition declares that because of failure of many citizens to understand the new registration law they are ineligible to vote at the special constitutional amendment election Tuesday and at the municipal elections in April. Zinc and Copper Banish Rheumatism

Remarkable New Discovery Proving Boon to Thousands

Application for patent covering what is considered to be the most unique discovery of its kinds has just been made by the Eureka Manufacturing Co., 306 Jefferson Av., Memphis, Tenn. After years of experiment they discovered that an especially constructed, chemically treated set of heel plates, one zinc and one copper, placed in the shoes of the sufferer will, by a scientific process, quickly rid the wearer of rheumatic pain, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tone up the system in general. Experiments in hundreds of cases have proved this discovery to be a boon to all sufferers of the above ailments, especially as it eliminates the use of medicine which, in many instances, proves to be of only temporary value. They are anxious to prove their statements by sending any sufferer of rheumatism a special liberal trial offer. Write them today.

Bad Luck and the Devil Pursued Him

In 1910 I had typhoid fever; since then severe stomach and liver trouble, which no medicine or doctor touched, until two years ago I got a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which proved the first ray of light in 13 years." ARREST EXPECTED FOR STUDENT 'RUM' PARTY

Warrant Issued at Columbia, Mo., in Investigation Into Sorority Dance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 23.—Sheriff Brown announced tonight that he soon expected arrest of the person suspectedof supplying liquor for a sorority dance here a week ago, which resulted in the suspension or expulsion of 15 students of the University of Missouri. Prosecuting Attorney Hulen issued a warrant late this afternoon for the arrest of the suspect, but, as the case involved may be a felony, both he and the Sheriff declined to make public the person's name. Neither would they say whether a man or woman was sought, or whether the person resided in Columbia.

"If a certain person is at home tonight there will be an arrest," the Sheriff declared, expressing regret that there had been so much delay in the matter, and that his office had not been notified more promptly of the fact that liquor was being served at the party.

Student's Mother Reporteil Involved.

Rumors have involved a Kansas City woman, saying that she brought the liquor here in her trunk and served it in a room in the hotel in which the dance hall was, and that her son, a student at the university, was among guests at the party. There was a report this afternoon that this woman has gone to Chicago.

When the report of the connection of liquor with the affair, which had previously been regarded as one involving only infraction of university rules, became current, Prosecuting Attorney Hulen called upon university officers to produce the record of the university committee which investigated the affair. The warrant which he issued today followed this investigation and a conference with Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the university, yesterday.

No Statement From University.

There has been a variety of reports concerning the merrymaking which followed the dance, and of the attempts of university officials to line up the students whom they sought. One young man and a young woman are reported to have changed automobiles three times during the night in a vain effort to elude the pursuing faculty, and another explained that he kept a friend out much later than he really wanted to because of the close guard which university officers were keeping upon the house in which she roomed.

One student involved in the affair insisted that only one boy was intoxicated, and that none of the girls had done more than "take a sip of liquor," but, judging from the list of special delivery letters which issued from the university executive office yesterday morning, university officials thought a sip was a sip too much. University officers have steadfastly declined to issue any statement regarding the affair.

HOW GRIESEDIECK BREWERY GOT ITS BEER PERMIT BACK

Rules in Force at Time Made Reissuance Mandatory, Washington Enforcement Officials Say.

REVOCATION TO BE SOUGHT BY NATIONS

He Will Ask That Even Its Non-Alcoholic Beverage Privilege Be Taken Away Permanently.

Griesedieck Bros. Brewery, chief source of supply of the real beer which has been on sale about town recently, may be deprived permanently of the privilege of making and selling even non-alcoholic beverage.

A demand for revocation of the Griesedieck permit, which authorizes that company to make real beer and then dealcoholize it for conversion into a legal beverage, will be made by Gus. O. Nations, head of the local group of prohibition enforcement agents, Nations has announced. Under the rules of the prohibition enforcement department, revocation of such a permit may be made permanent.

Nations and his men raided the brewery Thursday, just ahead of a group of special Federal investigators from Washington headquarters who were about to make a raid. The purpose of the Washington investigators was to establish or disprove reports that the beer sold throuhout the city was "protected," and that two Missouri State officials had shared in the "protection" arrangements.

Got Permit Under Old Rule.

As the Griesedieck brewery was an old offender, having pleaded guilty to manufacture of beer of illegal alcoholic content, the question has arisen why it has been permitted to carry on an ostensible "beverage" business, which has served to cloak the making of real beer. The Post-Dispatch yesterday made inquiry into the circumstances under which the company got the permit by which it has operated recently.

The permit was issued Sept. 16, 1922. Officials at prohibition enforcement headquarters in Washington said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent that the issuance of the permit, at that time and under the rules then prevailing, was mandatory. It was then more than a year since the revocation of its former permit, which occurred in July, 1921.

At that time, according to J. J. Britt, solicitor of the prohibition enforcement department in Washington, it was the rule of the department that permits should be issued to any concern which had not had a revocation within one year. Since then, the rule has been changed and issuance of such permits is now discretionary with the Commissioner.

Senator Reed's Connection.

Officials of the department at Washington said the permit was not obtained through political influence. Attorney Vance Higgs of St. Louis, who formerly was in the Federal service, represented the company in the matter.

Senator James A. Reed, in St. Louis yesterday, said that he remembered having asked the department to review the Griesedieck case with a view to issuing a new permit.

"My attention was called to the case," Senator Reed said, "and it was represented to me that an injustice had been done and an unwarranted hardship imposed on the brewery. I asked the department to review the case, but I took no part in the subsequent proceedings. My office is called upon every day to make applications to different departments, and I did this just as I would have done for anyone else."

Senator Reed said he did not remember definitely who spoke to him about the matter, but it might have been "some of the Griesediecks." He said he did not remember having asked any other Senator to intercede in behalf of the brewery, but that someone might have made such a request of another Senator without his knowledge.

Nations Did Not Tell Chief.

It developed yesterday that L. F. DeHart of Kansas City, Federal prohibition director for Missouri, was not informed by Nations of his plan to raid the Griesedieck Brewery, though Nations was in Kansas City Wednesday, the day before the raid.

DeHart said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent yesterday that, since he had read reports of the raids and the attendant charges, he was not surprised that Nations had not notified him of his plan. He added:

"I have no chages to make until the investigation warrants them. Then if I find that there is anything wrong with any member of my force, he will be given the full punishment of the law."

DeHart said he had no personal knowledge that special agents from Washington had tapped telephone wires in Kansas City leading to an office used by State officials alleged to be involved in the beer charges.

"I knew that there was some kind of an investigation going on, but did not know the details of it," DeHart said.

Tells of Beer Sale Proposal.

William Weinrich, a St. Charles butcher, who represented St. Charles County in the Lower House at the last session of the Legislature, yesterday told a Post-Dispatch reporter of a proposal, which he understood was made to his friend, John Fischbach, a St. Charles brewer, for the illegal sale of 180 barrels of beer. Fischbach would not confirm the story, though he did not wholly deny it.

Fischbach's brewing concern last Christmas lost its permit for making cereal beverage by dealcoholizing beer. The permit was withdrawn because the company was caught sending out beer, which the company said was a Christmas gift to a few of its employes.

At that time, the Fischbach establishment had 180 barrels of beer on hand, ready to be dealcoholized. As it could not proceed with the work, the beer was left in the basement.

Weinrich said he received a telegram Jan. 26 from a friend in Kansas City, telling him that a Mr. Scott would be in St. Charles that night, on important business, and asking Weinrich to meet him at the Galt House. Subsequently Weinrich met the visitor who introduced himself as F. O. Scott of Springfield, Mo.

"He wished to meet John Fischbach, and I took him to the brewery and introduced him to Fischbach," said Weinrich. "He had to spead loudly, as John's hearing is not acute.

"I heard Scott say, 'You will have to get that beer out of the cellar before Monday.' I paid no attention to the rest of the conversation.

"Later I heard that the man had proposed to Fischbach that they move the beer out and sell it at $20 a barrel, or $3600, and that Scott should get $1000 as his share. My understanding was that Scott, by inuendo, had represented himself as being connected with prohibition enforcement.

Federal Agents on Guard.

"I repeated to Fischbach what I had heard and told him he would be a fool to give the fellow any money. Fischbach said he would not have anything to do with the proposition and denied a rumor that he had already paid Scott $250.

"Well, the following Monday, Federal agents came to the brewery, and spent two days and two nights there, keeping guard over the beer. The guard was removed after Tuesday night. That was the last I heard of the matter."

Weinrich added that his friend in Kansas City, who had requested him to meet Scot, was not connected with prohibition enforcement. He declined to give the man's name.

Fischbach, when told by a Post-Dispatch reporter of Weinrich's story, at first refused to discuss the case. His father, who was present, however, urged him to make a statement.

"That beer is in the basement now," Fischbach then said. "I will show it to you—well, no, I won't do that, but the officers can see it whenever they wish. I don't remember about any particular proposal being made by a Mr. Scott, but I have had several propositions made to me to get the beer out and sell it, and I have replied every time that the beer will stay right where it is until we have legal authority to convert it into non-alcoholic beverage and sell it."

ENTERTAINMENT BY FIREMEN

Funds Sought for Organization of Concert Band.

Funds for the organization of a concert band composed of city firemen will be raised at two benefit entertainments to be given at Community Center Hall, Grand boulevard and Vista avenues, the nights of March 31 and April 1. The band, which is now being schooled by Charles Humfeld, will be a feature of the benefit.

There also will be a minstrel first part in which members of the Fire Department will appear, to be followed by a vaudeville program consisting of acts donated by local theaters. Fire Chief Panzer will personally direct the entertainments.

STATE COURT REDUCES DOCKET CONGESTION

Tribunal Now Within Slightly More Than a Year of Being Even With Appeals.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—Congestion of litigation in the Missouri Supreme Court gradually has been reduced by the court until now it is within slightly more than one year of being up with its docket, in marked contrast with the acute condition of several years ago, when the court was between three and four years behind in hearing appeals of civil cases brought up from the lower courts.

At this stage the court is about holding its own and further reduction in the delays is not probable in the near future, it was said today, due to a steady increase in the number of continuances sought by lawyers, and reduction by the last Legislature of the Supreme Court commissioners from six to four.

During 1923 the Supreme Court disposed of 744 cases, compared to 767 in 1922, the records of Supreme Court Clerk Jacob Allen show. On Jan. 1, last, a total of 956 cases remained on the docket, undisposed of, compared to 743 cases undisposed of, on Jan. 1, 1923.

However, the 956 cases now on the docket, undisposed of, really represent a net total of 645 to be disposed of, Allen pointed out, as litigants in 310 appeals pending in tax bill cases, growing out of the construction of the Mill Creek sewer in St. Louis, have agreed to abide by the decision of the Supreme Court in two cases selected from the 310 appeals.

The recent average time for disposition of appeals, from the time they are brought up from the lower courts, including continuances obtained by lawyers and other causes of delay, was estimated by Allen at two years.

Year Behind in Work.

With the court within a year of its dockets, Allen said, civil appeals are heard by the Court within about one year after the term to which they are made returnable. That is, an appeal filed now and made returnable at the April term, 1924, probably would be heard by the Court during the April term, 1925. The time in which the Court hands down an opinion, after submission of the case, varies widely.

Application for continuances by lawyers in cases before the Supreme Court has increased nearly 50 per cent with the reduction of the docket to the present point, Allen said, the continuances sought increasing as the reductions of the docket lessens the time available to attorneys, after filing of appeals. Approximately 50 per cent of the last October term docket went over to the next term on continuances. In the majority of instances it takes the attorneys in civil appeal cases about a year to prepare and file their printed abstracts and briefs, and as a result there is slight prospect of civil cases being heard much earlier than a year after they are docketed, Allen said.

Much of the delay in hearing of civil cases is due to criminal appeals having the right of way in the Supreme Court. All criminal cases automatically advance on the docket and are heard at the first term of court after the appeal is filed, barring delays by the attorneys.

Other Cases Advanced.

Other cases, which, by law, are advanced over civil appeals, include all appeals affecting decisions rendered by the Public Service Commission; second appeals, which come back to the Court after having been previously remanded to the lower court on the first appeal; all applications for original writs, such as habeas corpus, prohibition and certiorari, and appeal cases involving interpretation of the election laws.

The Supreme Court also has made a practice of advancing on the docket all cases involving interpretation of new laws enacted by the Legislature, or involving matters of great public importance. Priority of these various cases hold back the other civil appeals on the docket.

In numerous instances appeals first heard in either division 1 or 2 of the court, then are handled again by transfer to the court en banc. Forty-five cases were thus handled twice last year, as compared to 38 in 1922. The 744 cases handled last year included 471 disposed of by opinions, 186 disposed of by other means such as dismiss-

Tribunal Now Within Slightly More Than a Year of Being Even With Appeals.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—Congestion of litigation in the Missouri Supreme Court gradually has been reduced by the court until now it is within slightly more than one year of being up with its docket, in marked contrast with the acute condition of several years ago, when the court was between three and four years behind in hearing appeals of civil cases brought up from the lower courts.

At this stage the court is about holding its own and further reduction in the delays is not probable in the near future, it was said today, due to a steady increase in the number of continuances sought by lawyers, and reduction by the last Legislature of the Supreme Court commissioners from six to four.

During 1923 the Supreme Court disposed of 744 cases, compared to [illegible]67 in 1922, the records of Supreme Court Clerk Jacob Allen show. On Jan. 1, last, a total of 956 cases remained on the docket, undisposed of, compared to 743 cases undisposed of, on Jan. 1, 1923.

However, the 956 cases now on the docket, undisposed of, really represent a net total of 645 to be disposed of, Allen pointed out, as litigants in 310 appeals pending in tax bill cases, growing out of the construction of the Mill Creek sewer in St. Louis, have agreed to abide by the decision of the Supreme Court in two cases selected from the 310 appeals.

The recent average time for disposition of appeals, from the time they are brought up from the lower courts, including continuances obtained by lawyers and other causes of delay, was estimated by Allen at two years.

Year Behind in Work.

With the court within a year of its dockets, Allen said, civil appeals are heard by the Court within about one year after the term to which they are made returnable. That is, an appeal filed now and made returnable at the April term, 1924, probably would be heard by the Court during the April term, 1925. The time in which the Court hands down an opinion, after submission of the case, varies widely.

Application for continuances by lawyers in cases before the Supreme Court has increased nearly [illegible]0 per cent with the reduction of the docket to the present point, Allen said, the continuances sought increasing as the reductions of the docket lessens the time available to attorneys, after filing of appeals. Approximately 50 per cent of the last October term docket went over to the next term on continuances. In the majority of instances it takes the attorneys in civil appeal cases about a year to prepare and file their printed abstracts and briefs, and as a result there is slight prospect of civil cases being heard much earlier than a year after they are docketed, Allen said.

Much of the delay in hearing of civil cases is due to criminal appeals having the right of way in the Supreme Court. All criminal cases automatically advance on the docket and are heard at the first term of court after the appeal is filed, barring delays by the attorneys.

Other Cases Advanced.

Other cases, which, by law, are advanced over civil appeals, include all appeals affecting decisions rendered by the Public Service Commission; second appeals, which come back to the Court after having been previously remanded to the lower court on the first appeal; all applications for original writs, such as habeas corpus, prohibition and certiorari, and appeal cases involving interpretation of the election laws.

The Supreme Court also has made a practice of advancing on the docket all cases involving interpretation of new laws enacted by the Legislature, or involving matters of great public importance. Priority of these various cases hold back the other civil appeals on the docket.

In numerous instances appeals first heard in either division 1 or 2 of the court, then are handled again by transfer to the court en banc. Forty-five cases were thus handled twice last year, as compared to 38 in 1922. The 744 cases handled last year included 471 disposed of by opinions, 186 disposed of by other means such as dismissal by the appellant or by the court, and 87 applications for writs denied. The court granted 49 applications for writs, these cases being included in the 471 opinions.

Increase in Appeals.

Steady increases in the number of appeals and applications carried to the Supreme Court are shown by the total of 1092 docketed in 1923, as compared to 470 in 1900. In the latter year 434 appeals and 36 applications for writs were filed. In 1910, 438 appeals and 74 applications for writs were filed, a total of 512; in 1915, 530 appeals, 119 writ applications, total 649; 1920, 522 appeals, 159 writ applications, total 681; 1922, 614 appeals, 198 writ applications, total 812.

The records on the rapidly increasing number of applications for writs show about 50 per cent of them are writs of certiorari to the courts of appeal, to bring records of cases up to the higher court for review. The records further show that an average of one-third of the applications for writs are granted and less than one-half of those granted are successful on final hearing by the court.

MACDONALD TAKES UP ITALY'S JUBALAND CLAIM

May Divorce Issue From That of the Dodacanese Islands in Aegean.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb 23.—Premier Macdonald has discussed with Marquis Della Lorretta, the Italian Ambassador, the question of Italy's claim in Jubaland, the eastern section of Keanya colony in East Africa. It is believed the Premier assured the Ambassador that the British Government was prepared to deal on a sympathetic and generous basis with the Italian requests for a larger share of this land, which adjoins Italian Somaliland.

The Government, it is understood, may even see fit to dissociate the Jubaland issue from that of the Dodacanese Islands in the Aegean Sea, the disposition of which the Italians have always insisted was wholly unrelated to the East African question. If the Government divorces the two matters it will reverse the policy of the former Cabinet, which sought to strike a bargain with Italy by granting her claims in the former German territory in Africa in return for the retrocession to Greece of the Dodacanese Islands, which Italy holds by virtue of the pact of London.

The Italian view is that the disposition of the islands is a matter for settlement between Italy and Greece.

Traveling Man Sleeps Only Two Hours

Mr. Thornson Had Gas on Stomach 25 Years

"For 25 years I had chronic indigestion and gas fermentation. Everything I ate fermented and I often slept only two hours at night. Tried all the so-called stomach remedies but benefit lasted only short time. Six months ago I took Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) and I feel fine and want to sincerely thank the discoverers of this system." (Signed) Al Thornson.

Intestinal Antiseptic

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows: It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system.' (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and Enderle Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

POLICE SEEK MOTIVE FOR COUPLE'S MURDER

Bullet-Riddled Body of Chicagoan Found in Snowbank—That of Wife in Flat.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Efforts to solve the mystery in the slayings of a man and woman, tenants of a flat in which the woman's body was found after the man's body had been discovered in a snowbank at Argo, a suburb, revealed today that the couple was Mr. and Mrs. John Duffy, but a positive motive for the killings is still lacking.

The investigation at first became enmeshed in a tangle of confused identifications. Duffy was for a time believed to be John Dougherty, wanted for murder in Philadelphia, and tonight the police are still uncertain as to whether he may be the man wanted in Philadelphia and known there as Dougherty. His wife was believed for a time to be the wife of Jack Horton, from whom the Duffys subleased their apartment, but late today was positively identified by her brother as the wife of Duffy.

Wife's Body Found on Divan.

Duffy's bullet-riddled body was found early yesterday in a snowbank at Argo. After watching his apartment all day the police last night smashed the door and found his wife's body lying on a divan, with two bullets through her head. Jack Horton and his wife, who also occupied the apartment, have not been found, but were reported to have been in Indianapolis last Wednesday. The police have asked Indianapolis and Louisville, Ky., authorities to try to find and apprehend them.

Inquests into the deaths of Duffy and his wife were opened today, but were continued until a later date to allow time for further investigation. Lester Exley, brother of Mrs. Duffy, testified that she was Miss Mae Belle Exley of Norwalk, O., and that her parents resided there now. She married Duffy in Louisville Feb. 14, he said. He said he did not know Duffy, but his wife said she had been to call on the Duffys early this week and had met him. Later she identified Duffy's body.

Three Motives Considered.

Among letters found in the Duffy apartment was one from Duby Downing of Ashland, Ky., to Mrs. Duffy declaring, "I am surprised about Jack doing such a dirty trick." Louisville and Ashland authorities have been requested to question the woman.

Duffy's slaying at first was thought to be the outgrowth of a beer war here which has cost the lives of half a dozen men. Tonight, however, the police were uncertain whether jealousy, gang rivalry or some other motive prompted the killings. Neither were they certain whether Duffy and his wife both were slain in the Duffy apartment. Search is being made for the Hortons in the belief that they will be able to give much information.

Significance of Amendment No. 5

Insanity comes out of disease. Much disease can be prevented. Why not prevent the diseases which cause insanity? Is it economy to spend millions for the care of the insane when at relatively low cost insanity can be prevented?

So may we ask about consumptives, paupers, delinquents and criminals for whose care we must maintain great institutions. Let us cut down the number of these wards of the State by health education, public health service and school, home and community hygiene.

HERBERT SPENCER said: "The government which does not diligently protect the health of its citizens is neither intelligent nor moral."

Neglect the nation's health if you wish to make it decadent.

To increase taxes neglect the public health.

Would you lower taxes? Then prevent disease; for one-half our State and local taxes are assessed on account of preventable disease.

DISRAELI said: "The care of the public health is the first duty of a statesman. God give us a statesman."

Conserve the public health and then the conservation of natural resources and the productivity of the people will follow.

Raise the health of the farmer and he will provide for you.

Disease is our greatest enemy although it largely may be prevented; let us strive for the ounce of prevention which is worth the pound of cure.

ROSENAU says: "Let us not forget that the entire child goes to school—body, soul and mind. Any system of education which ignores one or the other of these factors will be to the disadvantage of the child."

If Amendment No. 5 be ratified by the vote of the people of the State, it will give to children and adults living in the country the right to health and life and to such public health service as is given to people living in the larger cities of the State. It is their right and they should have it. Give them the chance.

MELLON RENEWS ATTACK ON GARNER PLAN AND BONUS

Secretary Asserts Substitute Tax Bill Would Result in Loss of Revenue of $620,017,000.

"NO POSSIBILITY OF SOLDIER PAYMENT"

Says Compensation Cannot Be Paid Within Estimated Surplus Under Any of the Three Plans Proposed

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon dealt another blow to the Garner plan of tax reduction today, stating specifically that the Garner plan would result in a loss of revenue amounting to $620,017,000, while the estimated Treasury surplus for 1924 is only $329,639,624, and for 1925, $395,681,634.

Secretary Mellon also devoted his attention to the soldier bonus, saying that under none of the three tax plans proposed to Congress is there any revenue in sight which would finance the soldier bill.

Mellon's direct frontal attack is contained in a letter addressed to Representative F. H. La Guardia (Rep.) of New York, who had asked for specific data on the possibility of financing a bonus bill under any of the three plans and under a scheme of his own, in which the normal rates should be 2 and 5 per cent, with a graduated surtax reaching 40 per cent.

In answer to the Mellon broadside, Representative Garner replied that under the terms of his measure, the revenues for the first two years of its operation would be greater than under the Mellon plan.

Soldier Bloc Demands Action.

The re-entrance of Mellon into the tax reduction fight was accompanied by renewed activity on the part of the bonus advocates. The soldier bloc held a meeting this morning and later in the day conferred with Republican Floor Leader Longworth, demanding that a bill be reported out one week after the final disposition of the tax bill. Longworth informed them that the situation had not changed relative to the bonus bill. He called the attention of the soldier bloc to the fact that the Republican conference had instructed the Ways and Means Committee to report out the bonus bill as soon as possible after the tax bill had been handled. He said he assumed this would be done, but the Ways and Means Committee could not take it up until the tax bill had been finally acted upon and that it would have to be given sufficient time within which to digest the various bills put before it. Still another bonus bill, resembling in some respects but differing in others from that introduced last week by Representative Andrew of Massachusetts will be given to the House Monday or Tuesday by Representative Fish (Rep.) of New York.

Mellon Discusses Various Plans.

Secretary Mellon's letter to Representative La Guardia says:

"I have your letter of Feb. 10. I am inclosing herewith Treasury estimates of the effect of my recommendations for tax reduction in the form originally submitted by me to Mr. Green, and a statement showing the effect of the Garner plan as originally proposed. In the reports of the Ways and Means Committee of the House there appears the estimate by the Treasury of the effect of the tax reduction in the form in which the bill was presented to the House. I may summarize the loss of revenue to the Government under the various plans as follows:

	Personal income.	Special taxes.
Mellon plan	$222,900,000	$100,000,000
Garner plan	511,977,000	108,040,000
Ways and Means Com. plan	233,400,000	108,040,000
Totals—
Mellon plan	$322,900,000
Garner plan	620,017,000
Committee plan	341,440,000

"The estimated surplus as appears in the budget message of the President to Congress for the fiscal year 1924 is $329,639,624 and for the fiscal year 1925, $395,681,634. The estimated cost of the bonus bill in the form vetoed by President Harding is shown in my letter of Dec. 18, 1923, to Representative Andrew, copy of which is enclosed.

Says Bonus Cannot Be Paid.

"From these figures it is obvious a bonus cannot be paid within the estimated surplus if any of the three plans is adopted, nor would the estimated surplus justify the payment of such a bonus if any of the three plans were adopted in the respect of making the normal tax rates 2 per cent and 5 per cent and the surtax rates graduated up to 40 per cent, which are figures specifically mentioned by you.

"You ask me what rate would have to be adopted in order to pay this bonus. You have the estimated figures before you. It is obvious that if all tax reductions be foregone, a certain amount of revenue would be available to the Government for such purposes as might be determined. If any plan of tax reduction be adopted and additional taxes of other character be imposed, the effect on the Government revenue could only be determined when the specific nature of the proposed taxes was given.

"I regret that unless you can present some comprehensive plan by which you propose to raise the necessary money or in what particular you propose the taxes shall not be reduced, I am unable to give you specific figures."

Excess Profits Tax Beaten.

Administration plans under consideration to veto the tax reduction bill should it come out of Congress in its present form had a sobering effect today upon the House, which took up the Frear amendment to apply an excess profit tax.

The amendment finally was defeated by a vote of 74 to 137, but after considerable wrangling and points of order which have considerably delayed final action on the bill.

Chairman Green expressed weariness tonight in endeavoring to hurry the consideration of the bill, saying he found himself in the position of a man driving a balky team which reared up and down, indulging in considerable action but getting nowhere.

Representative Clancy of Michigan, who is sponsoring the movement to take the tax off automobiles, expects to get consideration of his amendment about Tuesday.

Plans under consideration for an agreement among the Republican leaders and the insurgents who voted for the Garner rates were still under consideration today.

"There is still time enough to discuss these matters," Representative Longworth said, "since we probably will not vote on the bill until Thursday. I still hope to have the Garner rates taken out of the bill."

"Light Beer" Amendment Lost.

Representative Hill (Rep., Md.) attempted to write a "light beer" amendment into the Frear proposal for an excess profits tax today. He obtained small comfort. A substitute amendment offered by him to permit the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer and levy a tax of 20 cents a gallon on it was voted down, 226 to 8.

Representative Hawes (Dem., Mo.) opposed the excess profits tax and referred to the leadership of Wisconsin in the offering of provisions to the tax bill, looking to heavier burdens on the taxpayers.

"Today again Wisconsin leads," he said. "This is a Wisconsin proposition and the men who are for it on the Democratic side are following the lead of Wisconsin and the Republicans who vote for it are following the gentleman from Wisconsin, and neither side is in favor of it."

Longworth said the Democratic whip, Mr. Oldfield (Dem., Ark.), was holding the time on the Democratic side for the excess profits tax amendment.

"But when you count the votes," Hawes said, "you will see that there are not many behind him."

Chairman Green (Rep., Ia.), said that perhaps a majority of the people of Iowa favored an excess profits tax, thinking it was a tax on the profiteers. He declared it was not, but a very burdensome tax on them. Green said it was adopted during the war because the Government needed money, but that now it was not justified, and, besides, was a double tax.

Pikers Beat Kansas Aggie Quint, 28-24

Seago's Ability to Break Through Opponents' Defense Enables Washington Team to Break Long Losing Streak.

SCORE 16 TO 13 AFTER FIRST HALF

Pikeway Center's Shots Come at Crucial Moments, Twice Breaking Ties — 17 Fouls Are Called.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 23.—The ability of Seago, Washington center, to break through the Kansas Aggies' defense won a basketball game tonight for his team by a 28 to 24 score. Seago scored six field goals and a free throw for 13 of his team's points and his counters came at crucial moments, twice breaking ties and taking his team out of tight situations.

The game was fast and more than ordinarily rough. Seventeen fouls were called by Referee Edmonds, eleven on Washington and six on the Kansas Aggies. At the start the game developed into a nip and tuck affair and continued with little scoring until past the half-way mark in the first period.

With the score tied 6 to 6 Seago sunk a counter and Wagner counted a free throw, placing the Pikers in the van by three points. They held their lead until half time, the score then being 16 to 3.

Again in the second half the Pikers held their advantage for 15 minutes, but could increase it only by one point. With five minutes left to play, Doolen, Aggie left guard, dribbled through the Washington defense and arched in a field goal. Wann, forward, duplicated his teammate's stunt a few seconds later and the score was tied at 22-all.

Once more Seago rose to the occasion with a quick shot which flopped in the net for two points and Lyle followed with a field goal which put the game on ice.

Seago was sent to the showers before the game closed with four personals tallied against him in the score book.

Bunker, Aggie left forward, was high point man for his team, scoring four field goals and two free throws.

The victory broke the losing streak of the Pikers, who had dropped six consecutive games.

FOUR RECORDS FALL AS ILLINOIS TRACK TEAM DEFEATS NOTRE DAME

By the Associated Press.

CAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 23.—Illinois broke four track records in the Armory here today to beat Notre Dame in the opening track meet of the season, 72 1-3 to 22 2-3. Scoring firsts in every event except the broad jump and half mile, the Illini took all three places in three regular events, the 75-yard dash, high hurdles and quarter-mile, as well as in a special 300-yard and low hurdle races.

H. T. Evans of Illinois, cut a fifth of a second off the record in the 300-yard dash and Eddie Mieher broke the two-mile record made by Mike Mason in 1916. The other records were set by Fred Schildhauer in the shot put, and Laurie Wright, who broke the high jump record held by H. M. Osborne, present national Decathlon champion.

Piker Wrestling Team Is Defeated

Missouri Gains Two Falls, a Forfeit and Two Decisions—Brewer and Pierson Win.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 23.—Missouri defeated Washington, 19 to 10, in a dual wrestling meet here tonight. Washington's ten points were scored on falls by Brewer and Pierson, while Landers and Fergasun of Missouri gained falls, Milligan aded five points when the heavyweight match was forfeited to him, and Underhill and Peck each gained decisions.

Landers started with a flash for Missouri, pinning Abe Weiser of Washington in 55 seconds, the fastest fall of the evening. Brewer was on top of Blinder of Missouri from the start in the 115-pound class and gained his fall after a fast match.

Jerry Butler of the Tigers worked hard to keep his shoulders off the mat in the 135-pound class, with some clever bridging in the first minute, but succumbed to Pierson of the Pikers before three minutes had passed.

Underhill's decision came after he had been on top throughout his match with Muench, who narrowly escaped a fall at the last, the time whistle saving him. Peck of the Tigers used the scissors consistently on Hirsch, but the latter escaped twice by rolling off the mat. He was warned several times against trying for a toehold when Peck was using the body scissors.

Fergasun administered a lot of punishment to Webb, the latter getting out of a tight place several times with a lot of clever bridging, but finally losing by a fall.

The summary:

115 pounds—Landers, Missouri, defeated Weiser, Washington, with a half-Nelson and crotch hold. Fall in 55 seconds.

125 pounds—Brewer, Washington, defeated Blinder, Missouri, with body chancery and half-Nelson. Fall in 4 minutes, 11 seconds.

135 pounds—Pierson, Washington, defeated Butler, Missouri, with top straddle. Fall in 2 minutes, 28 seconds.

145 pounds—Underhill, Missouri, won decision over Muench, Washington. Advantage, 1 minutes.

158 pounds—Peck, Missouri, won decision over Hirsch, Washington. Advantage, 8 minutes, 15 seconds.

175 pounds—Fergasun, Missouri, defeated Webb, Washington, with half-Nelson and body chancery. Fall in 7 minutes, 29 seconds.

Heavyweight—Milligan, Missouri, awarded fall on forfeit.

Referee—Cupneen, Kansas City Athletic Club.

NAVY DEFEATS ARMY AT BASKETBALL, 34—29

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Navy defeated the Army at basketball today, 34 to 29. The contest was hard fought, Navy leading most of the way but always by a small margin. The victory of the Middies gave them the "rubber" as the games had stood two victories apiece, until today's contest was decided.

Thomas Case to Be Re-Opened When School Principals Meet

Central High Authorities Will Insist on Strict Interpretation of League Rules and Will Take Case to Highest Court in Local School Circles.

High school basketball teams, contrary to their usual busy Saturday evenings, marked time last night. No games were played in the High School League owing to a suspension of league activities in all sports pending a meeting of principals of the five high schools to reopen the Thomas case.

It was stated yesterday that such a meeting would not be possible this week owing to the absence from the city of some of the principals. This means that another idle Saturday will probably occur this week-end. In fact, the resumption of athletic activities is considered doubtful for the remainder of the season, in some quarters.

This is due to the attitude of the Central High School authorities following the decision of the Athletic Board in the case of Thomas, star baseball, football and basketball player.

Central Cites League Rules.

When a recent meeting of the athletic board decided that Player Thomas was ineligible because of his age—over 21, according to the finding of the board—and that not only the basket games of the present season, but the Central football and baseball games in which he participated last year were declared forfeited, Central took exceptions.

Rules were cited to show that the board had no right to forfeit any games except those on which protests had been legally filed—that is to say, more than 48 hours before the game was scheduled. Central alleges no protests whatever were made in the case of Thomas' connection with football and baseball.

But the board already has forfeited these games and has ruled that the Yale Bowl, emblematic of the championships should be surrendered by Central authorities to the second-place eleven.

Central officials are determined to contest this point and at a meeting of the principals, which, as stated, will be called soon, will bring up the matter again. At the recent meeting the vote was 4 to 1 in favor of depriving Central of honors because of Thomas' participation in three branches of sport.

Walker Gives His Views.

Coach Mike Walker, speaking of the Thomas incident yesterday, expressed himself in substance as follows:

"The entire situation is unfortunate, but we feel that we are in the right. Our certification of Thomas' age came from two sources: His parents, who now reside at Sandoval, Ill., and an affidavit from a priest of that city, attesting the age of Thomas. Thomas was

KNIGHT DEFEATS DAILEY IN FINAL MATCH OF SQUASH TOURNAMENT

Harry Knight defeated John B. Dailey in the final match of the Class B squash tennis tournament of the University Club yesterday afternoon. The scores were 15—8, 15—3, 9—15 and 18—17.

Dailey was slow to start and Knight, by hard driven angle shots, took the first two games before his opponent hit his stride. Dailey won the third game and the fourth was forced to deuce. Knight, after a hard struggle, won.

There were 64 entrants in the tournament.

The University Club championship tournament will open on Saturday, March 8. Andy McCreery is the present champion.

Plans for the invasion of Cincinnati by the University Club team have been abandoned because of the injury McCreery suffered in the final match of the Western tournament. Although he is able to play again, he is forced to favor the injured leg and other members of the team decided to forego the trip inasmuch as he would be unable to go.

SOCCER CUP GAMES IN NEW YORK AND DETROIT POSTPONED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Serious delay in the schedule of the United States Football Association cup competition was encountered today when two important games were postponed because of inclement weather.

The Bethlehem and Fall River teams were scheduled to meet tomorrow at Dexter Park, Brooklyn, in the Eastern division final. Snow and ice covered the field and forced a postponement.

In Detroit, the Western semifinal between the Chicago Bricklayers and Detroit Celtics was called off because of a severe storm. This is the third week the Detroit game has been postponed.

Supporters of the Fall River club had chartered a steamer to take them to New York and by the postponement of the game they have forfeited the cost of engaging the boat, $2000.

The winner of the Bricklayers-Celtics game will meet the Vespers at St. Louis, March 9.

Firpo-Lodge Bout Again Postponed; Scheduled Tonight

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 23.

LUIS FIRPO, Argentine heavyweight boxer, will meet Farmer Lodge of the United States here tonight in a 15-round bout. Rain forced the postponement of the bout last night. It was the second time weather prevented the holding of the bout.

Both fighters said yesterday that they had been benefited by the postponement from last week and each said he was in the best possible condition. Rumors that Lodge was to "lay down" to Firpo caused the boxing commission yesterday to inform Firpo that he would be expected to finish Lodge in the quickest possible time.

Tilden to Play Alonso in Final

Champion Defeats Washburn in Straight Sets in Indoor Tennis Semifinal.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 23.—In a match replete with sensational features, Manuel Alonso, Spain, today defeated R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls, former national champion, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3 in the annual indoor invitation tennis tournament of the Buffalo Tennis and Squash Club. Murray's dazzling service and his perfect volleys from mid-court won him the first set.

In the second, Alonso's backhand was brought into play and he repeatedly passed Murray at the net or at the side lines, forcing the Niagara Falls man into numerous errors.

Alonso continued his fast pace in third set and led at five games to one when Murray in a flash of his earlier form picked up two games, but his rally was short-lived and Alonso took the ninth game and the match.

William T. Tilden II, Philadelphia, national champion, won his semifinal match in rather hollow style from Watson M. Washburn of New York, former Davis Cup doubles player, 6—2, 6—1.

Tilden and his protege, Sandy Wiener of Philadelphia, entered the final round of the doubles by defeating Sam Hardy, New York, and Vernon Dell, Boston, 6—4, 6—4. In the second set, Tilden strained his ankle, but physicians thought that he would be able to resume play tomorrow in both doubles and singles. He will play Manuel Alonso in the final singles match.

Murray and Arnold Jones of Providence and Washburn and James M. Davies of San Francisco meet in the upper semifinal bracket tomorrow morning to compete for the other position in the final round. Murray and Jones today won from the Alonsos, Manuel and Jose, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2.

Billiken Quintet Wins Final Game Of Season, 39-19

St. Louis U. Basket Team Defeats Rockhurst College Five of Kansas City.

The St. Louis University basketbal team closed its season last night with a 39 to 19 victory over the Rockhurst College quintet of Kansas City. The Billikens won eight of the 10 games played during the season and last night's victory was the fifth straight for Coach Savage's quintet. At the end of the half, the Billikens were ahead, 20 to 16.

Rockhurst started off in the lead and held the advantage until near the close of the opening period. Damon and Bray, both running guards, were the stars of the Rockhurst defense in the first half. Damon counted five field goals and Bray two. Many of the field baskets for the two Kansas City players were from long distances. St. Louis tossers, on the other hand, were missing many shots from under the basket.

However, in the second half, the Billikens opened up and with the Bradburn brothers and Kapl playing a leading part, soon ran up a lead that Rockhurst was unable to overcome. Rockhurst's only scoring in the second period came as the result of three free throws.

Kapl and V. Bradburn were the scoring aces for the Billikens, the center totalling 14 and the right forward 11. Damon, with 13, was high for Rockhurst. The contest closed the collegiate athletic career of Capt. Eggler of the Billikens.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Feb. 23.—Mariechen Wehselau, youthful Hawaiian swimmer star, set a new record for the women's free style 220-yard swim in a 20-yard tank here today, covering the distance in two minutes, 49 2-5 seconds. The mark was made in a handicap race which Helen Moses won.

Sisler to Make His Debut as Manager; Cards Off for Florida

Shotton to Direct Rickeymen During First Week—Main Contingents Depart Next Week Eyes of Baseball World on Brownie Leader.

By J. ROY STOCKTON.

Young men with ambitions to become major league ball players and older men with ambitions to remain big leaguers will get into action at the training camps of the Browns and Cardinals tomorrow. Five young Cardinals departed from St. Louis yesterday and about 15 others entrained at their homes with Bradentown, Fla., as their destination. Willis Johnson, secretary of the Browns, was scheduled to lead seven athletes and Trainer Tommy Bramell to the train this morning to depart for Mobile, Ala.

The vanguard of the Cardinals included Roscoe Holm, shortstop and outfielder; Terrible Thomson, Louis Farwell and Hedman Bell, pitchers, and George Berry, catcher.

The first Brownie squad included Pitchers Vangilder, Pruett, Bayne, Kolp and Voight, and Catchers Hank Severeid and Pat Collins.

First Workouts Tomorrow.

Preliminary workouts have been ordered for tomorrow afternoon at both camps. Jess Haines, Bill Doak and Vernon Clemons have been at Bradentown for several weeks and others who will gather at the camp tomorrow are:

Fred Toney, coach and pitcher; George Gransbach, Tiger Stone, Charles Rhem, Edgar Clough, Eddie Dyer, Arthur Delaney, Lloyd Smith, Fred Frankhouse, Donald Hurst and Boyd, pitchers; Tom Thevenow, shortstop; Heine Vick, catcher, and Taylor Douthitt, outfielder.

Manager George Sisler of the Browns is due at Mobile tonight. He made the trip from California with Coach Jim Austin and several youngsters. Among those who will gather at Mobile for the first week of work are Ed Cutting, first baseman; George Blaeholder, Dave Danforth, Dixie Davis, George Grant, Ernest Wingard, Perry Payne, John Wilson and Tom Rich, pitchers; Hilliard Tyrrell, catcher; William Mizeur, outfielder; John Simmons, catcher; Tony Rego, catcher; Herschel Bennett, outfielder; John Schulte, catcher; Sylvester Simon and Harry Rice, infielders.

Sisler's Condition Interests.

Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals will remain in St. Louis until next Saturday, when the second contingent of Cardinals departs for camp. Burt Shotton, Rickey's assistant, will be in charge of training activities during the first week.

The first big news from the camps, and perhaps the most important that will develop, will deal with the prospects of George Sisler as a player. George has reported steady improvement in his vision during the winter, but he has not stated whether he would be able to return to his old position at first base.

Though George insists the team will be in the thick of the pennant fight regardless of whether he plays or not, his declarations cannot down a prevailing opinion that the prospects of the Browns are the prospects of their manager. If he can play with anything like his 1922 power the team will be a first division certainty with a fine chance to make a hard fight for the pennant. If George is forced to remain out of action the Browns must rise to great heights under his inspiration to prevent the Yankees, Tigers, Indians and Athletics from crowding them toward the bottom.

Many Ifs About Local Clubs.

Perhaps George is right. Perhaps his leadership and the esprit de corps that he can be counted on to develop among the Browns will suffice to make the Browns a great team despite a weakness at first base. But if George is right about that he immediately will take his place among the miracle men of baseball.

There are many ifs about the prospects of both St. Louis ball clubs. The Cardinals removed one great obstacle from their path when they made peace between Rogers Hornsby and Branch Rickey. But Rickey still has major problems. He must bolster the left side of his infield. He must find a shortstop and a third baseman to stand up with Jim Bottomley and Hornsby. Perhaps Lester Bell will fill the bill at short, though there have been reports that Bell wants to push Milton Stock off his old station at third base toward the

Stuart and Severeid Sign 1924 Contracts; McManus Still Out

HANK SEVEREID, catcher of the Browns, and Johnny Stuart, youthful pitching star of the Cardinals, have signed their contracts. The Brownie backstop who set a new fielding record for the American League last season, put his signature on a document at the Browns' office yesterday afternoon and will depart with the first squad this morning.

Stuart informed Rickey in a letter that he had agreed to terms and was forwarding his contract from his home in Huntington, West Va.

Marty McManus and Bill Jacobson now are the only Brownie holdouts. Jacobson is expected to fall in line in time to go with he main contingent next Sunday, but McManus has indicated a determination to get more money or stay out.

Several Cardinals remain unsigned, but Rickey asserts that he does not expect any difficulty.

One team, the Fleischmans of the Stein Junior Handicap League, rolled last night, but totaled only 2393. In the doubles competition last night, a count of 1131 by Hartnagle and Bascom was high, while F. Wegener paced the singles with 586.

3000-METER WALKING RACE IS POSTPONED

The Western A. A. U. walking race of 3000 meters, scheduled for this afternoon in Forest Park, has been postponed for one week because of unfavorable weather, Verne Lacy, chairman of the Western District, announced yesterday.

The number of entries received indicates that the walking race revival will prove a success, Lacy said. Expert walkers will attempt to set a favorable time record and it was at the request of the walkers that Lacy announced the postponement. The start will be at Chase Hotel and the finish at Skinker road, the course being straight out Lindell boulevard.

Dempsey Ready To Talk Terms For Two Bouts

Manager Kearns Expects Early Negotiations for Gibbons and Firpo Matches.

TOM FIRST IN LINE

Pampas Bull Dickering With Promoters of Fight With Wills.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Plans for a 1924 heavyweight boxing program are expected to take definite shape next week as a result of the arrival in [illegible] York today of Jack Dempsey, the titleholder, acc[illegible] by his manager, Jack Kearns.

Kearns said tonight he expected to resume early next week conferences with Tex Rickard on the prospective return match with Tomy Gibbons, who already has acepted the promoter's terms for a match here early in June.

Kearns also expects to discuss details of a return match with Luis Angel Firpo or a bout with the winner of the prospective Firpo-Harry Wills contest, which may take place in July. Providing Dempsey succeeded in disposing of Gibbons, his second match would take place in September.

If it is held, however, the Firpo-Wills conference probably will not be promoted by the New York syndicate headed by Lew Raymond. Raymond had obtained tentative agreement of both fighters to terms involving a half million dollar purse, but his withdrawal, forecast as a result of a deadlock with Firpo over the placing of a deposit of a $50,000 preliminary forfeit may take place definitely within a day or two.

Billy McCarney, Firpo's business representative, said tonight he would advise Firpo to cancel negotiations with the Raymond syndicate unless there was a change in the present situation, so that other offers for the contest might be considered.

McCarney declined to reveal the sources of other offers for a Firpo-Wills battle but indicated one was on behalf of Rhode Island interests.

AD TOPPERWEIN GIVES EXHIBITION OF TRICK SHOOTING HERE TUESDAY

Ad Topperwein, the most famous professional rifle, shotgun and pistol shot in America, will give an exhibition of his prowess at the St. Louis Shooting Park Association, 6501 Page avenue, St. Louis county, Tuesday afternoon. Admission will be free.

Aside from a demonstration of expert marksmanship, Topperwein gives a display of trick shooting which is said to excell that of the circus crack shots. He uses all types of firearms, including a high-powered rifle, revolver, shotgun and the old fashion lever action Winchester.

He uses as tarkets, balls, marbles, bricks, potatoes, plates and even a can of tomatoes.

THOMAS CASE TO BE REOPENED BEFORE PRINCIPALS' MEETING

born in St. Louis and was said to have been baptised in Sandoval. Why should we doubt such records, when the alleged birth certificate of Thomas' birth in St. Louis, made out by a midwife, does not even spell his name as Thomas spells it.

"The forfeiture of games other than those actually protested on grounds of ineligibility 48 hours or more before the game was to be played is strictly against the league's constitution and by-laws.

"Central's stand in the matter is that in view of the fact that all Central High authorities, both athletic and scholastic, have been absolved of blame in the Thomas case, the penalty to be imposed against Central is simply that imposed by the constitution and by-laws, namely: 'If a team shall play a protested contestant who afterwards is found to have been ineligible, such team shall forfeit THAT game or THAT event.'

Will Take Case Higher Up.

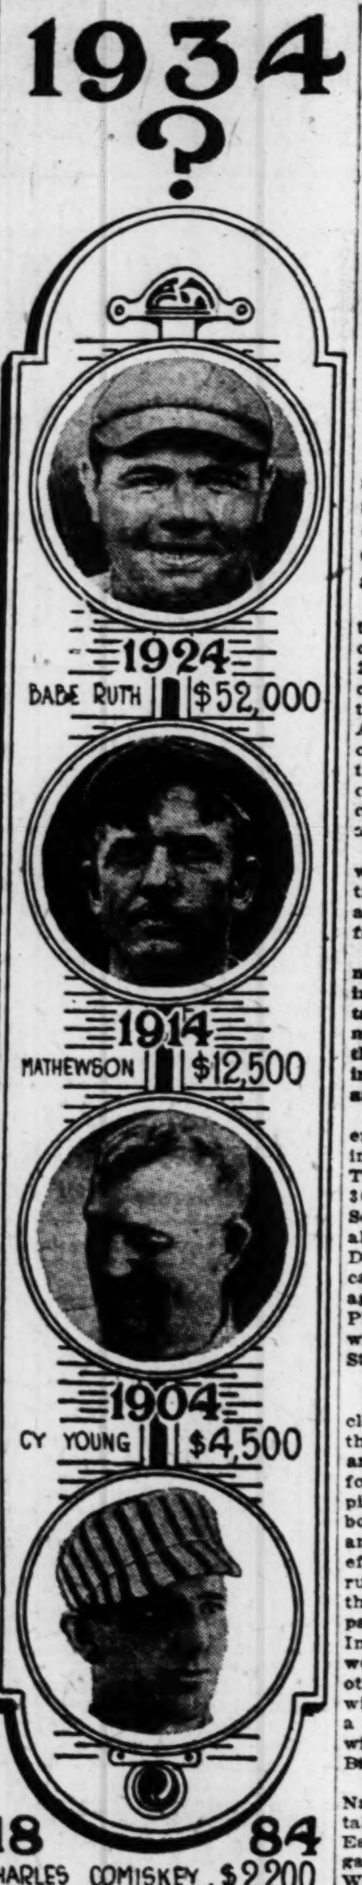
"Throughout the baseball and football seasons Thomas was NOT a protested contestant and therefore the retroactive ruling made by the athletic board has no standing.

Central insists on the interpretation of the incident strictly according to league laws and will take the case to the highest court in local school circles to settle the case."

Central High School's athletic council unanimously approves this stand against the forfeiture of all games except those which were duly protested according to law.

The feeling at Central is strong and in some quarters it was feared that an adverse final construction might cause Central to withdraw from High School League activities. Only the radicals talked secession, however.

As it stands league athletic activities of all descriptions are at a standstill and will not officially be resumed until the kinks have been removed at the next meeting of the principals.



Baseball salaries in the last 40 years have increased by leaps and bounds. When Charles A. Comiskey, now owner of the White Sox, was captain and first sacker for the championship Browns, his yearly stipend was $2200. That was in 1884. Compare that with the $52,000 contract now held by George Herman (Babe) Ruth of the Yankees. The Bambino is the highest paid athlete in organized baseball.

Christy Mathewson, one of the greatest pitchers the game has ever known, now president of the Boston National League club, never received more than $12,500 a year while he was star of the New York Giant pitching staff.

Then that other great old timer, Cy Young, who pitched in the major leagues for 21 years, never went above the $4500 mark.

All of which indicates that each 10 years has brought about a change in the matter of salaries for baseball plyers. The next querry is: What will it be ten years hence?

Babe Ruth is drawing down his $52,000, or $1000 a week, in spite of the fact that he has just passed his 30th birthday. One year, that in which he set his home run record of 59, Ruth through other channels, made a great deal more money.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 23.—The Hillyard basketball team, last season's runners-up in the national tournament, defeated the Leacock Athletic Club team of St. Louis here tonight, 48 to 16. At the end of the half the score was 23 to 2.

90 of 171 New Men on Rosters Of Major Leagues Are Pitchers; Texas League the Richest Field

Lone Star Circuit Contributes 30 New Players to Big League Squads—Class A Teams Send Up 83 Recruits While Three Class A Organizations Send Only 28.

By Herman Wecke.

When major league managers obtained new talent for tryouts at the spring training camps for the 1924 campaign, they drew heavily on the various Class A circuits throughout the country. This is evinced by the statistics, which show that 83 newcomers from four Class A circuits will strive for berths in the big tent. That is an average of more than 20 athletes from each circuit.

The three class AA organizations, the Pacific Coast, American Association and International, sent up 28 newcomers. Of this total, the coast and AA furnished 11, while the International sent up only six. All the athletes from these three circuits were purchased, many of them for big prices, while all the class A circuits with the exception of the Western, permitted the draft and recall privileges last season.

Thirty-three tossers who were with class B clubs in 1923 will get tryouts in the majors this spring as well as 10 from class C and 17 from class D.

This means that a total of 171 newcomers with records in organized circuits a year ago will be taken South by the 16 teams in the majors. That's an average of more than 10 newcomers for each club in the big tent. Ninety of the 171 are pitchers.

The Texas League heads all other circuits in the matter of furnishing new players for the majors. The Lone Star organization sent up 30 athletes, not including Ray Schmandt, the St. Louis boy, who already has been released by the Dodgers, and "Goldie" Rapp, who came from Fort Worth and has again been sent on his way by the Phillies. Six of the Texas Leaguers will be given tryouts by the two St. Louis teams.

Southern a Close Second.

The Southern ran the Texas a close second, as 24 players from that circuit will go up. In the list are included the leading batter for 1923 as well as the leading pitcher. Both these players, Richbourg, who hit .378 for Nashville, and "Slim" McGrew, who had an efficiency record of 2.29 earned runs a contest, while pitching for the Memphis team, will go to Tampa, Fla., with the Washington club. In fact, Griffith thought mighty well of Southern Leaguers, as six others from clubs in the circuit will make the training trip. Not a single player from the Southern will receive a tryout with the Browns or Cardinals.

With the Braves, Dodgers and Nationals drawing heavily on the talent of the various clubs, the Eastern League, another class A organization, sent up 19, while the Western, the other class A league, sent up 10. Included in the list of athletes from the Western are Rice, Bennett and Voight, who were grabbed by the Browns. The three leading pitchers in the circuit, Yde, Pirates; Maun, Giants, and Speece, Washington, also get chances in the majors.

From the Small Leagues.

In class B, the Michigan-Ontario circuit with eight and the Three-I with seven, furnished the greatest number, while in class C, the highest total taken from a league was three. The Blue Ridge, a class D circuit, sent up five newcomers for trials.

The number of recruits furnished by the various leagues:

Class AA—Pacific Coast, 11; American Association, 11; International, 6.

Class A—Texas, 30; Southern, 24; Eastern, 19; Western, 10.

Class B—Michigan-Ontario, 8; Three-I, 7; South Atlantic, 6; New York-Pennsylvania, 7; Virginia, 3; Eastern Canada, 2.

Class C—Florida State, 3; Southwestern, 3; Western Association, 2; Piedmont, 2.

Class D—Blue Ridge, 5; Nebraska State, 3; Mississippi Valley, 2; Appalachian, 2; Texas Association, 2.

The Texas and Southern were the heaviest contributors of pitchers, the Lone Star circuit sending up 12 and the Southern 11. However, in the matter of sending up pitchers, the Pacific Coast and A. A. have the best average. Eight of the 11 players taken from the Coast circuit were pitchers and seven of the 11 from the A. A. are hurlers.

New recruits and the leagues they came from:

Texas League (30)—Boone, Simmons, Grigsby, Todt, Cotter, Riley, Barrett, Oestergaard, Sperber, Simon, Osborne, Bell, Meyers, Dyer, Gross, Turgeon, Lucas, Fuller, Wendell, Schulte, Wheeler, Carlson, J. Burns, Gray, Payne, D. Burns, Stoner, Schilling, Marshall, Berley.

VERNE LACY APPEALS TO ST. LOUIS TO WAKE UP IN AN ATHLETIC WAY

Verne Lacy, president of the Western Division of the A. A. U., in a talk at the annual banquet of the Triple A Club at the Forest Park Hotel last night, made an appeal to St. Louis to wake up in an athletic way. Lacy asserted that it was up to St. Louis clubs to get together to foster amateur athletics and to send a representative team to the Western tryouts for the Olympic team.

He also made an appeal for funds and gave it as his opinion that the Triple A Club would be one of the real boosters. He cited as an instance of what could be done in athletics, the case of handball in New York, which now has more than 20,000 registered players.

B. I. C. Norton, the South African tennis star, who with William T. Tilden holds the national doubles title, spoke on the development of the net game, especially among the juniors, and said that all juniors should enter all important tournaments, if for no other reason than to gain experience.

Other speakers were Judge Daniel Taylor, who spoke on the history of the club, organized 28 years ago; Drummond Jones, on the national clay courts tournament, which will be held here this summer; Judge Walter Neun and Sidney Maestre, president of Triple A. Tom Barnett acted as toastmaster.

Chicago Victory Ruins Indiana's Chance for Title

Maroon Quintet Wins Game by One Point After Leading, 16—9 at Half Time.

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 23.—A field goal by Duggan in the last minute of play gave Chicago a 26 to 25 victory over Indiana in a Western Conference game here tonight. A frenzied crowd of 3500 persons watched Indiana's hopes of a conference championship go glimmering in one of the greatest basket contests ever played here.

Trailing 16 to 9 at the half, Indiana came back at the start of the final period and with dazzling offensive play scored nine points before Chicago could get started. From this time on it was anybody's game with never more than a point separating the two teams and the lead see-sawing back and forth. With a one-point lead and three minutes play, Indiana attempted stalling tactics but Chicago broke this game up and Duggan tossed in the winning basket.

Barnes with four field goals and two free throws was high point man of the game while Bordner, who substituted for Parker at center, was the star of the Indiana team, with nine points. Barnes was forced to leave the floor late in the game when he injured his knee.

Lineup and summary:

Indiana (25).	Position.	Chicago (26).

Local Electrotypers Win.

A tenpin team composed of members of the St. Louis Electrotypers' Local No. 36 defeated a team of Chicago electrotypers at the Washington Alleys yesterday in afternoon and evening matches. The St. Louis team made a clean sweep of the three games rolled in the afternoon and in the evening series won two out of three.

Kansas Star Injured; May Be Out of Game Remainder of Season

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 23.

BOB MOSBY, regular guard on the University of Kansas basketball squad, may be lost for the remainder of the season, Coach F. C. Allen announced tonight. X-ray pictures taken today of the twisted knee suffered by Mosby in the game at Ames last night, revealed no broken bones, but showed the ligaments to be severely strained. Mosby was unable to walk today.

He will not be in the Grinnell game here next week, and Dr. Allen was doubtful whether the big guard will be in shape for even the Washington and Missouri games, which finish the season. His loss will seriously weaken the Jayhawkers, who must win two of the three remaining games to land the championship.

Olympic Appeal To St. Louis Clubs

Organizations Asked to Solicit Members to Contribute a Dollar Each.

Charles S. Reber, chairman of the St. Louis district committee which has been asked to raise $20,000 as the city's quota of the $350,000 to send a team of American athletes to the Olympic games in Paris, has asked local clubs and athletic organizations to co-operate in raising the money by asking each member to contribute $1.

Cards are being distributed to club secretaries to be inclosed in communications to members, asking them to add a dollar to their checks wehn paying their club bills or to authorize the treasurer to charge a dollar to their account.

Reber has announced that the date of the soccer game between a team of municipal league stars and an eleven made up of professionals from the St. Louis Soccer League, for the benefit of the Olympic Fund, has been set tentatively for Sunday, March 30.

No. 15—NEW YORK GIANTS

In an effort to bolster up the Giants' pitching staff for the 1924 campaign, Manager McGraw will take seven newcomers South. Only two other recruits, who had minor league averages in 1923, will go to Florida with McGraw's men. They are Wilson from Portsmouth, who topped his league in hitting with .388, and Lidstrom from Toledo, who had a swat mark of .270.

Among the pitchers, Wayland Dean, the $50,000 beauty from Louisville, stands out as the leader. Dean won 21 and lost 8 and was second in efficiency with a record of 3.27 earned runs a game. Dean, in 259 innings, yielded 94 earned tallies.

Next in line is Maun, who was the leader in the Western League with 26 victories against 11 defeats. Maun labored in 329 innings and in that time he allowed 141 runs. He struck out 145 batters and walked but 71.

Baldwin, the hurler from Newark, won 21 and lost 15, and yielded 3.74 earned runs in 308 innings. Gearin, the little southpaw, won 12 and lost five with Milwaukee. Bradshaw from Toledo won five and dropped seven, while Malone from the same club won but nine while losing 21. Webb, who came from Pittsfield, won eight and lost 13. Webb also played in the outfield and batted .323.

National Hebrew Track and Field Meet to Be Held

Y. M. H. A. Groups to Choose State Champions for Meet in September.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 23.—A mammoth track and field meet, to be known as the first annual National Hebrew Track and Field Championships, will be held in Venable Stadium early in September.

If plans, now well under way, succeed, athletes representing Jewish organizations in every nook and corner of the United States will gather here to contest for the titles that will be awaiting the winners of the various events.

The meet is to be molded after the National A. A. U. championships and will be held under the sanction of that amateur body. It is the plan to conduct championship meets in every state in the Union instead of district carnivals as is the custom with the A. A. U. Every Hebrew association in each state will be permitted to send as many of its athletes as it chooses to its own State meet.

Eligibility Restrictions.

The winners of the State titles are to be the only eligibles for the national competition. This system would bring nothing but the cream of the Hebrew race to the events here and the caliber of the rivalry would likely rival that of any other national track and field carnival in the country. It is estimated that approximately 5000 performers would be drawn to the championships here.

The move for the national games was sponsored by the local Young Men's Hebrew Association, with Charles L. Ornstein as its leader. Ornstein has a national reputation as an organizer. It is unquestionably the greatest step taken by any Jewish organization in the furtherance of Hebrew athletics for many years. The associations the country over have been advised of the proposed meet and have rallied to the cause almost without exception.

Baltimore took the intiative to inaugurate the national Hebrew championships and will be rewarded for its efforts with the honor of holding the first of the annual affairs. While many of the details have been tentatively decided upon, no date has as yet been set for the meet this fall.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Louis Clark Sets New Indoor Mark In 100-Yard Dash

Johns Hopkins Sprinter Steps Distance in 9 4-5, Breaking Murchison's Record.

BOOTH WINS LONG RACE

Victor in 5000-Meter Event Over G. W. Lermond After Gruelling Duel.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 23.—Louis Clark, the Johns Hopkins University sprinter, set a new world's record for the 100-yard dash at the annual games of Johns Hopkins University here tonight, when he negotiated the distance in 9 4-5 seconds in winning the semi-final heat. The previous record was 10 seconds, held by Loren Murchison, the St. Louis boy, now running in the colors of the Newark A. C.

Clark failed to equal this time in the final, however, winning in 10 seconds flat after a close race.

The 5000-metre race developed into a gruelling duel between Verne Booth of Johns Hopkins and G. W. Lermond, Boston College. In the first two laps Booth reduced Lermond's 50-yard handicap to a 40-yard lead and they remained in about this position until five laps from the finish. Booth then began to pull up on his rival and in the next two laps cut Lermond's advantage to three yards. Just before the gun announced the final lap Booth opened up and passed his man. Lermond tried to regain the lead, but Booth drew away to win by 10 yards.

bench. Then Stock's name has been mentioned in trade rumors and he may be exchanged. In that case Bell undoubtedly would be the first choice for third base. Then Freigau, Holm and Thevenow, at present the property of the Syracuse club, would fight it out for a regular job at short.

Both Teams Need Catcher.

Both clubs must strengthen their catching staff. Severeid needs a capable assistant. Pat Collins, who had a fine year in 1922 and a mediocre one last season, may come back. Tony Rego, a reputed "third stringer" from the Coast, may arrive suddenly. Sisler thinks he will.

Rickey absolutely, positively, certainly must find a catcher. Perhaps it will be Mickey O'Neill of the Braves, a St. Louis boy. It must be somebody. Clemons must have help and a lot of it.

Sisler must develop a reliable outfield substitute to fill in in case of injury to Williams, Jacobson or Tobin. Last year it was pathetic when one of the regulars was out.

Merry Battle to Be Waged.

There will be a merry battle in Mobile for the job at third base. Homer Ezzell has the edge in some ways. Sisler has praised him highly. Frank Ellerbe, the 1922 regular, will try to regain his old job. Sylvester Simon, who bloomed brilliantly and then faded last spring, will be back. Harry Rice, a youngster who was sent to Danville and Tulsa last season, will bear watching. He is one of the best looking recruits seen in a St. Louis camp in years. With a little improvement in his fielding he will be a major league star. Watch him!

Pitching staffs are uncertain things and the strength of the St. Louis flinging corps will not be known until tested in league competition. The Browns have Shocker, Vangilder and Danforth and a flock of question marks. The Cardinals have Jess Haines as their ace, with Sherdel as first assistant. Johnny Stuart may be a star in 1924. He certainly gave great promise last year. Then there's Fred Toney and Lou North and Clyde Barfoot and Eddie Dyer and a flock of recruits. Time only will tell, and time tells better when it starts to get hot already, as Heine Mueller says.

Louis Clark Sets New Indoor Mark In 100-Yard Dash

Johns Hopkins Sprinter Steps Distance in 9 4-5, Breaking Murchison's Record.

BOOTH WINS LONG RACE

Victor in 5000-Meter Event Over G. W. Lermond After Gruelling Duel.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 23.—Louis Clark, the Johns Hopkins University sprinter, set a new world's record for the 100-yard dash at the annual games of Johns Hopkins University here tonight, when he negotiated the distance in 9 4-5 seconds in winning the semi-final heat. The previous record was 10 seconds, held by Loren Murchison, the St. Louis boy, now running in the colors of the Newark A. C.

Clark failed to equal this time in the final, however, winning in 10 seconds flat after a close race.

The 5000-metre race developed into a gruelling duel between Verne Booth of Johns Hopkins and G. W. Lermond, Boston College. In the first two laps Booth reduced Lermond's 50-yard handicap to a 40-yard lead and they remained in about this position until five laps from the finish. Booth then began to pull up on his rival and in the next two laps cut Lermond's advantage to three yards. Just before the gun announced the final lap Booth opened up and passed his man. Lermond tried to regain the lead, but Booth drew away to win by 10 yards.

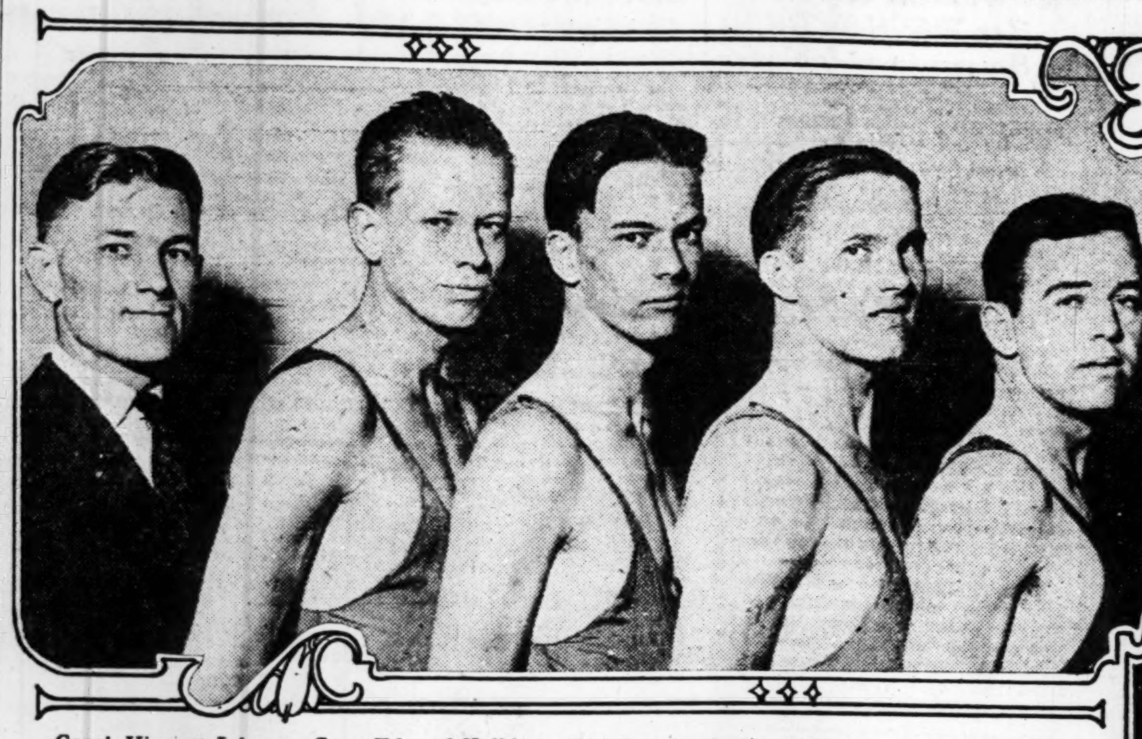
Washington University's Crack Swimmers and Coach



Coach Vincent Johnson, Capt. Edward Helbing, Carl Ewerhardt, Henry Ulrich and Larry Gilbert.

UNDER the direction of Coach Vincent Johnson, the Washington University swimming team has been developed into one of the strongest college teams in the Middle West. The team shown above recently shattered the Western collegiate record for the 200-yard relay, covering the distance in 1 minute 46 3-5 seconds. This is 1 2-4 seconds better than the old record.

All of the relay team members are St. Louisans. Capt. Helbing and Ewerhardt are Soldan High School graduates; Ulrich is a Yeatman boy and Gilbert graduated from Central High.

Other team members are: Fred Schlossstein, breast stroke; James Canavan, backstroke; Dave Ullman, breast stroke; Herman Weinecke, fancy diving, and Jones, breast stroke.

The Washington team meets Illinois in a program of four or five events at Wilson Pool, on the Pikeway campus on March 8. Shortly thereafter the Missouri Valley Conference meet will be held here.

Practice on Vardon's "Fade" Shot Gave Him Control, Sarazen Says

Professional Champion Perfected Wooden Club Strokes by Developing Back Swing in Groove, With Right Elbow Held Down and Close to the Body.

By Gene Sarazen,
American Professional Champion.

"How do you account for your consistency and the great distance you get with your wooden clubs?" a noted golf critic asked me after my recent match with Arthur Havers. "I have seen most of the best players," this critic continued, "and I believe you and Bobby Jones are the best of the long hitters, especially in this important matter of accuracy and consistency."

I got my control mostly through hard work and long hours in practice. When I was 16 years old I had a great deal of trouble in playing any kind of shot with the wood—especially in playing a wooden shot to the green. At that time I had a tendency to hook more—a very bad habit to acquire.

Then, one day, I heard about Harry Vardon's fade, or his left to right shot, as the players call it today. I inquired into it, and after getting a detailed explanation from some of the best instructors in the game, I began to practice on the shot.

I promptly set about correcting my tendency to hook. At this time I had the fault to which so many present-day golfers are prone, of raising my right elbow on the back swing. Of course, I invariably sliced. If I changed my stance or grip I would hook. So I began practice to keep the right elbow down and close to the body on the back swing, and finally I was able to swing the club back in a sort of groove with the right elbow held down and close to the body. After I had corrected this fault, I found I was getting greater distance on my wooden shots, as well as better direction. I was getting a punch into the shot, the secret of long hitting, and I was using my body more than my arms, which is easier and less tiring.

Now Can Call His Shot.

Now, I dare say, I can call either a slice or a hook or a slight fade and bring off the shot almost every time. I don't say I can call a straight ball and make good every shot, because a straight ball is undoubtedly the hardest shot in the game. But it was learning to play the wooden shot to the green from left to right that enabled me to acquire complete control over all of my clubs.

Having learned to keep my right elbow close to the body on the backswing, I found I was able to groove my swing and to obtain compactness. And in developing my swing along these lines, I found I could get better results by using the open stance.

I play all my shots in similar manner. I do not believe in changing the hands or the feet for different shots. What I do when I want a shot different from the ordinary kind, say a hook or a slice, is simply to move the ball. In other words, to bring off a hook, I play more off the right foot; to obtain a slice I play the ball fairly well forward off the left foot.

Ball Travels at a Cross Angle.

In playing a shot from left to right it is not necessary to take the club outside the arc of the swing. To do this is courting trouble. There is no controlling any shot made in this manner, and you are likely to obtain a pronounced slice instead of a fade, which is the kind of shot you want in playing to the greens.

Merely play the ball off the left foot, so that when the club head comes in contact with the ball it will be traveling at a slightly cross angle. But the swing is made in the same manner as usual, with the arms close to the body. To swing the hands wide will give you only an exaggerated slice, with no control.

LEWIS SOUGHT FOR MATCH WITH LONDOS

Tom Packs, promoter of wrestling matches at the Coliseum, departed last night for Kansas City where he will confer today with Billy Sandow, manager of Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's champion heavyweight grappler, in regard to a match with Jimmy Londos.

Although Londos has opposed Lewis in two matches here within the past three years, the Coliseum promoter believes the Greek favorite is deserving of another chance at the championship.

In each of his previous bouts with Lewis, the Greek mat artist managed to gain a fall on the champion.

Vespers Will Be Tested by Hoovers

Foley's Team Greatly Improved Since Last Encounter With Vespers.

Although the Scullins and the Ben Millers, former national champion teams, are now facing the necessity of rebuilding, the same cannot be said of the Vespers and the Hoovers, the two younger teams of the St. Louis Soccer League. There are no decadent has-beens on either of these teams although the Vespers are the local cup representatives, the Hoovers are rated on practically an even footing.

The Vespers meet the Hoovers in the second game of the St. Louis Socer League double-header at High School Field this afternoon. In their last meeting the Vespers won, 3 goals to 1. However, since that time Foley's Hoovers have acquired a new center forward, Jimmy Dunn, and the new fullback, Tom Erbe, has had a chance to become acquainted with his position. It is no certainty that the Vespers will hold their own.

In their last four games, the Vespers have amassed the unusual total of 19 goals to 3 for all opponents. As a scoring combination they are at their peak.

Manager Harry McCarthy announced yesterday that he would probably use Eddie Hyson, outside right, and Emmett Donovan, inside left, in today's game. Both are graduates of the Trumbull team in the Municipal League and both have had previous big league trials.

Manager Brady of the Scullins has lined up some of the best Municipal League talent for next season, but it is not likely that any of them will be used this year. Players cannot be taken from Municipal League teams unless the amateur clubs are out of their respective league championship races.

Thorndale Wins In Feature Race At New Orleans

PARKE GAINS VICTORY

Western Rider Scores With Certain—Brunell Captures Mile-and-Half Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 23.—The light-weighted Thorndale won the fifth race, feature of today's races at Fairground. It was a fairly easy victory, the Block derby candidate taking the lead in the stretch from Best Pal and going away at the end. Best Pal beat his stable mate, Barracuda, a head for the place. The mile was covered in 1:39 2-5, the second fastest for the meeting this season.

Thorndale was a 6-to-5 favorite, the fourth of this species to win during the first five races.

Little was thought of Bruntell's chances i nthe fifth, a race at a mile and a half. But the deduction was wrong and the Idle Hour Stock Farm chalked up a victory in the longest contest for thoroughbreds held here this season. Bruntell beat Old Faithful and Irish Pat.

Olythus, the favorite, was fifth. The distance of the race had a tendency to make it uninteresting. It was strictly a game of waiting among the riders and the contestants merely galloped for the first mile.

Pequot maintained the lead to the stretch with Olynthus, the odds-on favorite, head of Brunell. Old Faithful was sailing along smoothly and the stretch-running ability of the McMillan horse led the crowd to believe the race was over. Old Faithful forged to the front, but when an eighth of a mile from home, Carroll stirred up his mount and Brunell responded courageously. As a result it was no contest from the last sixteenth pole home.

Parke Wins With Certain.

Duplicating the race he rode on Certain a week ago, Jockey Parke furnished patrons another exhibition of his superior brand of riding when he won the sprint feature with the McPherson gelding. Certain was the favorite and the reason was obvious. It was the ability of the Western lad to make horses with front-running propensities come from behind. Mercury was second and Last One third.

Exchange, the favorite, had his number hung up when the six furlongs of the second race had been run. Billy Klair, a long shot, was second. Jou Jou got the wee end of the purse. Lang rode the winner and in contrast to his former habit of pulling up his mount near the finish, coaxed the last ounce out of the winner to hold off Billy Klair. And it was well that Lang did, for Billy was a running animal at the expiration of the trip and would have won in a couple of jumps.

With R. Harrington up, Barney Google, the speedy little son of Fizzle, got home in front of his field in the opening race. Alex Woodliffe was second and Belle H. third. Barney showed his usual burst of speed.

Big and Burly Thrills Crowd.

After being knocked about, shut off and carried wide making the final bend, Big and Burly thrilled the holiday crowd with a head victory over Attillia in the sixth, and incidentally enabled George Carroll to score his second triumph. The Idle Hour colt had to be pounds the best horse in the contest to get home in front, as he probably was the most interfered with animal at the meeting. Goldfield slowed down in the final run, but lasted to be third.

Displaying the same form as when she won recently, Golden Billows, held at 2½ to 1 in the betting, accounted for the closing contest of the day. Taking the lead soon after the start, Jockey Bruening rated her nicely in front of the field and maintained enough energy to stall off the rush of Serenade. Stump Jr. finished third.

NOMINATIONS FOR THE KENTUCKY DERBY CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 23.—Nominations for the Kentucky Derby, the famous Western racing classic, will close at midnight tonight. Although the possible entries will not be announced by the Kentucky Jockey Club for a week or 10 days, it is said that the list is the greatest since the inception of the Derby in 1875. The race is for three-year-olds, of all sexes.

Already future prices have been made against possible starters, but little wagering has been noticed here. Wise Counsellor and Sarazen are said to rule favorites, but considerable Cincinnati backing is expected for such colts as Battle Creek, King, Gorin, Mr. Mutt, Worthmore, Black Gold and Altawood.

Other sterling performers said to be in training for the Derby are Bracadale, Mad Play, Testor, Pourmore, Purchaser, Sheridan, Finn Lag and Honor.

Concordia League Meets.

A meeting of the Concordia Baseball League will be held at Bethany Hall, Natural Bridge and Clay avenue, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Officers for the year will be selected and applications for membership acted upon. Bethlehem and Zion, two of last season's teams, will enter again, while Pilgrim and St. Matthews also are expected to enter. Ken Williams One of 6 Men Who Have Hit 2 Homers in an Inning

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

THERE are a few things in the home run line that Babe Ruth hasn't done yet. One of them, as any enviously inclined ball player can tell you, is to hit two home runs in one inning.

Most ball players can count on their fingers the number of times they even got to bat twice in one inning. Still there are six players who have touched the two-in-one homer record that still isn't Ruth's.

The last one to shoot both barrels was Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns, who brought down his brace of birds in 1922 in the sixth inning of a game with Washington. He peppered Mogridge for the first one and Erickson, the tawny-haired Viking, for the second.

Other players who have made two runs in an inning are Charley Jones of Boston, Bobby Lowe of Boston, Jake Stenzel of Pittsburg, Louis Bierbaum of Brooklyn, and Cartwright of the St. Louis Association team.

LINCOLN BASKET TEAM DEFEATS SUMNER HIGH

The Lincoln High School of Kansas City basketball team defeated Sumner High Friday night, 25 to 22. It was the ninth successive victory for the Kansas City quintet this season. The team is coached by J. C. Johnson. In the game against Sumner, Lincoln counted nine field goals and counted seven times on free throws.

The visitors came from behind with 12 points in the final quarter to gain the decision. The local team was held scoreless in this period. Shepard was the star of the game.

BRIDGEND, Wales, Feb. 23.—The South Wales ladies' hockey team defeated the American ladies today, 5 to 3.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH TO MEET KENRICK IN IMPORTANT GAME

St. Louis University High School basketball team will meet the Kenrick High School five at First Regiment Armory next Wednesday evening in a game which will decide the unofficial local secondary school championship. Kenrick owns one victory over the junior Billikens but the record of the St. Louis U. team indicates that it is probably the stronger of the two.

The Billikens have lost but two games out of 12. They have defeated Central, Soldan, McKinley and Yeatman one game each, and Cleveland, Chaminade and Country Day two games each.

Proceeds from Wednesday's game will be used to defray the expenses of the St. Louis U. High team's trip to Chicago where it will engage in a national Catholic high school basketball tournament.

ANDY HIGH SIGNS HIS BROOKLYN CONTRACT

Andy High, St. Louis boy who plays third base for the Brooklyn club, yesterday came to terms with the club management and mailed his signed contract for the coming season.

High played at third, short and second base for the Dodgers last season and had a good year, both in hitting and fielding. This season he will be playing beside an old St. Louis high school acquaintance, Johnny Jones. High was an outfielder on the Yeatman team and Jones was Central's shortstop for several seasons.

PLANS OF EXPERTS OPPOSED IN GERMANY

Count von Westarp, Liberal Leader, Says Proposals Would "Ottomanize" Nation.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—"Ottomanization of Germany, even worse than in Turkey, will be the result of the labors of the American and allied experts according to my unexaggerated belief," said Count Von Westarp, leader of the National Liberal party, in an exclusive interview with the Post-Dispatch and New York World today.

The National Liberals are generally regarded as the coming party in Germany, and Von Westarp discussed their foreign and domestic policies at length. The National Liberals are especially worried by the report of the plan to make Germany's railways security for an international loan. According to Von Westarp this plan will subject management, employes and tariffs of German railways to direct or indirect foreign control, signifying an end to liberty in all her economic life. But Germany wil awake finally and won't submit to such enslavement, he said.

'As for the Dawes-Parmentier-Schacht gold note bank, I fear it will not be serviceable to solve Germany's currency and economic problems," said Von Westarp. "I furthermore regard an entente with France as impossible because no matter who guides the French policy, it will not deviate from traditional lines, namely, to maintain the French hegemony in Europe and to break up Germany bit by bit.

"The German National Liberals realize the American Government is desirous of aiding in the restoration of normal conditions in Europe because enlightened American self-interest demands this. But I do not believe America will intervene directly before the allies have settled the reparations problem definitely. Hence Germany's international outlook is but little brighter than it has been."

Turning to the German political situation and the election platform of the National Liberals, Von Westarp said: "We want immediate dissolution of the Reichstag, which no longer represents the public will. The Government is trying its hardest to prolong the life of the Reichstag through a series of compromises, but it is most uncertain whether it can prevent early dissolution.

"The Socialists will suffer a tremendous catastrophe in the coming Reichstag elections. They know it but they don't know how to stem the flood that will drown them. The time has come at last for the German people to get revenge on Socialist demagoguery. The best evidence of that is the desertion of thousands of laborers from the Socialist party, to join the National Liberals.

"The domestic election platform of the National Liberals is most simple. It is to rid Germany forever of the democratic, and especially the Socialistic, element which is responsible for the terrible mire into which Germany has sunk since November, 1918.

"It would be a merciless fight against the Socialist charlatans—a great house cleaning."

REVENUE BUREAU CRITICS ANSWERED BY MELLON

Secretary Says Work Will Be Up to Date Soon—Only Isolated Instances of Corruption.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Recent suggestions in some quarters for an overhauling or reorganization of the internal revenue bureau were met by a declaration from Secretary Mellon tonight that such a move could only result in harm to the machinery now set up. The Secretary also emphatically denied that there had been more than isolated instances of corruption in the bureau.

Mellon said the bureau would have its work up to date by the end of this year and that decentralization would reduce the cost of collections and save money to taxpayers.

"There are now only one-third of 1 per cent of the 1917 returns uncompleted," Mellon said in a statement. "The primal reason for delay in adjusting taxes for the years 1917 and 1918 is the immense amount of work involved in settling invested capital, determining the value of natural resources, the March 1, 1923, value of assets, and questions of consolidation. The decisions of the courts, such as the stock dividend case, required many reaudits and large refunds. This also retarded settlements. These are the years of the excess profits taxes. Once these high tax years are settled and settled correctly, an audit of income tax returns will be much simpler and can be more promptly handled.

"I do not believe that any overhauling of the bureau would do other than harm. The training necessary to handle tax cases is highly technical, and education and experience are essential. The employes in the bureau have this training and experience, and are functioning satisfactorily. To disturb the situation by creating in them the impression that an 'overhauling' is to take place, would be to destroy the morale of the organization and render the existing machinery much less effective."

RESCUER LOSES LIFE IN FIRE

Another Probably Fatally Burned; Boy Also Loses Life.

SOMERVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 23.—C. P. Booth, 30 years old, of Pinson, Tenn., was burned to death and John Steele, 35, probably was fatally injured when they entered the burning Steele home here today to rescue members of the families they thought had been trapped by the flames. Olaf Steele, 12, was fatally burned.

Booth, a guest at the Steele home, lost his life when he entered the house to search for his baby which, unknown to him, had been taken from the building by Mrs. Booth. Steele ran into the flames in search of Olaf.

OBJECTS TO FRIENDS' CHIDES

Anthony P. Pappas Says He and Tony Pappas Are Not Related.

Anthony P. Pappas, proprietor of a candy store at 3863 Olive street, wants it known that he is not the Tony Pappas who owns a candy store at 810 North Grand boulevard. The similarity of name and business is most exasperating, he says. The Grand boulevard Pappas recently took $100 presumably as a bribe, for which he was to fail to identify two youths who held him up. Later he returned it in the presence of a patrolman and caused a woman and a professional bondsman to be indicted on a charge of attempting to corrupt a witness.

Anthony P. Pappas says his friends laugh and chide. "Ah, Tony, I see you're getting in the papers." He wants it known that he and the other Tony are no relation and never have even met.

JUDGE CALLS HALT UPON DRY WARRANTS

Miller Approves Only One of 80 Sought—Says 90 Per Cent Are Not Prosecuted.

The wholesale issuance to police of search warrants for liquor raids in their clean-up campaign was halted abruptly yesterday when Judge Calvin N. Miller, in the Court of Criminal Correction, approved only one of 80 warrants issued for the police by Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer.

Judge Miller took the position that neither suspicion, rumor nor an anonymous communication, unsupported by reasonable evidence, constituted a just reason for issuing a search warrant.

"Hereafter I am going to be more strict in this respect," said Judge Miller. "I find that not more than 6 per cent of the search warrant cases stand up in court, and I fear that injustice is thus done to many innocent persons.

90 Per Cent Not Prosecuted.

"If I were Prosecuting Attorney I would ignore the trifling reports, such as a man having a few bottles of beer in his home, and go after the big fellows where evidence may be available.

"After all, this is a man-made law; not a God-made law. The violation of it would not be an offense from a moral standpoint, such as would be an offense against one of the Commandments."

Judge Miller said 2000 liquor search warrants had been issued in the last two months, and that more than 90 per cent of them could not be prosecuted for lack of evidence. He pointed out that this failure to prosecute was costly to the State and, if continued, would entail an expense of at least $15,000 a year.

Police Complain.

Judge Miller has just returned from a three weeks' rest. During his absence, C. Lew Gallant served as provisional Judge. The dismissal by Gallant Thursday of two cases charging saloon keepers with violating the State prohibition law resulted in a complaint by Police Captain McDonald of the Angelica Street Station.

The raids in this case were at the saloons of Edward Young, 3822 West Florissant avenue, and Joseph Orlek, 4015 Vest avenue. Capt. McDonald reported that beer, wine and whisky were found at Young's place and home brew at Orlek's.

Inquiry by the Post-Dispatch showed that defense motions were made before Judge Gallant, on the ground that the search warrants were defective in that they did not specify, as required by the statute, the uses of the buildings to be searched. Judge Gallant cited a Supreme Court decision as authority for his ruling.

ST. LOUIS TRADE TOURISTS NOW ON WAY TO PANAMA

Delegation Entertained at Various Affairs During Stay in Jamaica.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PT. ANTONIO, Jamaica, Feb. 23. —The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce good-will tourists left yesterday afternoon, after a two-day visit to this island for Cristobal, Panama. The tourists are scheduled to arrive there Monday at 8 a. m.

During the stay in Jamaica the delegation went by automobile from Pt. Antonio to Kingston, where they were guests at luncheon and at several other events arranged for their entertainment.

W. Palmer Clarkson, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, told executives of business organizations and state officials here that St. Louis is looking forward to doing more business with Jamaica. He pointed out in interviews with various officials that St. Louis is well situated to do business with firms of Jamaica and urged them to take advantage of any facilities or service that the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce can offer.

The delegation is scheduled to leave Cristobal Monday morning and cross to the Pacific side of the Isthmus by automobile and launch, returning the day following by rail. Thence the delegation is scheduled to visit Port Limon and San Jose, Costa Rica. The tourists will return to St. Louis Thursday, March 6.

NEBRASKANS CALL ON LA FOLLETTE TO QUIT G. O. P.

Progressives Select Delegates to National Farmer-Labor Convention at St. Paul.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Feb. 23. —Progressive party members of Nebraska recommended a slate of national and State candidates for nomination at the State primary April 8, selected delegates to the national Farmer-Labor political convention at St. Paul, Minn., May 30, and called on United States States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin to quit the Republican party, at last night's session of their State convention.

After recommending W. J. Taylor of Merna as the party's candidate for United States Senator, the delegates adopted a resolution calling on La Follette to "help lead the ever-rising tide of revolt against the capitalistic interests and join with us in the growing Farmer-Labor movement." The Teapot Dome scandal, the resolution said, is "but one of many transactions which prove that both old parties are owned by capitalistic interests."

The Rev. J. L. Beebe of Omaha, chairman of the party's Executive Committee, was made delegate-at-large to the St. Paul convention.

CONCERT FOR NEGRO CHILDREN SATURDAY

Distribution of Tickets for Gift Program Will Be in Hands of Schools.

The fifth and last of this year's series of children's free concerts, for which the Symphony Orchestra was engaged by the Post-Dispatch, will be given Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, at the Missouri Theater, Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue. It will be for negro children exclusively.

The distribution of tickets, details of which will be published later, will be in the hands of the music supervisors in the negro schools and the instructors of Poro College.

Rudolph Ganz, director of the Symphony Orchestra, will devote a portion of the program to a summary of the demonstration of orchestral instruments which has been in progress at the four concerts given for white children. He will have displayed individually, for eye as well as ear, the bowed instruments—violin, viola, violoncello and double bass; the woodwinds—piccolo, flute, oboe, English horn, clarinet, bass clarinet, bassoon and double bassoon; the brass instruments — French horn, trumpet, trombone and tuba; and the harp, celesta, kettledrums and percussion battery. The program will be as follows:

1. March, "Pomp and Circumstance" .... Elgar
2. Overture, "Poet and Peasant" .... Suppe
3. Explanation of Instruments.
4. Second Movement, Largo, from the "New World Symphony" .... Dvorak
5. Shepherd's Hey .... Grainger
6. American Fantasy .... Herbert

The selection of the Largo from Dvorak's symphony is considered particularly interesting since the work was inspired in part by negro melodies, and the Largo has a pronounced touch of the plantation spiritual.

$30,000 BEQUEST TO W. C. T. U. ATTACKED IN WILL CONTEST

Niece of Mrs. Maria Haynes Asserts All Shares of Copper Stock Belong to Her.

Whether the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the Seventeenth District of Missouri shall receive 61 shares of stock in the Rome Brass and Copper Co., or whether these shares are legally the property of Mrs. Mayme McGregory, is the point at issue in a suit to construe the will of Mrs. Maria Haynes, 93 years old. The case has been taken under advisement by Circuit Judge Frey.

Mrs Haynes, who died Jan. 9, 1923, at her home, 7110A Michigan avenue, left an estate valued at $60,000. She named the W. C. T. U., of which she was a member, as residuary legatee after payment of several specific bequests, including five shares of stock in the Rome company, which she left to her niece, Mrs. McGregory.

It appears the five shares originally were issued 33 years ago to Mrs. Haynes' husband, the late Orville A. Haynes, and were increased to the present amount by payment of stock dividends. On the theory that the stock dividends were income on the principal five shares, the niece's counsel contends all the shares should go to her. On the other hand, counsel for the W. C. T. U. say stock dividends should be classed as principal property which was intended for the temperance organization.

A Secret of Great Strength and Powerful Muscles

Jack Dempsey, World's Heavyweight Champion, Reveals a Secret of His Training for Great Strength, Energy and Endurance

Science has now proved that your strength, energy, and endurance, that mysterious force that enables you to dominate and control others and win in every walk of life, all depend upon the strength and nature of the millions of cells that compose your body and brain—that the physical strength of these cells depends absolutely on the food you eat, that is, the material with which they are built, just like a house that is built of boards and sand is not so strong as one built of stone and iron. The most important element in building strong, forceful cells is a peculiar form of iron found in the husks of grains and the peels and skins of certain fruits and vegetables, but modern methods of cooking throw these important things away so that today probably not one person in twenty has 100 per cent iron in his body. Jack Dempsey, World's Heavyweight Champion, when training, takes regularly this newer form of iron, known as Nuxated Iron. When great athletes like Dempsey realize the importance of iron in the blood, it would seem that every man, no matter what his work, who wants to increase his strength and bodily powers, would realize how much more important it is for him to build up his energy and endurance with Nuxated Iron. Thousands have secured surprising results in even two short weeks. Nuxated Iron is inexpensive and may be obtained from any reliable druggist.

Clooney came to Lousiana in 1869, established a shipyard and for many years engaged in the building and repair of coastal schooners.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. B. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

ROCK ISLAND WOULD CLOSE FIVE MISSOURI STATIONS

Notifies Public Service Commission It Had Deficit of $289,163 on Business in State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—Declaring the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. had a net operating deficit of $289,163 on Missouri business in six months, attorneys for the road today filed an application with the Public Service Commission for authority to close eight stations in Missouri as a retrenchment measure.

Luther Burns of Topeka, attorney for the railroad, said the income account of the company for Missouri has shown a loss for several years. The deficit cited to the commission was for six months ending June 30, 1923, which Burns said were the latest operating figures available.

The stations the railroad seeks to close, and make nonagency points, are Centaur, St. Louis County; Labaddie and Beaufort, Franklin County; Medford, Johnson County; Nay and Brandon, Benton County; Etterville, Miller County, and Greenwood, Jackson County.

Address to the People and Official Ballot

Of the Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Missouri, as Officially Promulgated by the Constitutional Convention, 1922-1923

(Note—The space reserved in this paper admits the publication only of The Address to the People and the Official Ballot. The Constitutional Convention has endeavored in other publications to reach every voter of the State with full information of proposed amendments and explanations.)

Address to the People

To the People of Missouri:

Your representatives assembled in convention to revise and amend the Constitution of our State submit the result of their work for your consideration and action.

The people voted to call the convention in 1921 and it convened May 15, 1922. There were eighty-three members, two from each of the thirty-four senatorial districts and fifteen from the State at large. The membership was equally divided between the two dominant political parties—it was bipartisan. Four of the delegates were women and in the membership there were labor leaders, farmers, a college president, teachers, bankers, business men, editors, and lawyers. All parts of the State with its many and diversified interests were represented.

The work of the convention was done first by standing committees, to which were referred the articles and sections of the present Constitution, together with some three hundred and seventy-five independent proposals for amendments. Committee meetings were held for the consideration of all proposals and public hearings were held frequently for the convenience of delegations of citizens who appeared for or against proposed amendments. Extensive investigations and studies were conducted, not only of the Constitution and laws of our own State and the workings of our State government, but of other states as well. The committees made their reports to the convention, where opportunities for full and free consideration and discussion were afforded.

Space will not permit a detailed statement of the months of tireless labor devoted to these tasks. Much time of the convention was given to consideration of proposals offered by various persons and organizations, many of which contained progressive and meritorious suggestions but had to be finally rejected because not adapted to the needs of Missouri. Every line of every amendment adopted was condensed and corrected to insure brevity and clarity. The final draft of the amendments submitted is the composite product of the earnest deliberations and careful study of the delegates.

The first Constitution of our State was adopted in 1820, the next in 1865 and the last in 1875. Those who framed the changes embodied in the Constitution of 1875 appreciated the value of historic precedent and attempted to adapt that document to the problems of that day. Conditions in Missouri have changed since 1875, and it has been our aim to propose such changes in that Constitution as to enable our government to function properly in accordance with present needs.

In 1875 the population of our State was 1,721,295; in 1920 it was 3,404,055. St. Louis had a population of 310,864; in 1920 it had 772,879. Kansas City had a population of 32,260; in 1920 it was 324,410. The assessed value of property of the State then was $567,988,490.00; now it is $4,613,901,497.00. The attendance in our public schools then was 169,270; now it is 736,522. The amount of money devoted annually to our public schools then was $1,142,959.93; in 1922 it was $40,499,939.31. The running expenses of the State government have increased more than twenty-fold. Changes, growth and development in farms, mines, factories, transportation, finance, social and economic conditions and education will readily suggest themselves.

There have been many efforts to amend our Constitution in recent years by submission of amendments by the General Assembly or through the Initiative. Since 1908 there have been 93 such amendments proposed, 17 of which have been adopted. The expense of such submissions has been more than $440,000, and the average cost of the adoption of each of the amendments has been more than $25,000. Regardless of the merits of those proposed amendments, or whether they were offered under the stress of local or temporary conditions, they had to be considered in the heat of political campaigns when other issues were claiming the attention of the voters. This convention was called so that if changes were to be made in the Constitution they might be submitted only after full consideration in the light of the whole Constitution and all related matters. This is the first opportunity for forty-eight years that the people of Missouri have had to pass upon amendments framed by a deliberative body chosen for that purpose only by the people themselves. In order that the voters may now have full opportunity to give the amendments fair consideration they are to be submitted at a special election.

Our Constitution contains fifteen articles and a schedule, subdivided into three hundred and twenty sections. The various articles deal with separate subject matters and matters properly connected therewith. The schedule contains the provisions for carrying the Constitution into effect and necessary for conducting the government during the period of change from the old to the amended Constitution.

The three general departments of our State government are the legislative, the executive and the judicial. Each is a special department and in its proper sphere is independent of the others, but all are closely related and the activities of each are interwoven into the activities of the others so that they all form a unified trinity in the transaction of the business of the State. The legislative department is the General Assembly and consists of the Senate and House of Representatives. The executive department consists of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer, State Auditor, Attorney-General, Superinendent of Public Schools and the numerous departments, bureaus, boards, commissions and other agencies to which the administrative and ministerial duties of this department have been assigned from time to time during the years with the result that an unbusinesslike, confused and overlapping administration of the public business has been brought about with great loss of efficiency and unnecessary expenditure of public money. The business of government in this State has outgrown the machinery of government. The judicial department is charged with the administration of justice and consists of all the courts of the State. All these courts should be regarded as one complete judicial body composed of the various courts having various jurisdiction and all the courts in close working relationship with each other for the purpose of giving to the State and its citizens the sure, speedy and inexpensive disposition of litigation to which they are entitled. The present Constitution has provided a judicial system which has prevented our judges from rendering the service which a more flexible system will permit. An effort has been made to simplify and improve all these departments of government.

In the making of constitutions there has been a tendency in modern times to lengthen rather than shorten the statements of necessary principles. It has been the effort of the framers of these amendments to shorten our Constitution wherever it was possible. An attempt is made also to hold fast to all those principles of the older constitutions which have proved their value through the century of Missouri's growth in constitutional government.

The form of ballot will permit a separate vote on each amendment and a majority of the votes cast on any amendment will be sufficient for its adoption.

The members of the convention express their deep appreciation of the honor of the service they were delegated to render.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial report, says:

"Developments in the markets during the week have been consistent with the theory that the disturbance of the previous week represented a minor reaction based largely on sentiment rather than the beginning of a major decline. A drying up of liquidation, a slackening of bear efforts and a fair degree of short-covering occurred in the stock market. The whole affair suggests that while the market had become a little topheavy, the speculative position for the rise was in fact moderate. Considering the note of hysteria sounded throughout the country in connection with the oil scandals and the frank adoption of the bear position by widely advertised speculators, the markets behaved remarkably well. Prices showed considerable rallying power and the volume of selling dwindled. Insofar as the reaction curbed extravagant hopes and strengthened technical positions, it probably was a distinctly useful thing.

The Position of Cotton.

"The position in cotton has been somewhat different in that fundamental factors peculiar to the industry have played a large part in market movements. On the reaction from 31 cents a pound to below 30 cents there were, furthermore, evidences of heavy liquidation by bullish speculators and heavy selling from the other side of the market. Looking back over the past several months, it is fairly easy to see what had happened. Domestic consumption has held up well, particularly in the South. Foreign spinners, however, allowed their stocks to run down last summer to exceptionally low levels; their buying during the fall was correspondingly large. This, combined with underestimates of the new crop, was responsible for the advance to 37 cents. With foreign buying now showing its normal seasonal falling off and with consumption feeling the curb exercised by high prices, the market has been robbed of its former support. The speculative position built up on the rising market meanwhile has been in the process of liquidation. A readjustment has been going on which probably is nearing completion.

"Good recoveries in foreign exchange coincide with evidences of a turn for the better in the European situation. They also call attention to the fact that hysterical fears of calamitous events are as little justified with regard to the rest of the world as in the case of our own politics and business. Ramsay Macdonald is proving a very sober Labor Premier. He is quite giving the lie to those who announced that the Labor Ministry would bring a series of disasters. Macdonald has shown every desire to preserve stability in foreign relations and in domestic business; his Chancellor of the Exchequer is displaying restraint in the preparation of the new budget. An almost comic touch is furnished by the spectacle of the Labor Premier passing a bill to build warships by the aid of the Conservatives and against the protests of his party, giving the latter, meanwhile, a sharp lecture on the real way to secure disarmament. Not the least of the good things which Macdonald has done, however, is his explicit adherence, in a statement in Parliament, to the Cunliffe report. This report, which has been the foundation of British monetary policy since the end of the war, declares firmly for the gold standard and the ultimate return of the pound sterling to its prewar parity.

The Foreign Situation.

"Reports concerning the Dawes reparations committee continue to be encouraging. The experts plainly are agreed on principles and are searching for formulas which will be acceptable to the different parties to the disputes. They recognize the need for a moratorium and for a loan to provide Germany with a stable currency, and they apparently are satisfied that they know how to balance the German budget. At the same time they recognize the fact that Germany ultimately can pay large reparations. This is all very sensible and fair. In the meantime both France and Germany are much more disposed to agree than a few months ago. Germany desperately needs good money and end of financial chaos. France sees that her present policy has proved unproductive and expensive. The franc has gotten out of control; France realizes the need for foreign help in stabilizing it. Under the circumstances it is not unreasonable to contend that the chances for a settlement of this prolonged and exhausting struggle are bright."

"Resumption of trading for the short session after the holiday interruption found only a comparatively few traders on hand, and the market was rather quiet. Stocks, however, continued to show an improved tone and selling pressure was noticeably absent. In some parts of the list there was a revival of bullish activity against the shorts, particularly in the southern rail group, and the majority of the market leaders made gains on the day. Bonds were moderately active and improved their position somewhat.

French Francs Bought.

"Active buying of French francs was easily the feature of the day's trading in foreign currencies. With a good demand for francs at the opening, the price advanced rather easily to 4.34½ cents, which represents a gain of 12 points over the previous close. Reassurance regarding the position of France as a result of the adoption by the French Senate of Premier Poincare's taxation and economy program and more convincing indications of an early agreement on reparations undoubtedly is behind the rally in the franc. Belgian francs also moved up briskly. Sterling was steady at $4.31¼, while other leading European rates were firm both here and at London. Another feature of the market was a further gain of 20 points in the Argentine peso.

Commodity Markets Dull.

"Commodity markets were dull following the holiday and moved in irregular fashion. Cotton traders were reluctant to take a position either way, being influenced partly by a forthcoming statement from the director of the Census Bureau relative to the cotton report issued Feb. 1. While prices ruled for the most part lower, the tone was fairly steady and an early rally on Liverpool's good close was followed by liquidation. At a late price of 31.15 cents, the May future was 32 points lower. Little of interest occurred in the grain markets, though the tone was somewhat more cheerful. Both wheat and corn met with a fair demand at fractionally higher prices.

"A deficit of $5,603,000 in reserves is shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House, which compares with a surplus of $44,000,000 in the previous week. Loans and discounts rose $18,674,000, while demand deposits decreased $11,760,000. Time deposits, on the other hand, increased $12,951,000."

Only Half of Argentine Loan Was Sold.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Only one-half of the $40,000,000 Argentine 6 per cent bonds recently offered in this country actually were sold to the public it was revealed today upon the termination of the syndicate which offered the loan. Members of the banking group were called upon to shoulder 50 per cent of their participation.

Failure of the loan to sell more rapidly was ascribed to preparation which were then under way for floating the $150,000,000 Japanese loan.

Because of the market situation, the syndicate reduced the offering of long-term bonds to $40,000,000, although it had contracted to float $60,000,000 loan to refund a $55,000,000 note issue falling due on March 1. The remainder of the loan was provided for by the sale of $20,000,000 six-month notes, which were privately placed.

Although bankers announced that initial subscriptions to the Argentine issue indicated its success, it was said that the volume of later orders proved to be disappointing.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Leading lines of southern ginghams today were priced for fall on the low basis named by large Eastern mills a few days ago. Business on the lines expanded. The low prices on many finished cottons attracted buyers who want to cover for the next four or five months. Print cloths and sheetings were steadier. Yarns showed little change. Raw silk continued easy. Burlaps were in moderate call. Fall dress goods are to be opened next week by the largest producer. Jobbers report a steady demand for prompt shipment goods. The individual orders were smaller than usual, but they were widely scattered and the total was well up to those of a year ago.

OIL SHARES FEATURE OF SESSION ON CURB MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The curb market closed the week strong with buying operations and short covering still in progress, despite the absence of many traders who were taking advantage of a three-day holiday. Oil shares were the favorites, and many of these sold at their highest prices on the present recovery.

Prairie Oil and Gas at 242, up over five points from the Thursday final, Standard of Indiana at 63½, Solar Refining at 224 against the close of 217 Thursday, were examples for extent of the upward movement in today's brief session.

The sharp advance of Chesebrough Manufacturing, one of the Standard Oil subsidiaries, appeared to have run its course now that the good news regarding a 100 per cent stock distribution is out. A special meeting of stockholders has been called for March 20 to vote upon a change in the capitalization from $1,500,000 of $100 par value shares, to $400,000,000 in shares of $25 per value. The regular quarterly dividend of $3.50 on the common was also declared.

Other outstanding points of strength were Arizona and New Mexico Land around 8, Kresge Dept. Stores about 50, Silica Gel voting trust certificates up almost two points at 27½ and Centrifugal Cast Iron Pipe at 30.

SECURITIES AND TRADE REVIVAL POSSIBILITIES

London Writer Discusses Possible Trend of French Franc Before Real Turn in Situation Comes — Budget and Chancellor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today, says:

"Conclusion of the docker's strike possibly has come in time to prevent a serious check of trade, in which case it is hoped that the revival recently apparent will make further progress," especially if, as will be discussed later, an international trade revival results from a settlement of the reparation problem.

"Assuming that the trade revival goes further, the interesting question arises of whether money rates may not rise to the detriment of gilt-edged securities, though there are general expectations that there may be, if the political atmosphere is favorable, a considerable increase in the speculative and semispeculative markets.

The German Situation.

"The greatest prospect for a termination of the reparation deadlock lies in the apparent change of attitude by France, depreciation of the franc apparently having acted like a cold bath to the French people. Its one desire now seems to be to settle the reparation problem along the lines most likely to bring speedy relief to France in the credits which would result from some large international loan. If the reparation commission evolves a scheme which requires a big international loan for its success, powerful influences, possibly including American, doubtless would be applied to insure a successful flotation. Nevertheless, it is difficult to believe that such an operation can come for some considerable period, inasmuch as the replacement of the present international distrust by real confidence is required to make a loan acceptable. Such a transformation requires time.

"The gold bank proposals are highly complicated and require much in the way of skill as well as in the way of capital resources. Moreover, while the franc temporarily is better and doubtless will improve later if the French budgetary and fiscal reforms are effectively accomplished, it seems probable that there may be a fresh fall before a real turn in the situation comes. Moreover, inasmuch as the franc is unlikely to return to prewar parity, the question of stabilizing it may shortly arise.

National Accounts Satisfactory.

"Our national accounts are satisfactory insofar as there is at present a surplus for the fiscal year of £1,500,000. It is impossible, however, to say how the year will terminate. It is believed that the new chancellor is showing commendable restraint so far concerning the forthcoming budget.

"The financial district now is anxiously awaiting the names of the government's committee to inquire into the national debt and the incidence of taxation with special reference to the effect on trade, industry, unemployment and national credit. I have reason to believe that the committee will be of a responsible character and that the names will be received with satisfaction."

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Two groups—the oil and steel groups—were conspicuously strong in today's two-hour session on the stock exchange. From the outset they assumed the lead and as a rule reached the best prices since the recent check to the downward movement. Elsewhere prices hardened, partly as a result of short covering, and taking the list as a whole there was a general appearance of buoyancy during most of the trading. The ordinarily active favorites, such as United States Steel common, Baldwin Locomotive, Studebaker and American Can, went moderately higher, but were overshadowed by the oils and the low priced rails.

Among the oils, Pacific Oil and Standard of California were especially strong. Standard Oil of New Jersey was ahead, and Sinclair, Houston, Phillips, Marland, Producers and Refiners, Pure Oil and other members of the group went higher.

The Bond Market.

Foreign bonds continued to command attention, particularly among traders who take a speculative position in the market. The feature today was a sharp recovery in French bonds, which was said to be due to the report from Paris regarding the German situation. Japanese bonds also were active, but their price was slightly easier. Liberties were stronger. Third 4¼s again sold at par, while all the other issues were higher.

In the railroad division the buying of the semispeculative issues was the outstanding development, with particular attention to Seaboard Air Line securities.

In corporation bonds, buying of Sinclair and other oil bonds, of sugar convertible bonds and of copper bonds was a feature.

Gilt-edged investments were firm, especially the rails of the best grades.

The total amount of new bond offerings this week was only $35,095,300, compared with $172,625,000 the previous week. Railroad issues led in volume with a total of $13,154,300.

Announcement was made by J. P. Morgan & Co. of the sale of $6,000,000 Hocking Valley 2 year 5 per cent notes at 99¼, to yield 5.40 per cent, without recourse to a public offering.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The market for coffee futures was under pressure of realizing or liquidation at the opening today and first prices were unchanged to 23 points lower. Active months sold about 8 to 30 points below Thursday's closing quotations during the early trading, with March declining to 14.10c and September to 13.05c. Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted foreign exchange market review today, says:

"The market for European exchanges was one of violent fluctuations all through the past week, with the changes in some causing the establishment of new low records. French francs held the most prominent position all through the week, operations in that exchange being determined almost wholly by developments in Paris and by heavy trading in London. These developments in the French capital included panicky conditions in the first half of the week, reflecting a disposition to turn francs into other currencies and transfer capital to as large an extent as possible into securities, and included offerings of French exchange on an enormous scale in this market. The pressure, which was almost pronounced on Tuesday, brought the rate down to the new low record of 4.07½c. A sale as low at 4.05½c was reported, but it was insisted that as the lower offer of cables was at 4.08c there was no reason for any transactions at that extreme level. Belgian exchange also made a new low record, selling at 3.40½c.

"While these declines were in progress sterling held remarkably firm, indicating the transfer of French into other currencies and an ultimate accumulation of sterling. After the first two days, however, dealings in the leading continental rates became more orderly and yesterday the situation abruptly changed, French recovering a good part of its loss and a substantial advance being made in sterling, with other European rates following both the early declines and the later advances. A feature of the South American exchanges was the steady advance in Argentine exchange.

"Active buying of French francs was easily the feature of the day's trading in foreign currencies. With a good demand for francs at the opening, the price advanced rather easily to 4.34¼ cents, which represents a gain of 12 points over the previous close. Reassurance regarding the positon of France as a result of the adoption by the French Senate of Premier Poincare's taxation and economy program and more convincing indications of an early agreement on reparations undoubtedly is behind the rally in the franc. Belgian francs also moved up briskly. Sterling was steady at $4.31¼, while other leading European rates were firm both here and at London. Another faeture of the market was a further gain of 20 points in the Argentine peso.

GRAIN FUTURES HIGHER IN TRADE ON CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—It was a disappointing sort of a market in wheat today. The bulls started out wit ha wild rush being strengthened in their convictions by the advance in Liverpool, the stronger tone in stocks and the upturn in Winnipeg yesterday. They succeeded in seeing ½c advance and then they ran into a stone wall bear defense which prevented any further rise.

Commission houses were the leading sellers. There was some spreading by cash interest who sold May and bought July while local operators bought against sales in Winnipeg. Export trade was lifeless.

Domestic milling demand was quiet. A heavy fall of snow covered most of the winter wheat belt and this relieved apprehension over the approaching cold wave. Shipping sales were 50,000 bushels. Wheat closed ⅛@⅜c higher; May, $1.11@⅛; July, $1.11⅝; September, $1.11½.

Corn was affected by the trend of wheat. Local bulls started to stampede the market two or three times, but the selling orders were plentiful on the bulges. The speculative trade in general and some of the cash handlers lean to the belief that the big run of corn is over. They point out the falling off in consignment notices. A receiver, however, says that weather permitting there will be a big run of corn until March 10. Some of his stations in the country report that they are loaded with corn and are waiting for cars to ship which the railroads have failed to provide. Shipping sales were 35,000 bushels, including 10,000 to exporters. Corn closed ¼@⅜c up. May, 80¼@⅜c; July, 80⅞@81; September, 80⅞@81c.

Oats were affected by the trend of other grains. Trade was featureless. Shipping sales were 36,000 bushels. The market closed unchanged ¼c up. May, 48¾@⅝c; July, 46¾c; September, 43¾c.

Provisions were full and firm with hogs. Hogs were unchanged to ¼c higher; ribs unchanged and bellies, 5c higher.

Hogs and pigs closed lower for the week at the St. Louis National Stockyards, sheep and lambs higher, and cattle generally steady to 25c higher. Combined receipts were moderate, totaling 140,000 head for the six days. Cattle and calves alone aggregated 14,752 head, compared with 18,200 for the previous week. Quality of the arrivals graded common, medium and fair for the most part, there being no choice consignments represented. All classes of beef steers started out higher for the week and the better kinds finished 25c higher. The common end of the offering reacted downward at the week's close, however, and close no better than steady for the period. Steers suitable for killers ranged in price from around $6 per cwt. or underpaid for common "yellow hammers" to $9.60, the week's top. The bulk of all steers in this department cashed in a range of $7 to $8.50. Light yearlings sold fairly active throughout the period and moved up 25c. While the better end of the offerings cashed around $8 and $9, plainer kinds were available at $5 to $7 and under. Butcher cows sold mainly at $4 to $5.75, or about in line with the previous week. Canners and cutters were likewise about steady, cutters cashing at $2.75 to $3.50 and canners making $2 to $2.50, some strong kinds up to $2.75. Bulls advanced 15c to 25c, beef animals with weight commanding $5 to $6.50 largely, followed by bolognas at $4.50 to $5.25. Stocker and feeder steers ruled steady under light receipts and demand, selling mainly at $5 to $6.75. A few choice reached $7.75. Stock cows, heifers and bulls gained 25c. Veal calves continued on a good level, tops during the week commanding $13, $13.25 and $13.50.

Hog Runs Generous.

Generous supplies featured the current week's trading in swine with the total for the six days at 116,937 head compared with 113,554 for the previous week's offering and 111,361 for the corresponding period a year ago. Good quality was noticeable with a comparatively small number of the pig classes represented in the offerings. Although there was a slight upturn in prices at the opening of the week, later sessions featured a steady decline and the close finds prices 20 to 30c lower than the previous week's close. Most of the loss was noted on the light hogs and shippers, the demand at the week's close ruling slow for these grades. Butcher weights from 190 to 250 lbs. are 20 to 25c lower than a week ago with the 160 to 180 lb. kinds clearing at prices looking 25 to 30c under the previous week's finish. Pig prices too are off for the week with the general trade on these classes show'ng a 25c decline. Strong weight pigs from 130 to 150 lbs. are clearing mainly in a spread of $6.25 to $6.75 with the medium weights from 110 to 130 lbs. in weight clearing from $5.75 to $6.25. The light pigs and pee wees from 110 lbs. and down follow the decline of the better grades with sales from $4.75 to $5.75 acording to weight and quality. Packer sows are closing with sales about steady with a week ago, mainly to $6. Stags too show litle change at $4 to $5 largely. The week's close found prices as follows on the diferent grades of swine. Butchers from 190 to 250 lbs. at $7.05 to $7.15, lights and shippers 160 to 180 lbs. at $6.95 to $7.10. Strong weight pigs 130 to 150 lbs. at $6.25 to $6.75, medium weights from 110 to 130 lbs. at $5.75 to $6.25 and light pigs and pee wees from $4.75 to $5.75. Packer sows at $6 mainly and stags from $4 to $5.

Lamb Market Higher.

In the sheep and lamb department proved liberal this week, the six-day total aggregating 7121 head, compared with an offering of 4922 for the six-day period the previous week and 5473 for the corresponding time a year ago. Quality was somewhat better than for the previous week, a fair proportion of westerns being included in the receipts. Markets ruled strong to 25c higher on lambs most of the week, although a weaker tendency was displayed toward the latter part. Compared with the previous week's close, sales closed 25c higher on lambs. Top for the week and also the season reached $15.30, a choice consignment selling to a packer at this price. Good to choice offerings of lambs are quotable at $14.75 to $15.25, the medium to good grades clearing generally at $14.25 to $14.75. For the plain to medium quality kinds prices are quotable at $13.50 to $14.25, depending on the weight and quality of the offerings. Cull lambs are quotable at $10 to $12 with skips at $5 to $8 mainly. Sheep also are higher with advances greater than that shown by lambs. Most of the gain is displayed by mutton ewes, sales of this class closing 50 to $1 higher than the previous week. Good to choice offerings are quotable at $8.75 to $9.75 with the medium to good grades clearing largely at $7.75 to $8.75 and the plain to medium grades at $6.75 to $7.75, depending on the weight and quality. Choppers and bucks look 50c higher with sales at $5 to $6. Canners are 25c to 50c higher at $2.50 to $3.50, occasional offerings selling higher.

Horses and Mules.

Supply of horses was again light the past week and the 150 some odd head on commission moved readily to a fair number of southern and eastern buyers. Work horses, chunks, farm horses, qualitied southerners—in fact, any kind of a desirable horse sold on a satisfactory basis. The only trouble encountered was that there were too many misfits in proportion to the receipts and these did not sell particularly well.

COTTON MARKET IS LOWER AT CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. — The cotton market was less active today but showed continued nervousness and after selling at 30.55c at the opening May contracts broke to 30.05c in the late trading or 40 points net lower. May closed at 30.12c, with the general market closing barely steady net 10 points higher to 35 points lower.

The market opened steady at an advance of seven points to a decline of two points. There may have been a little selling on reports that Lancashire spinners of American cotton had adopted the organized short time proposal and would reduce their working time from 48 to 26¼ hours per week for the next three months. The sentimental effect of this, however, was offset to some extent by the relatively firm showing of the Liverpool cables and the active months old about seven to 14 points net higher during the early trading. The demand seemed to taper off around 30.15 for March and 29.77c for July, however, and prices turned easier later in the morning under liquidation and moderate selling for southern and local account. March declined to 29.70c and July to 29.36c or 25 to 40 points net lower but the close was several points up from the lowest, particularly on the later deliveries as a result of covering. New crop months were relatively steady during the entire day and after selling off from 26.60c to 26.20c, October closed at 26.52c.

Much of the business was attributed to switching between March and later deliveries in preparation for possible notices next Tuesday.

The March discount under May narrowed from 40 points at the close of Thursday to 37 points at the close today. The gossip was that large tenders were likely on Tuesday but that they would probably be stopped by the trade on any widening of the differences between March and May positions. Private cables attributed the steadiness of Liverpool to Continental buying and trade calling in a quiet market.

According to advices received from Washington, the looked for statement regrading the available supply figures of the census bureau was expected either late today or on Monday.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 75,000 bales against 116,000 last year. Part of the early buying was attributed to reports of rather a better demand for cotton goods.

"Nothing Else to Buy"

"What Next?"—was the anxious query more often silently propounded than audibly expressed, as the trade nervously awaited the Rickenbacker pronouncement at the Automobile Show.

—and the answer was—"Nothing Else to Buy."

You will recall that each year since its inception, Rickenbacker has been the outstanding leader in advanced engineering features and progressive policies.

To such an extent is this true, the entire trade has come to look to this concern for something startling when new models are announced.

First, it was a vibrationless motor—with two fly-wheels.

Next it was a "Double Depth" frame—lighter and stronger than the former standard type.

In rapid succession the attention of buyers was concentrated on those other Rickenbacker improvements:

Cradle springs;

Disc steel wheels;

Ball-bearing steering;

"Pipeless" car heater,

And the invention of an "Air Cleaner" which "protects the lungs" and doubles the useful life of the motor.

Last July came an innovation that shook the industry to its very foundations.

That was Rickenbacker's sensational announcement of 4-Wheel Brakes.

By the time this year's show arrived, most executives, dealers and salesmen were in a state of nervous apprehension akin to what one would expect to find these days in Tokio.

All looked, even if they did not voice the query, "What next?—where will the next shock hit, and how severe will it be?"

Rickenbacker's cryptic "center spread" in the Saturday Evening Post, entitled, "What Next?" did not serve to allay, but rather accentuated, the nervous tension.

"What could be done to improve this Rickenbacker car?" was the natural query.

"How could even the Rickenbacker talent make the best better?"

For surely this car had proven so nearly perfect in design, construction and performance no outsider would see any room for improvement.

They naturally wondered what Rickenbacker engineers could be up to now.

Undoubtedly there were secret hopes that Rickenbacker would make some important mechanical change and accomplish the inevitable—produce something that would be less, since it could not be more perfect.

Great surprise was manifested when the trade learned the answer—namely, that Rickenbacker had at last effected certain reforms in sales of automobiles that were quite as important to prospective buyers and quite as disconcerting to competition as were the advanced engineering feats that had been incorporated in this product.

Here was set a new standard of values—a higher code of sales ethics.

Up to this time you had heard of "fully equipped" cars—but had you ever seen one?

As it came to you, every standard automobile was minus many costly features that you, as an experienced motorist, knew were indispensable to safe and pleasurable driving.

These ranged all the way from speedometer—to bumpers.

From an automatic windshield cleaner—to shock absorbers.

From a motometer at front—to a "Stop" light at the rear.

From a transmission lock—to wind wings.

From a rear-view mirror—to four-wheel brakes.

When you had bought and paid for the car you had only started.

You must still pay $100 to $250 before your car was complete.

It was like buying a coat without buttons—a pair of shoes minus laces—a house without a garage.

And—worst of all—these things, being attached as an afterthought instead of being built in as standard, were never so sightly or satisfactory as they should have been.

Rickenbacker executives, always on the alert to retain and increase the leadership this product enjoys, conceived the idea of building, for the first time, a complete automobile.

Increased volume—thanks to the wonderful demand Rickenbacker Sixes enjoy—made certain economies in manufacture possible.

Rickenbacker decided to put that difference into the car.

(It may interest you to know that, at his costs on quantities, the manufacturer can put more of these things into the car for $100 than you can for $150, when installed later.)

There are certain safety devices and conveniences that every owner desires in his car—in fact, finds so essential that he has heretofore paid extra—and heavily for them.

The new Rickenbacker models now come to you with all these. So completely is it equipped there is "NOTHING ELSE TO BUY."

And, most surprising of all, the price on closed models is the same—which is to say, it has actually been reduced approximately $150, because you formerly paid that much extra for the equipment you now receive as standard

In the case of open models, prices have also been reduced considerably.

Of all the sensational moves Rickenbacker has made—of all the improvements Rickenbacker has incorporated and taught intelligent buyers to demand—this latest will probably be most appreciated and best understood by motorists.

For, while the prospective buyer may be led into a maze of engineering technicalities to confuse him when he asks why Rickenbacker cars are free from vibration—

While similar evasions may steer him off the subject when he asks whether cylinders, valves and bearings of motor are protected by an air cleaner—

While sophistry (taking advantage of the buyer's lack of personal experience with this great improvement) may serve to explain away the need of four-wheel brakes—

The most ingenious salesman will find it impossible to explain why he should charge extra for bumpers and the many other things that are now standard in the new Rickenbacker models and at the former price or less.

As in the case of four-wheel brakes, the entire industry will have to follow Rickenbacker's lead, however unwillingly.

Just make a note of those features which you now obtain with your Rickenbacker at the advertised price and demand that any other car you consider should also have all these features, and that each be of the best, as you will find them in the new Rickenbacker.

While you are doing so, and before you purchase any car, study carefully the many engineering features, refinements and improvements that are inherent in a Rickenbacker Six, and all of which you can obtain in no other car at any price.

At the New York Show, thirty-three cars had four-wheel brakes in emulation of Rickenbacker's example—but only six had air cleaners.

Seventy-five per cent of them had disc steel wheels (first announced as standard in the first Rickenbacker Six)—but only twelve claimed vibrationless motors.

Several new models announced "deeper frames"—but none approximated within two inches the dimensions of Rickenbacker's "double depth" frame.

Some of America's most famous cars featured one, two or even three of the improvements:

Each Rickenbacker improvement was featured by a few cars:

But not another car in that entire exhibition could boast of all the features that are to be found in a Rickenbacker, and which, by common consent of the engineering world, have been pronounced fundamental improvements.

When the covers were removed from the sixty-eight exhibits, and before the price tags had been attached, a famous European engineer, who was present, exclaimed: "Without knowing the prices of the cars, I proclaim that Rickenbacker chassis the finest piece of engineering and construction and finish on this floor."

When you consider all these things, the most sensational thing about this car is, after all, its price.

Nowhere else is it possible to obtain so much of value—of performance—of pride of ownership—as you secure in this Rickenbacker Six.

So outstanding is its leadership, so beautiful its design, so famous the name, people of the highest position socially, financially and professionally, buy and drive Rickenbackers in confidence, that their cars will be in keeping with their status and harmonize with their environment.

Rickenbacker has the full approval of the cognoscenti—is first choice of the elect, who buy on intrinsic worth and are swayed in neither direction by consideration of mere price.

For those who base their judgment on comparative values, reputation and performance, and who consider Pride of Ownership in their selection, this Rickenbacker Six is the only car.

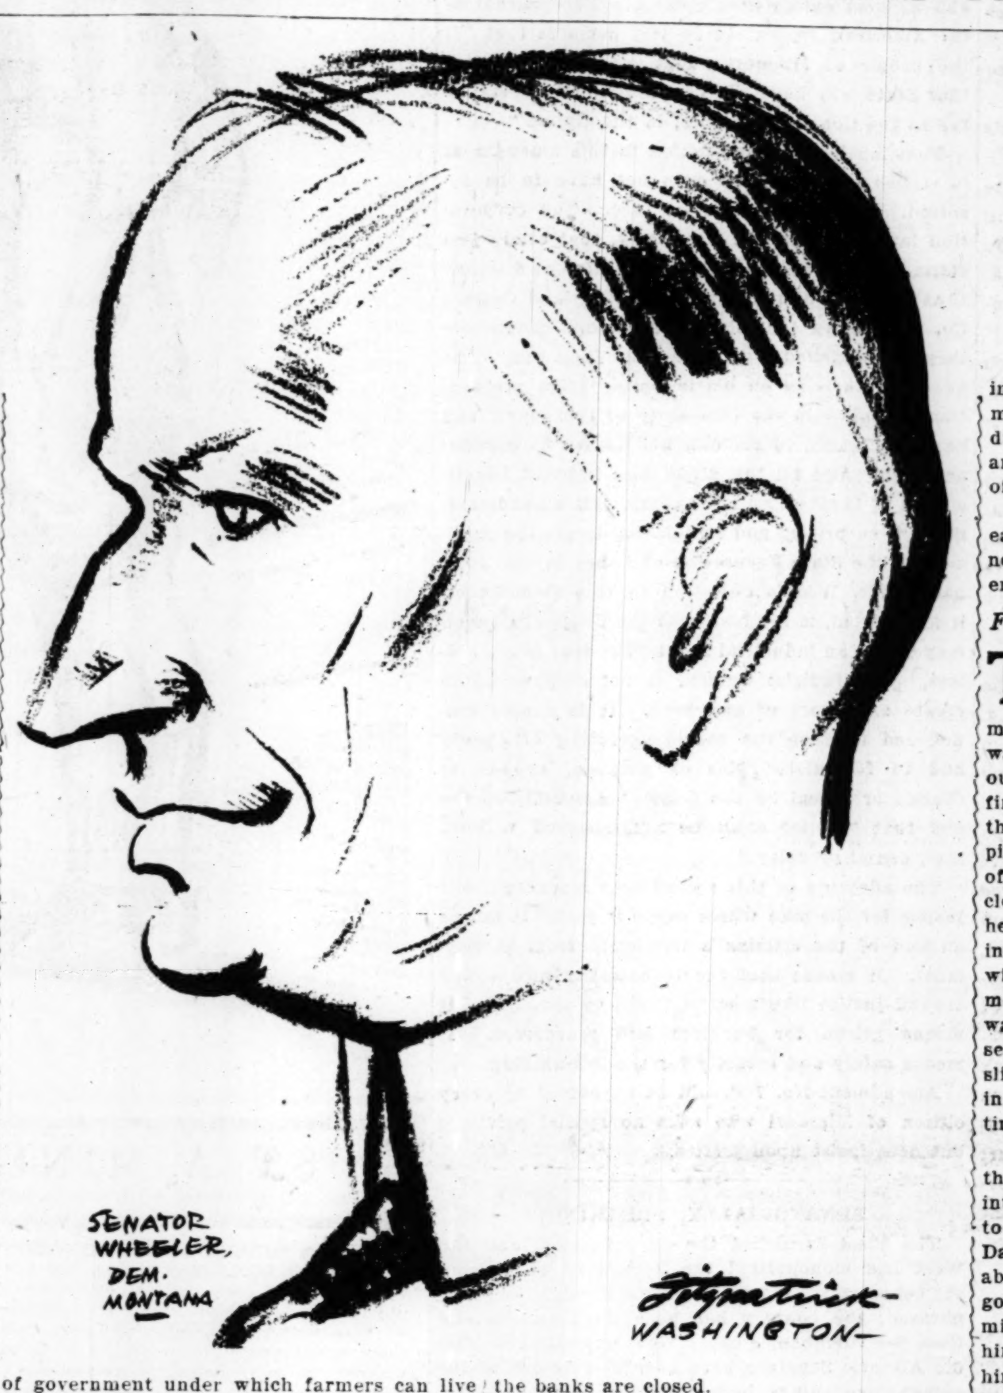
Senator Wheeler of Montana, Daugherty's Nemesis

AS SEEN IN WASHINGTON ON THE JOB BY CLARK McADAMS AND CARTOONIST FITZPATRICK

Fighting Democrat, Who Really Belongs in the La Follette Bloc, Within Two Months After Entering Senate, Kicks Over the Old Guard Republican Bric-a-Brac and Puts His Stamp on That Body; Up and At 'Em Because He Has a Duty to Perform.

When the Loud Speakers Try to Put Daugherty Out by Force of Eloquence, This Montana Senator Puts in a Resolution for an Investigation; Gets Better of Reed in Clash, and When Sealskin Inquiry Gets Under Way Another Missouri Senator Will Know He's in a Fight.



SENATOR WHEELER, DEM. MONTANA
Fitzpatrick—
WASHINGTON—

The Post-Dispatch sent Clark McAdams, of its "Just a Minute" column and D. P. Fitzpatrick, its cartoonist, to Washington to interview and sketch Senators who now are conspicuous in the public eye. Their first work in this series appears on this page. Other articles and drawings will be printed in the Post-Dispatch from day to day.

By CLARK McADAMS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

WHEN the present Congress convened last December the Republican leaders in the Senate undertook to proceed according to the see-nothing, hear-nothing, say-nothing strategy of the celebrated three Japanese monkeys. They saw nothing of the farmer revolt in the Northwest, heard nothing of the financial collapse in the winter wheat belt and said nothing of the certainty that power had passed from them to the Progressives.

This was charmingly naive of the Republican leaders, but they had no more than shown their strategical bric-a-brac than some rude person knocked it into smithereens. Senators Lodge and Brandegee arose sadly to see what might be done about it, but there was no telling one monkey from another or ever putting them together again.

It was that most dreaded of all people in the Senate, a newcomer, who had thus cruelly scattered the simian symbol all over the floor, and in the presence of one so plainly contemptuous of senatorial traditions nobody felt like ringing for the dust pan and brush. Then for long and wearisome weeks the Senate settled down to its fight over the chairmanship of the Interstate Commerce Committee, and at last the Progressives put Senator Smith of North Carolina, a Democrat, in.

Fighting Man With a Duty

THAT was the Senate's introduction to Burton K. Wheeler, the new Democrat from Montana. He had simply risen when unanimous consent was asked for confirmation of the committee slate of the majority party, and had said:

"Mr. President, I object to Senator Cummins as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee."

The Old Guard undertook to abash him by feigning astonishment, but the newcomer persisted.

"I have a duty to perform," he said.

Such a thing had never perhaps been heard of in the Senate, but it seems that in the case of Senator Wheeler this is a fact. He HAS a duty to perform, and because he means to perform it Washington fears and respects him and correspondents run at his heels.

The correspondents call him "Fighting" Wheeler.

A little more than two months is not long for a new member to put his stamp on a legislative body doing its best to put its stamp upon him, but Senator Wheeler has done it. It is with no comfort that the Democrats claim him. They were as unprepared as anybody for the appearance in the Senate of someone with a duty to perform. Senators have obligations to discharge. They have, as in the case of our Senator Spencer, explanations to make which may put a better face upon something that looks pretty bad. They sometimes have what are known in the higher walks of politics as mandates, chiefly from corporations; but a duty—what could THAT be? Even our own Senator Reed, dreadnaught of the Senate, lets down his torpedo nets and stands for shoal water when Senator Wheeler rises to survey the chance of being useful.

Belongs in the La Follette Bloc

THE truth is that Senator Wheeler, who looks the prosecutor that he is and the New Englander that he was, belongs to the La Follette bloc in the Senate. His sympathies and the expectations of his constituents are there. Those people want something done about a more just equalization of the national wealth. They have subscribed to the policy of government for Big Business until it has delivered them into bankruptcy, and now they want to go back to a theory of government under which farmers can live as well as manufacturers, bankers, merchants and middlemen. In Senator Wheeler's state the situation is likely worse than in any other state in the Union. It is a common thing there where there is only one bank in a town for that bank to be closed; but in places where there are more than one bank, such as Havre, Lewiston and Forsythe, all the banks are closed.

"The Progressives first asked Mr. Harding and then Mr. Coolidge to [illegible] special session of Congress to do someth[illegible]out the situation in the Northwest, but both refused," the Senator said.

"We have had three years of drouth in Montana, followed by several years of high freight rates, low crop prices and political indifference here in Washington. Something must be done, but I have not seen any indication since I came to Washington that anyone in authority wants to go to the relief of that section of the country.

"There is an administration tax bill for easing the burdens of the rich but there is no administration plan for helping the farmers."

Fine Looking Head, and Deep Eyes

THE junior Senator from Montana is in his middle forties. He has unflinching blue eyes set deep in his head as if not merely stuck on as an afterthought in the way of so many of our public men and all of our lobsters. He has a long, slender and finely modeled head, and when he thinks how the railroads have been used for financial piracy instead of being placed at the service of the people for honest profit, his long lips close tightly and he reaches for an envelope he can crush into something like a gunwad in the palm of his hand. He is a tall man, with broad shoulders and the flat look of men whose backs seem to fit best against walls. When he moves about his spare body seems to have whalebone in it. He has a slight stoop, light brown hair growing thin in front and a quick, nervous manner of getting down to a thing.

It did not take Washington long to discover that this man is a fighter. It was he who introduced the resolution for investigation into the official conduct of Attorney-General Daugherty. Senator Wheeler is a new man about Washington, and Mr. Daugherty is not going down in a pillow fight. He has the administration and the Republican party behind him. Senator Wheeler has only his coat behind him. That looks like a one-sided fight, but inside the coat there beats a heart that at least cannot go back to Montana without having found out what IS the matter with the Government.

This past week Senator Wheeler has been in a way batting for his colleague, Senator Walsh. The senior Senator from Montana has been towing the Republican members of the oil investigation committee around behind him until he is losing traction, and he has been compelled to rest. He left Senator Wheeler to see that nobody capped the gusher while he had his back turned. There is not much lost on that committee. It may be said that as a committee it has really never committed itself.

Known for Political Courage

IT has been known in Montana for some time that Senator Wheeler has courage. Most men have physical, social, moral, spiritual or economic courage. It is not a severe test. Senator Wheeler has what is extremely rare—political courage. He proved it during the war with Germany, when he was United State District Attorney in Montana. His state is the third largest in the Union, but it was not big enough to resist intolerance during the war. He was. The 100-per centers were after him in full cry from the outset, and the storm that resulted sent him into private life. One night his house was painted yellow. He had received his appointment through Senator Walsh, and when his tenure in it imperiled his benefactor's re-election, Senator Wheeler resigned. But the quality of sanity is not strained in Montana for so long as in most of the states. The winds blow from a more northerly quarter, and there are not so many trees to obstruct it. Montana cooled off. So the man who had refused to help fill the Federal prisons with political prisoners came to the United States Senate after the war with a majority of 20,000.

While other men in the Senate were trying to drive Attorney-General Daugherty from office with the power of their eloquence, the prevailing idea in the Senate of getting things done, Senator Wheeler put in his resolution demanding an investigation. That is characteristic of him. If Government could be cleansed with invective and rendered prophalyctic with torrential speech Senator Reed of Missouri and Senator Heflin of Alabama would long ago have turned it back to the

Constituents Refuse to Let Senator Norris Carry Out His Determination to Quit After Twenty Years in Congress

Nebraskan Had Said He Was Tired of Vain Effort to Get Laws People Wanted—Yields to Pressure, but Refuses to Campaign for Renomination

By Paul Y. Anderson,

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

BETWEEN one horde of men clamoring for public office, and another horde clinging tenaciously to the offices which they have, there appears suddenly the strange case of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who apparently wants only an opportunity to retire peacefully and can't find it. Assuredly, nobody can say until after the November election that he will not retire, but the announcement of his candidacy for re-election makes certain that the event, whatever it proves, will be anything but peaceful.

Several weeks ago, the Post-Dispatch and the New York World printed an interview with the Senator, in which he declared, in striking and vivid terms, that he was convinced of the impossibility of getting legislation in the people's interest, and that he intended to retire at the end of his term. He said: "I have been bucking this game for 20 years, and there is no way of beating it. I've done all I could. Now I'm through."

General Protest.

The demonstration evoked by this publication was decidedly remarkable. Editors of both parties lamented this decision by a Senator conspicuous for useful service and for a lack of partisanship. The weekly Nation addressed an open appeal to him entitled, "Thou Shalt Not Despair." From virtually every state came letters and telegrams from persons of similar political views, imploring him not to quit.

Insurgents like himself, and even some Democrats, lent their voices to this plea, and from such close associates as La Follette and Brookhart came expressions of disappointment that he would voluntarily desert them in what they considered a crucial struggle with the old party leadership.

To a few who were privy to it, one amusing aspect of this cabal was the form which it took in Norris' own office. Stenographers either refused flatly to transcribe letters in which he informed friends of the permanence of his decision or transcribed and forgot to mail them. Telegrams of similar purport were chucked into the waste basket when his back was turned. Supporters back home gave out unauthorized statements saying he would be a candidate. The Senator, in the midst of this, presented an outraged, but amusingly helpless figure. He did what he could. He reiterated to newspaper men his previous declaration that he was not a candidate and didn't want to be a candidate.

Persuaded Against Will.

Finally he was informed that petitions bearing the names of 6000 Nebraska voters, indorsing his candidacy, were ready to be filed. On top of this, came a visit by his colleague, Senator Howell, and a delegation of Nebraska Republicans. At the end of a heated two-hour conference, he emerged from his office and issued a statement announcing his candidacy.

He was red-faced, and his white hair was ruffled. He had all the appearance of a man persuaded against his will. The statement which he gave to the correspondent was a strange one to come from a candidate and it gave Washington politicians a start. He said:

"You ask me why I changed my mind. I haven't changed it a particle. I never wanted to get out of the Senate more than I do this minute. I dread the very idea of another term. I have said that I don't believe I can accomplish anything in the way of effective legislation for the public good, and I still say so.

Leaves It to Voters.

"I have consented to become a candidate for the nomination solely because the question has been put up to me in such a way that I would feel guilty of a dishonorable act if I quit. The sentiment of the men and women who have supported me and kept me here all these years, as evidenced by the signatures on these petitions and in other ways has assumed the form of a command that, to disobey, would, in my opinion, convict me in their eyes of cowardice. Therefore, I have consented to the presentation of my name."

"But," he went on with fresh exasperation, "I don't intend to make the slightest campaign for the nomination. I don't even expect to enter the State between now and the primary. If the voters of my party want to nominate me under those circumstances, they can. If they think somebody else would do better, I will accept their verdict with the most profound and grateful relief."

Cynical Capital Interested.

"But what if you are nominated—don't you propose to make a campaign?" he was asked. The look of troubled obstinacy on his face slowly gave way to what might be called a fighting smile, and he replied:

"Well, that's another matter. In that case, I will have a good deal to say to the people, and I shall expect to say it."

In that expression, one who has observed him and his methods rather closely would suggest, Senator Norris came nearer to revealing himself than in any other. The man who licked Uncle Joe Cannon in the House 14 years ago probably couldn't stomach the suggestion that he was running away from a fight.

At any rate, cynical Washington is more than a little refreshed by the sight of a man who wants to get out of office quietly and cannot.

How a Labor Government for Nine Years Has Run Queensland, Australia, as Told by Country's Premier Loans Made to Workers to Build Homes, With Payments as Low as $5 a Week; Financial Aid to Farmers Enables Them to Get Fair Prices.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOW successfully could a Labor Government conduct a nation's affairs? The question doesn't relate to the promises and hopes of England's new Labor Ministry. It is answered here not by guessing at the future but by the record of actual accomplishment. The Premier of Queensland here tells what his Government, elected by Labor votes, has accomplished during the past nine years.

If you have heard little about Queensland, which is one of the six states in the commonwealth of Australia, don't imagine it is any unimportant country. It has an area of 668,000 square miles—more than that of Texas, California, Montana and New York combined. The whole United States is only five times as large.

It is big, muscular, warm-hearted, young and dynamic—and all five of those adjectives apply to its Premier, whose name is Edward Granville Theodore and who has just visited New York.

Mr. Theodore is big—there is six feet of him. He is muscular—he used to be a miner. He is warm-hearted—for he is planning constantly to make living conditions in his country better and better.

He is young—for he began to take an active interest in politics when he was not only a miner but a minor, and was elected a member of Queensland's Parliament when he was 25. He became Acting Premier when he was only 30, and became Premier when he was 34. He is only 39 now.

Labor Government's Achievements.

He is dynamic—for in spite of his deceptively low-pitched voice in conversation, the young Premier's mission here in New York has been to arrange a loan to Queensland, in defiance of London financial interests who sought to dictate how the Queensland Government should conduct its program. He refused help from London, under such conditions, once before, and by the tilt of his stubborn chin, he is ready to refuse it once more.

The correspondent asked him to describe the actual accomplishments of a Labor Government. He did. He made no reference whatever to what Labor plans and dreams. There was no flying away at a tangent, to talk of "going-to-do." It was all "have done."

"There have been virtually no strikes at all in Queensland since Labor took control of the Government, nine years ago," said the young Premier quietly. "The last really big strike was that of the tramway, or street car employes of Brisbane, our largest city and capital, in 1912. Eventually almost every union in the state was drawn into that strike. The unsatisfactory conditions imposed in those days upon workers in almost every line of industry strengthened the Labor cause, and three years later Labor for the first time polled a majority vote. We had decided we had had enough of strikes. They did the worker no more good than the employer. So, as speedily as consistent with careful planning, we devised and set up the Arbitration Court.

"That Court has been running ever since, and with remarkable success. It passes upon all industrial disputes which do not extend outside the boundaries of Queensland. Those which affect other States as well are adjudicated by the Arbitration Court of the Commonwealth, which also has had a Labor Government. Two Judges of the Supreme Court are assigned to handle the industrial cases. Strikes were common prior to the establishment of this Arbitration Court, and were often long-drawn-out, costing both sides heavily. Now they are rare indeed. We have 118 different trades unions with a total membership of 110,000. Yet in 1922, for example, there were 38 industrial disputes brought before the Arbitration Court, and every one was satisfactorily settled by the Court. Even the ironworkers, who had overruled the advice of their officials and voted to strike, subsequently agreed to take their grievances to the Court and accepted its decision without a strike.

Loans to Workers to Build Homes.

"We decided from the first to make it possible for the worker to own a house, if he desired to escape rent-paying. An act making it possible for the worker to borrow money from the state to erect a dwelling had already been placed on the statute books in 1910, before our time, but under this he might borrow only about $1000, and the loan was hedged about with many difficulties. Since we took control in 1915 this law, the Workers' Dwellings Act, has been amended to make it much more easy to erect such homes, and the amount which may be borrowed has been increased to about $3500.

"No less than 9000 dwellings have been built under this law, at a total expense of some $16,000,000. The state has advanced every penny of this money, and has not lost a penny. Indeed, it makes a profit, which, already amounting to more than $500,000, has been turned into the reserve fund for this work. For the current year the appropriations are $2,300,000, with which 1000 new dwellings will be constructed.

"These houses are comfortable, solidly built cottages of the bungalow type. They are of a score of different architectural designs, and if the workman is not satisfied with any of these designs, he may engage his own architect.

"But we did not rest content with this. Under the Dwellings Act the workman in each case provided the land upon which his cottage

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose priviledged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Prohibitionists Ignore Facts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MISS ANNA GORDON, Pres. W. C. T. U., says that she is satisfied with the progress prohibition is making and that conditions are much better today than before the country went "dry." Can she not see that crime is increasing in leaps and bounds? Not breaches of the Volstead law alone—which are under cover and total millions daily—but murders, holdups, assaults, etc., which it seems the police are powerless to curb. Does she know that a project is now under consideration to add two additional stories to our City Jail? Business there seems to be thriving under prohibition. Does she know that Philadelphia had to import a military man to help keep order in that city? It is in the United States and, therefore, legally dry. Does she know that all recreation days for the St. Louis Police Department have been cancelled? It seems as though prohibition is working the police overtime.

The lady also likens prohibition to an infant four years old, and wants to know if we can expect as much from the babe in swaddling clothes as we can from him when he is a full-grown man. From the horrible conditions brought about so far by the infant, Oh, Lord, deliver us from its effects 20 years hence. Here are the figures of alcoholic deaths of policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. alone, for the years 1920 to 1923, inclusive: During the first year of prohibition, 1920, there were 77 deaths. In 1921 there were 122 deaths; in 1922 there was a total of 293 deaths, and last year alcohol claimed 436. Imagine the death rate when the infant is full grown.

Some prohibition speakers hold the view that when all the drinkers of the present generation have died the next generation will be free from the desire for alcohol. All very nice if the younger folks would only stop drinking, but with no effective State or Government control over the sale of liquor today under prohibition, any boy or girl can buy and drink all they want. Before prohibition this was practically impossible. Now it is considered smart to "carry it on the hip" and accordingly drinking has increased. Were it not for prohibition there would not now be 1800 militiamen under arms in Williamson County, Ill.

Miss Gordon can hardly deny any of the above statements, so where are her "better conditions?" The babe promises to become another monster Frankenstein and steps should be taken to curb its activities before it is too late.

"PROHIBUNKO."

Toiling Babies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOU are to be commended for your recent articles on the employment of child labor in the canneries on the Gulf Coast. A visit to Biloxi some years ago confirms everything you say in regard to this pernicious employment of child labor; also the reference to the intolerable and depressing barracks provided for some of the unfortunates as their homes.

It is really pitiable to visit one of these establishments and see the wee little boys and girls (6 years of age and up) slopping on the wet floor, some of them so small as to be compelled to stand on boxes to reach the tables at which they work, which added to the peculiar smell, makes it a blight on a nation or State to allow such a thing. My visit was near the noon hour, and at the blowing of the whistle the children and old people ranged around the building on boxes, barrels, skids, etc., to eat lunch. You are then again overwhelmed with a devout wish that some way could be devised to give these mites of humanity the privileges and enjoyment of the great out-of-doors.

It will be a humanitarian act if your articles will cause something to be done to do away with these disgraceful conditions and enable these children to get something out of life.

The Foreign Debt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT seems quite a number of the politicians of the Republican party are in favor of canceling the foreign debt, as well as a few Democrats. They have attempted to inaugurate propaganda of this kind among our people. We Socialists are waiting and watching for such a measure to be carried through the Congress of the United States. When it does, the gong will sound, and such a stampede of capitalism and grafters will begin that will make Russia look small. Congress has not the right to cancel this debt; only a two-thirds popular vote of the people should ever be considered, and it is safe to say the people will never give their consent. After the next general election we expect the hirelings to show their heads at the national capital. The Teapot Dome will be only a drop in the bucket of what they will attempt to put over on the American public.

SOCIALIST.

REVIVE DEAD JUSTICE.

It is an unequal battle.

On the one side is a man past 50, blind, partially deaf, badly crippled, who probably never looked into a law book in his life, never read a line of the Constitution of Missouri, and never will.

On the other side are ranged some of the ablest lawyers in the State, the men whom wealthy corporations employ to guard their interests and protect their pockets in cold, calculating defiance of justice.

By the side of those corporation lawyers are the railroad attorneys who also serve their clients faithfully, without regard for justice.

Associated with these able and distinguished members of the bar are the devious and despised snitch lawyers, who thrive upon the unfortunate and share in whatever spoils may be gathered.

Along with all these is the gangster lawyer whose client is the professional criminal and whose retainers and fees come from loot often stained with blood.

The professional bondsman also appears in this strangely mixed company.

Finally, there is the Democratic City Committee of St. Louis, composed largely of gangsters and ward heelers; Mr. R. T. Wood of Springfield, Mo., president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor and, lastly, Commissioner Railey of our Supreme Court, a former railroad attorney.

What chance has the blind man against such massed opposition as this? He has just one chance, and that chance, Mr. or Mrs. or Miss Reader, is yourself.

The blind man in this instance is no imaginary David pitted against a super-Goliath. He is a real flesh-and-blood man. His name is Joseph Sommer. He lives right here in St. Louis. You have heard his story. You read it in the Post-Dispatch of Sunday, Dec. 17, 1922. A brief review will refresh your memory:

Joseph Sommer was working in a quarry of the Continental Portland Cement Co. in August, 1916. An explosion occurred in the blasting operations in which Joseph lost both eyes, the hearing of one ear and suffered other injuries. That was in August, 1916. It was three years before Joseph Sommer got his day in court. He won a verdict of $25,000. The company appealed. It was three years more before the Supreme Court passed on this case. Division No. 1 of the Supreme Court, to which this case was referred, affirmed the verdict of the Circuit Court, but two of the Judges of that division thought the amount awarded excessive. So the Continental Portland Cement Co. took the case to the Supreme Court en banc, which means the entire court—the Judges of both divisions—sitting together. Two days later the court en banc ruled that the trial court had erred in giving certain instructions, held also that the amount of damages was excessive, and reversed and remanded the case.

And Joseph Sommer was back where he had started, his long battle of six years was voided, justice had been denied him absolutely, though, of course, it was his privilege to begin the fight all over again.

Joseph Sommer's case is not an exceptional miscarriage of justice. It is, to be sure, a peculiarly poignant case, because of his dreadful injuries and public sympathy for the wrong done him has been accentuated by the brave struggle of his family, consisting of a wife and three young daughters, through the unfair poverty of the years.

Again, the injustice in this case becomes more glaring because of the wretchedly technical reason given by the Supreme Court in reversing the Circuit Court's verdict. Without going into details the Supreme Court found a reversible error hidden somewhere between the word "negligence" and the expression "not reasonably safe."

Nobody knows how many men are victimized by the technicality in which our courts are now chained. But everybody does realize that our courts are no longer capable of rendering justice. Victims of industrial accidents like Joseph Sommer are obliged to wait years before they can even get into court, and if they get a verdict the case is appealed, and more years of waiting have to be endured and their unquestionably just claim invalidated at the end on hair-splitting construction that mocks the name of justice.

Intolerable and shameful as this is, the incapacity of our courts to deal effectually with criminals is more ominous. Under the twin escorts of the professional bondsman and the preposterous court procedure the gangster pursues his business of robbery and murder in practical immunity from the law. Through the mazes of technicality the professional lawbreaker dodges and twists and evades punishment. In effect, the professional criminal has become superior to the courts. He is beyond the law. So we have gang wars, waged on the teeming streets of cities, with fusillades of bullets endangering the lives of law-abiding citizens and creating a reign of terror that is a reproach to our whole system of courts, to every reputable member of the legal profession and seriously threatens the existence of government by law.

Constitutional Amendment No. 7, which we shall vote on Tuesday, undertakes to reorganize our courts so that delays will be minimized, justice will again be obtainable and the criminal's immunity from punishment be ended. The plan proposes to apply business methods to the operation of our courts. For instance, if a Circuit Court Judge has cleared his docket and has nothing to do, the Judicial Council is empowered to assign that Judge to a court which is congested. It also proposes to establish sane rules of practice and procedure which shall not deny or change any remedy or substantive right given by law, but which shall banish technicality and enable causes to be tried and determined on their merits. Reversals of cases because a word like "the" is omitted from an indictment, or a minor error not affecting the merits of the case is made, will be impossible. This, of course, is plain common sense.

There can be no honest opposition to the intent of Amendment No. 7, to the great objective it aims to achieve. There may be honest differences of opinion as to the efficacy of the plan, but there was ample time for making such objections during the constitutional convention. An enormous body of work, of the highest quality, was put into the drafting of this plan, which is approved by the ablest, most enlightened opinion. The journal of the American Judicature Society declares that "If the people of Missouri adopt Amendment No. 7 that State will have the best system of courts, so far as the Constitution goes, in the Union."

That much of the opposition to this amendment is selfish and insincere does not have to be asserted. It is obvious on its face. The corporation interests that profit by delay, that evade just claims through technicality, that wear down unfortunate victims as the Continental Portland Cement Co. wore down the blind man, Joseph Sommer—they are satisfied with things as they are. The gangster, thriving on his immunity from prosecution, is happy in the incapacity of the courts and naturally wants to prolong his license to plunder and kill. And all the direct and indirect beneficiaries of lawlessness are against this amendment. But it is surprising and astonishing to see the president of the State Federation of Labor in this company. Mr. Wood's objection to this amendment, it is reported, is his fear that the Judicial Council may create an industrial court. The fear is groundless. The Judicial Council is not empowered to create any court of any kind. It is simply empowered to keep the courts operating efficiently and to formulate rules of practice, subject to change or repeal by the General Assembly to the end that "justice shall be administered without sale, denial or delay."

The adoption of this amendment means quicker justice for the man whose cause is just. It means an end of the criminal's immunity from punishment. It means that the technicality now coiled around justice like a serpent will be smashed. It means prison for burglars and murderers. It means safety and security for the law-abiding.

Amendment No. 7 should be supported by every citizen of Missouri who asks no special privilege but does insist upon justice.

SENATORIALLY SPEAKING.

The West furnished the oil sensation, and the West has monopolized the honors of uncovering the conspiracy. In recent events, it might be paraphrased, the country has been dead senatorially from the Alleghenies east. New England and Middle Atlantic Senators have been clearly out of the game since things began popping in the Senate oil committee room.

The West has been full of firebrands. Montana has had more than its share for an obscure, unimportant State, with the inexorable Walsh and the hard-hitting Wheeler, the nemesis of Daugherty. Wisconsin has furnished La Follette and Lenroot. Arkansas has contributed Robinson, author of the Denby resolution, and Caraway, the terror of indiscreet Republicans. Kendrick of Wyoming rooted up the first facts about Teapot Dome, and Dill of Washington has made a stir from the floor.

No section need have a monopoly on honesty and senatorial power, but public officials are more or less a reflection of their constituencies. The East has been expanding at the belt, the West at the oat band.

After Prince George of England was robbed of a suitcase on a recent journey the fact came out that the case contained, along with wearing apparel, "two silver-topped bottles marked G, with a royal crown." Lucky for the Prince that he was not traveling in America! He would have been arrested on suspicion.

ANOTHER CAUSE FOR THANKS.

Should anybody continue to doubt the fact of a contemporary social revolution in England, let him consider the item of King George's recent decision that court etiquette does not require gold braid, knee breeches and the other deviations from ordinary attire regarded heretofore as essential. We are advised, since the advent of the Labor Government, "that Ministers of the Crown shall be constrained to nothing more expensive or ceremonial than the dress of ordinary citizens in a civilized society when attending court functions."

Reforms sometimes arrive too late to do some folks any good. Now if the King had but promulgated this progressive ukase in the time of George B. McClellan Harvey, that specimen of one of the late Mr. Harding's best-mind selections, need not have clothed the nether section of its corporeal shuck in short breeches, thus publishing to the world the fact that our illustrious Ambassador at the Court of St. James possessed spindle shanks not adequately representative of the average American.

It is to be hoped that Ambassador Frank Kellogg, the secret of whose legs remains sub rosa, may be sufficiently grateful to his majesty for this startling reform in court-dress requirements. The American people surely should be grateful, if only for the fact that our new Ambassador will be able to pay more attention to his language and less to his legs than did his predecessor.

THE GROWTH OF MISSOURI.

JUST A MINUTE

JUST A MINUTE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The oil inquiry was suspended for a week to encourage people to come back to town. The population of Washington is chiefly political, and is, therefore, susceptible to alarms with which people in nonpolitical communities are wholly unfamiliar. There has been no housing problem in Washington since the oil inquiry began. The usual pressure around apartments and hotels has been transferred to outgoing trains. Senator Walsh said he was exhausted. He had, indeed, pursued some of these migratory Washingtonians as far as Palm Beach; but what he likely had in mind was that by resting the investigation a bit he could induce greater confidence in Washington as a place of residence. If it should be announced at any time that investigation of all the scandals in the Government were to be resumed simultaneously upon the following Monday the national capital would speedily resemble Goldsmith's deserted village. It is not that everybody is implicated, but that everybody has at least heard something. It is a terrible thing to be put on the stand and asked to tell what you have heard. This was the undoing of Mr. Vanderlip, and it will be recalled that answering the charges of Senator Wheeler, the Attorney-General demanded primarily to know who had told the Senator these things. Washington has abundant means of penalizing tale-bearing. It is the one unpardonable crime in the eyes of Washington society, and the social bloc is rated in influence here above the press. The social and political blacklist await the tale-bearer, and if you are out upon both those scores in Washington you are one with Nineveh and Tyre.

The Senate has for a second time rejected the nomination of Walter L. Cohen as Comptroller of Customs at the port of New Orleans. Cohen is colored. He is more than that, and what is perhaps seldom known in our heterogeneous citizenship, a colored Catholic. As a negro, a Republican and a Catholic, he may be said to lack only one attribute as the personal embodiment of all the prejudices of the South, in that he is not, so far as anybody nows, an evolutionist. Mr. Harding first nominated him for the post, and now Mr. Coolidge has repeated the nomination. The senatorial rejection during this week was by two votes, or close enough to indicate belief in the Senate that he probably is not a disciple of Darwin. The Republican leaders are at a loss to know what can be done about it, but it really looks as if the many-sided Cohen would have to continue his political career up North.

Apropos Darwin, there is considerable interest here in a recent visit to Mr. Bryan at his home in Florida by Mr. Hearst and Arthur Brisbane. Brisbane says the Democratic patriarch has a lovely place in Miami, with his own vine and fig tree shading the yard and the blue waters of the Gulf dancing at his back door. He offered his visitors cocoanuts and oranges picked by his own hands, but whether he climbed his own palm trees or how he got the cocoanuts down Arthur does not say. What one does read between the lines is that Mr. Hearst is trying to capture Mr. Bryan's support for one or both his candidates for the presidential nomination; that is, Senators Reed and Copeland. It is accepted that McAdoo is not to have Mr. Bryan's aid. As to which of his candidates Mr. Hearst is thought to entertain hopes of this alliance, it is presumed that he will in time cast off our own Senator and strike for Copeland. Some people think both of them rolled together would not make a presidential candidate, but it is agreed that either of them rolled by Mr. Bryan would be in a terrible fix. Anyway, Messrs. Hearst and Brisbane got back.

There was a delegation from New Mexico here this week to invite Mr. Coolidge down to a good roads rally and an opportunity to shake hands with Gen. Obregon in the middle of a bridge over the Rio Grande. That would be hands across the glad-to-see-you.

LUKANNON.

(This is the great deep-sea song that all the St. Paul seals sing when they are heading back to their beaches in the summer. It is a sort of very sad seal national anthem and after you have read it you will know whether you like to have your wife wear a sealskin coat).

THE DOCTOR.

I MET my mates in the morning (and Oh, but I am old!)
Where roaring on the ledges the summer ground-swell rolled.
I heard them lift the chorus that dropped the breaker's song—
The beaches of Lukannon—two million voices strong!
The song of pleasant stations beside the salt lagoons,
The song of blowing squadrons that shuffled down the dunes,
The song of midnight dances that churned the sea to flame—
The beaches of Lukannon—before the sealers came!

I met my mates in the morning (I'll never meet them more!)
They came and went in legions that darkened all the shore,
And through the foam-flecked offing as far as voice could reach
We hailed the landing parties and we sang them up the beach.
The beaches of Lukannon—the winter wheat so tall—
The dripping, crinkled lichens, and sea-fog drenching all!
The platform of our playground, all shining smooth and worn!
The beaches of Lukannon—the home where we were born!

I meet my mates in the morning, a broken, scattered band.
Men shoot us in the water and club us on the land:
Men drive us to the salt house, like silly sheep and tame,
And still we sing Lukannon—before the sealers came.
Wheel down, wheel down to southward; oh, Gooverooska go;
And tell the Deep-sea Viceroys the story of our woe:
Ere, empty as the shark's egg the tempest flings ashore,
The beaches of Lukannon shall know their sons no more!

CHURCH AND STATE AFFAIRS.

Edward S. Martin in Harper's Magazine.

THE mass of our people is very much better instructed in religion than in European politics. In the great fight between liberals and the fundamentalists the Bible readers of the country know at least what it is about. They know the Bible more or less, and are acquainted with Adam, Noah, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Jonah, Elijah, and some of the prophets. You could find a thousand Americans who can tell you the names of all the books in the Bible to one who could name the present states of Europe. What they know about Darwin or the theory of evolution is another matter. They may imbibe a vast deal of misinformation about both, but at least in the religious controversy they know the names of the characters discussed and probably will add to their knowledge by following the discussion. So in the dispute which of late writing has suddenly blazed out in the Episcopal Church, at least they know what the Virgin Birth means, and though, like everyone else, they may have very little capacity to judge whether or not the story about it is true to fact, they should have some power to form an opinion as to whether belief in it is essential to the usefulness of a Christian minister. The fundamentalists know that there is something very valuable in the Bible and think that if they do not fence it in it will get away. The liberals agree about the value, but think the Bible is more able to take care of itself than the fundamentalists suppose. Both, however, know in considerable measure what they are talking about, and that is more than can be said for most Americans who talk about Europe and discuss the League, the Court and the Tribunal.

How Labor Government Has Run Queensland for 9 Years

was to be built. The site he held in freehold might be located anywhere in the State, and the money for building was loaned to him. He decided to help the man who didn't own land already. A year ago, therefore, we put into effect the Workers' Homes Act.

Payments $5 a Week.

"Under the homes statute the State not only lends money for building a home, but for purchasing the land. The State buys blocks of land in suitable and pleasant districts. The worker takes possession of his house as soon as it is completed and his initial payment is not more than $100 in cash. From then on he pays for the house in weekly installments no higher than rent—$5 a week, or threreabouts.

"When he enters into the contract to buy the house he takes out an insurance policy at the same time so that in case of his death the [illegible] is protected against loss and his widow has an opportunity to buy the cottage. The cost of this insurance is included in his weekly payment of $5. Complete title to the house is thus reached in about [illegible] years. The same sort of insurance is provided for workers buying homes under the dwellings act.

"Both these forms of aid are administered by the State Advances Corporation, which also has charge of a third form of assistance to the worker—the lending of money to persons opening up new agricultural lands. This department is known as the Advances to Settlers. Under it, in the fiscal year 1922-[illegible] loans totaling $1,750,000 were made to 1000 different settlers—and chiefly for the erection of farm or plantation buildings, to clear virgin ground, for fencing and water supply and to buy livestock, agricultural machinery and implements.

"This brings us to still another governmental enterprise, one which so far as I know, has not yet been inaugurated in any other country and which we consider of the greatest significance. It is the financing of agricultural producers, so as to enable them to receive proper prices for their products and to purchase the materials they need without having to submit to exorbitant prices.

Financial Aid to Farmers.

"We assisted the farmers to become organized so that they could take a more active part in the development of agriculture in the State and so they could better formulate and carry through a policy of co-operative enterprise, statewide agricultural credits and agricultural betterment.

"For two years the Government financed the preliminary organizing work. Within 12 months 520 local producers' associations were established, embracing 17,000 farm owners. This body is controlled by an executive caled the Council of Agriculture. This body speaks with one voice for the entire farming community. The Government derives its agricultural policy—both legislative and administrative—from the Council of Agriculture. Thus the farmers now have a direct influence in solving their problems—they have become articulate as a class. At the request of the Council of Agriculture a primary producers' pools act was passed, enabling the farmers to establish pools for the control of any particular line of agricultural product. A referendum is taken among the farmers engaged in producing the commodity affected and on the vote being carried by two-thirds majority the whole of the product in question goes into the pool and is handled and marketed by a board elected by the farmers for that purpose. Wheat, sugar, maize, tomatoes, arrowroot, butter and cheese have already been dealt with in this way. The pool boards are financed by the trading banks under a Government guarantee. The operations of the sugar pool involves 7,500,000 pounds sterling (normally $37,500,000) per annum.

"Harm to None, Benefit to All."

"It has been a radical and a successful enterprise. I know of no other country in which this degree of assistance has been supplied. I believe you have a system of extending farm cerdits to individuals in this country, but not to groups. Our scheme works. It works with harm to no one and benefits to all.

"The Council of Agriculture consists of 25 members, five of whom are governmental officials appointed as experts on the industries concerned, and including the Minister of Agriculture as head of the council, and 20 are chosen by the various producers — from the wheat, cotton, fruit and general agricultural branches.

"Until this law was enacted there had been no co-operation among individuals engaged in any one agricultural industry. The old Conservative Party, in order to split the ranks of Labor in our Parliament, had indeed supported candidates of what was called the Country Party, ostensibly pledged to favor agricultural aid, but in reality blocking it.

"We Laborites decided something practical ought to be done. And when we had formulated this plan the Country Party members came around to our side.

"Agriculturists for the first time got practical aid instead of promises. And let me make it clear that the desires of the agricultural workers of Queensland are not looking solely to get a shilling more on a bushel of wheat, or to cut down what they have to pay for manufactured goods, but to improve the conditions of life in general—to promote better farming, better economic conditions, to teach agricultural science, to make living conditions in rural districts more endurable and nursing care such as can be obtained in the cities, to make life richer in every way.

Economic Conditions.

"Our Labor Government has worked to bring this about in both country and city. Queensland was has prospered in the decade in which we have been given the Government. The wages of our workers, taking all 14 industrial groups, range from $16 to $22 a week, and average $18.50 a week—the highest scale in all the six states of Australia. Their hours of labor range from 44 to 48 weekly, with an average of 45½, the shortest in all six Sates. Simultaneously, the margin of profit to the employer is higher in Queensland than elsewhere in the Commonwealth. The cost of living is lower. The average savings bank deposits is about $175 per capita, teh highest in al Australia. Governmental supervision of health has brought infant mortality down to 53 per 1000, the lowest in Australia. In the United States, I believe, it is 78 per 1000.

"Ten years ago, with a population of 650,000, our total State budget was about $28,000,000. Now our population has increased to 810,000. The governmental budget is $75,000,000. Five years ago our trade balance was $23,000,000. Now it is $43,000,000. Ten years ago the value of Queensland's wool clip was $15,000,000. Now it is $40,000,000. The sugar crop was then worth $11,000,000. Now is is $21,000,000. Other farm products have increased in value during the decade from $25,000,000 to $72,000,000. We began to foster the cotton industry. We grew no cotton five years ago—now the value of the annual crop is $3,000,000, and it is increasing rapidly year by year.

"All these things are bringing new capital and increased population to ueensland rapidly. In six months last year 10,000 new settlers arrived, over and above emigration.

"We are prosperous and on a thoroughly sound foundation of prosperity. But we did not arrive by easy sailing. We encountered stubborn resistance to many acts of legislation whose wisdom has been established by the facts.

"First of all, when we began our task in 1915, we faced a hostile Upper Council, only two of its 42 members being Laborites, and all appointed for life by the Crown. Year after year they threw out labor legislation. In time we gained a little by increasing the number of members and causing the appointment of Labor candidates, but eventually we were obliged to legislate the Upper Council out of existence, this taking effect, with the royal assent, in 1922. The Lower House has been steadily filled with a Labor majority at each of the three elections since 1915, and we believe Labor's majority is destined to increase from now on.

"Our next difficulty was in the antagonism shown by London financial interests toward the Queensland Government's policies, when we sought to float a loan there and their desire to control our policy. We have declined to yield in any sense to dictation of that sort and consequently have remained off the London money market for the last four years. Since 1920 we have financed our public works and State development projects by loans taken up in Australia and, on two occasions, in New York.

"Catering to the Worker."

"The London financiers told us bluntly that we had no right to break contracts made by a previous Government to protect landed proprietors, may of whom lived in England, in their revenues. No such contract was ever made. They attempted to dictate to us an abandonment of our program for workingmen's insurance, being alarmed for the profits of stockholders in private companies. We showed them that we were creating no State monopoly of such insurance. To all their attempts at dictation, we replied:

" 'We are not answerable to you. We are answerable only to the people who elected us. If ever we engage in any unsound or ruinous program, it is the right and the duty of the people to remove us. But it is for them, not you, to decide governmental policies.'

"I have briefly outlined the actual accomplishments of a State whose Government is that of the worker. I say, and I say it with pride, we cater to the worker. The word means the worker with the brain, the worker with hands, the worker with capital. We are a comparatively new State in which there are few idlers. We mean to have none at all. We have catered to the worker, whether he be employer or employe. And the things already accomplished show the security of that foundation."

people whiter than snow. This is not the way of Senator Wheeler. After listening to some of these spellbinders for a while without being told what might be done about it, the untalkative newcomer from Butte offered his resolution. Action expressed what he felt about it, and if he experienced horror, humiliation or any other sensation at the moment he did not say so.

ATTEMPTS to suppress Senator Wheeler in the Senate have ranged all the way from exclamations of amazement to charges that he is breaking precedent. In the Senate, to break a law is human, perhaps pardonable; but to break a precedent is impolite and therefore unpardonable. Sometimes there are complaints that he is wasting his own time and that of everyone else, a favorite ruse to suppress young men in the Senate displaying too much initiative.

Senator Reed of Missouri tried this on the Montana insurgent during the fight on Senator Cummins.

"What difference does it make who is chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission?" asked Senator Reed.

"All right. Then why not elect a progressive?" the younger man retorted.

That put the Missouri Senator into his seat in a hurry, for it did make a difference. It made such a great difference to the progressives that not a man among them could have voted for Senator Cummins or anyone else acceptable to the tories in the Senate without certainty of being thrown out of office by the voters at home.

"That is the test of the issue between us," Senator Wheeler said.

He does not often talk in the Senate. None of the Progressives do. Their leader, Senator La Follette, has made only one speech in the present session. Senator Wheeler did more talking when he introduced the Daugherty resolution than he has done since he took his seat. This was because there were some things felt by the Progressives to need saying, but still being hard to say. Senator Wheeler could say them. The Senate was, of course, amazed. Most of the regular Republicans were scandalized. Senator Willis of Ohio said the Senator from Montana had insulted the presiding officer of the Senate in seeking to take the appointment of the Daugherty investigating committee out of his hands. No such thing had ever been heard of in the Senate as that a Senator should appoint a committee of that sort and name himself a member of it.

Senator Wheeler has but one answer to all this. He has a duty to perform.

The Big Sealskin Contract.

In the course of performing that duty he will get around to our other Missouri Senator in the matter of the Government sealskin contract. This investigation is in the hands of a committee of which Senator La Follette is chairman and Senator Wheeler is a member. The contract was investigated by another committee two years ago, but was not annulled. With Senator Spencer as its chief defender and the Senate better organized by the Old Guard than it is now, it was in rather a better way than it will be with Senators La Follette and Wheeler on the investigation committee. Anyway, "Fighting" Wheeler, with war on several fronts, is also mixing his war-paint for that one and a gallery has already begun gathering out ahead, as they do at golf matches.

"I am sometimes told that I am unpatriotic, but I think the true patriot is the man who helps to make his country be honest," Senator Wheeler said.

Then he smiled in his fine and flashing way, seeming to hear somewhere the battle calling.

Compare J. Orlick's Canaries

With any birds offered for sale. Their wonderful song has won the admiration of hundreds of satisfied customers.
"I am more than pleased."
"I am well satisfied."
"The singer cannot be any better."
"We are perfectly delighted."
Are only a few of the praises I receive. My Canaries are strong and healthy, bred and kept in large sunny flying rooms until they are 5 to 6 months old. Their training is backed by 35 years of experience, with only one aim—to produce high-grade singers.
There are more fine rollers in full song in my house than in all other places combined.

25 'LEAP YEAR GIRLS' TO MEET AT SHOW

Will Be Guests at "Le Scandale du Soldat" to Be Given by Legion Post.

Twenty-five "Leap Year Girls" —each born on Feb. 29—will meet next Friday evening to congratulate and console each other on having but one birthday every four years.

The "girls"—the youngest is 4 years old and the eldest is 60—will get together at the annual show and dance party to be given by the Fred W. Stockham Post of the American Legion, at Moolah Temple, Feb. 29. The post invited all girls and women born on Feb. 29 and residing in or near St. Louis to be guests, and 25 responded and qualified by submitting the day, month and year of their birth.

The youngest "Leap Year girl" is Gertrude Mae Silverstein, who was born in 1920. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Silverstein of 1204 Hodiamont avenue. The oldest guest will be Mrs. Rebecca Shoultz of 2119A Olive street, who was born in 1864. Twin sisters—Mrs. Thomas Walk of 1223 South Thirteenth street, and Mrs. Luther Seel of 1033 Park avenue, who were born in 1880, are represented.

Following the performance of a musical comedy, "Le Scandale du Soldat," the guests of honor will receive birthday presents which have been donated by St. Louis firms. The League of Overseas Women will serve lunch after the show and during the dance.

Guests of honor, in addition to those already named, will be:

FEET HURT?

See the Expert—Get Foot Relief!

Tired feet, weak arches, callouses, run-over heels, pains in heels and lower limbs and most backaches wouldn't exist if every one of the twenty-six bones in the foot was in proper position. If you are troubled in this way more than likely you wore shoes that crowded some of the bones out of place and have played the mischief with the architecture of your feet.

Now you can have absolute relief from your Foot Troubles. You positively can! Furthermore, you do not have to wear heavy, cumbersome metal plates and you do not have to wear odd-shaped shoes. You can have relief in shoes of the very smartest style. The new-day method makes this possible. It consists of adjusting small all-leather devices, designed for your particular needs, in your shoes to align the 26-bone structure of your foot and hold it in normal position. ANNUAL REPORTS ON WORK OF FATHER DEMPSEY'S HOTELS

"We Seek to Aid—We Do Not Embarrass by Follow-Up Investigations," He Says.

The annual reports of Father Timothy Dempsey's three institutions—the Workingmen's Hotel, Workingwomen's Hotel and the Day Nursery—show an average of 210 men cared for each night last year; a daily average of 72 women and a daily average of 388 children cared for at the nursery by Sisters of Charity.

The total receipts at these institutions, including donations, amounted to $41,081.24, and expenditures, $40,901.17. During the year 29,784 meals were served, of which 980 were free, and free lodging was given to 450 persons. Employment was obtained for 85.

In presenting the reports, Father Dempsey expresses gratitude to benefactors, and informs prospective applicants that there is no social service system connected with any of the departments.

"We seek to aid men, women and children," he said. "We do not embarrass them by so-called follow-up investigations."

QUALITY is the predominant characteristic of this beautiful Mohair Suite. Through and through it embodies those invisible values the lack of which invariably results in disappointment to the purchaser. For instance, in the interior construction, the highest grade of webbing is used for reinforcement and the most painstaking care is exercised in tying and securing the double springs to insure permanency.

The Suite is covered all over in genuine taupe mohair without figure. Pure silk tassels hang from each arm and the loose cushions are adorned with moss edging. The frame is of solid mahogany artistically hand-carved and exquisitely finished. You can invest your money in this Suite with the full confidence that it will render many years of satisfying service.

Should your requirements not include the entire Suite you can purchase the pieces separately in any desired combination. We want you to see this value before you purchase anywhere else. We unhestitatingly guarantee it as worthy of your earnest consideration. It is specially priced.

How "The Law's Delay" Results in Denial of Justice to the Poor Man in Our Missouri Courts

AND HOW THIS SYSTEM CAN BE OVERTHROWN ON TUESDAY NEXT

VOTE YES, SCRATCH NO ON AMENDMENT NO. 7 TO THE CONSTITUTION

Why and How It Is Being Fought in St. Louis by Gangsters and Underworld Leaders—Democratic City Committee With Many Notorious Members Lines Up Against It.

DESPERATE war aided by menacing secret influences from the underworld of St. Louis is being waged against reform of the Missouri judiciary system as proposed in the Seventh Amendment to the Missouri Constitution to be voted on next Tuesday.

Against this amendment has been arrayed the influence of great railroads, of misguided labor leaders, of machine politicians, of powerful leaders of city gangsters, who figure mostly in the news in connection with the midnight assassinations that puzzle the public and the police.

On Tuesday the ballot of the good citizen, voting his convictions that the provisions of this amendment would "make justice more certain, more adequate and less expensive," will be offset by that of the minion of a gang leader, acting on the orders of unseen influences which have demanded defeat of the reform, because it might make the way harder for the gangster and his associates when they reach the courts.

The good citizen, his wife, his young business man son, perhaps his stenographer daughter, expressing with ballots their hope that this change will make Missouri a better and a safer place in which to live, can visualize the scene at polling places to which are sent, or called, or herded the troops of a city political machine.

For the Democratic City Committee of St. Louis has ordered its precinct men to "go down the line to beat No. 7." It has sent to them thousands of pink sample ballots or voting orders, with No. 7 scratched, the only one of the 21 amendments so indicated.

Gangster's Minions Must Follow Orders Election Day.

These "troops" do not worry their minds with what it is all about. Their thought is of other things. The bosses, those guardian angels who come to their aid in time of trouble, have spoken. And it is on election day that the subject repays his political master for services previously renedered.

So curtained automobiles will roll up to the polling places, disgorge their crews, who will get pink "voting orders" from a precinct worker, march in, leave their finger prints upon the fundamental law of the State, and be off, their jobs done, their debt paid for the time.

These "yes" and "no" votes are to determine whether the courts of Missouri are to remain "cumbersome, expensive and subject to unreasonable delay in final determination of cases" or whether they shall be made to afford "a certain remedy for every injury to person, property or character, administered without denial or delay." It is a vital change in the fundamental law of Missouri, the Constitution set up to guarantee to Missourians their rights and to serve as a bulwark against encroachment by pitiless coalitions of greed or crime.

Body of Public Opinion Speaks in Amendment.

Since 1820, when its first Constitution was adopted, Missouri has had a government of three branches, courts, legislature and executive officials. The fabric of that government has remained unchanged in its broad underlying essentials from the beginning. Nor does the proposed amendment No. 7 undertake to warp or distort the machinery of the State's court system. Its sole purpose is to modernize the old machine, to equip it with improvements which will enable it to handle the "peak load" of litigation, which, due to the increased population and multiplied complexities of life of the State, has outgrown the maximum speed of the old engine.

For a decade citizens, press, attorneys and Judges have clamored for changes in the court system which would enable persons with disputes about property and other civil rights, to have their rights determined within a reasonable time and without oppressive expense; which would enable innocent persons charged with criminal offenses to be tried and their status settled without long delays, which stamp them while under charges with the brand of criminals; to give to society its right speedily to punish those who transgress its laws and incarcerate persons who, at liberty, are a constant menace to the public.

In response to this mandate the recent Constitutional Convention, to which were elected 83 delegates from varying activities and representing in the aggregate a fair cross-section of the body of public opinion, evolved proposed Amendment No. 7.

This was not done hastily. Nearly two years were given to consideration of the problem, before the convention found a plan which promised most of the benefits it desired to give Missouri. Method after method was advanced, debated, cast aside. Forces of reaction and the blades of radicalism alike were turned aside, and the simple plan here presented was adopted.

Outstanding figures in American jurisprudence have pronounced the proffered revision of the Missouri judiciary as the most forward-looking step in simplification of legal procedure, eradication of the law's delays and in knitting loosely functioning courts into a judicial system which has been attempted in America.

Its standing is further fixed by scrutiny of the personnel of those who are for and those who are against the change.

Indorsed by Eminent Men as Forward Step.

Heading its indorsers are the Journal of the American Judicature Society, an organization of eminent lawyers formed to "promote the efficient administration of justice"; "The Nation," well-known periodical of national circulation; Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley of Washington University, formerly Attorney-General and later Governor of Missouri; the Council : Missouri Circuit Judges; Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm of St. Louis; Judge William Dee Becker of the St. Louis Court of Appeals; Circuit Judge David H. Harris of Columbia; the Missouri Welfare League; Samuel Untermeyer of New York, widely known lawyer; Circuit Judge Ewing Cockrell of Warrensburg, many branches of the League of Women Voters and other organizations; and all but a few of the delegates to the Constitutional Convention.

But in the opposition to the reform lies the real argument for its adoption.

Most active in those ranks is the Democratic City Committee of St. Louis, which has come to be regarded as largely an agent for realizing the peculiarly practical, personal aims of its members, identified elsewhere on this page.

Behind, working as much as possible in the twilight, are railroads, which for the first time since end of the corruptionist era at Jefferson City, again have thrust their tentacles into the public affairs of Missouri.

Next is Supreme Court Commissioner Robert T. Railey and a few lawyers who are known as

Who's Who of Democratic City Committee of St. Louis That Fights Amendment No. 7

MOST active at the polls next Tuesday, in opposition to Amendment No. 7, will be the 28 members of the Democratic City Committee of St. Louis, which has distributed thousands of pink "sample ballots," instructing their henchmen and followers to "SCRATCH No. 7."

These committeemen, who are "going down the line" in an effort to defeat judiciary reform in Missouri, are the "practical politicians" of the Democratic party in St. Louis. A close inspection of the occupations of these committeemen may serve to throw some light on the interests they represent—interests which frown upon any changes in the judicial system of Missouri that might render better service in the public interest.

One member of the committee is "Dinty" Colbeck, political leader of the notorious Egan gang of criminals and gunmen.

Another is Justice of the Peace "Jimmy" Miles, influential North Side politician, who recently sought to induce the Circuit Attorney to accept bond for his son, Deputy Constable Jimmy Miles Jr., a fugitive from justice since he shot and killed a saloonkeeper three weeks ago in the barroom of the Washington Hotel.

Still another member is Constable John F. Byrne, who serves in Justice Miles' court and who had hired the Justice's son as a Deputy Constable, thus legalizing the toting of a revolver by the young murderer who in recent years has been frequently arrested suspected of felonies.

The chairman of the committee, Joseph J. Mestres, is a clerk in a Justice of the Peace Court. Three of the committeemen are saloonkeepers and two other committeemen formerly were saloonkeepers. Four of the committeemen are professional bondsmen.

The personnel of the Democratic City Committee follows:

FIRST WARD—HENRY J. FRITZ, 1110A John avenue, proprietor of a saloon at 301 North Third street.

SECOND WARD—OSCAR G. SCHAEFER, saloon keeper at 4056 North Broadway.

THIRD WARD—JOSEPH H. BROGAN, 1901A St. Louis avenue, State Senator, lawyer and professional bondsman.

FOURTH WARD—JAMES P. MILES, 1517 North Eighteenth street, Justice of the Peace of the Sixth District.

FIFTH WARD—WILLIAM P. ("DINTY") COLBECK, 1408A Franklin avenue, plumber, proprietor of Maxwellton Inn, St. Louis County roadhouse, and political leader of the notorious Egan gang of criminals and gunmen.

SIXTH WARD—JOHN J. MARONEY, 517 Walnut street, clerk.

SEVENTH WARD — JOSEPH J. MESTRES, 1104 South Eighteenth street, chairman of the committee and clerk in the Third District Justice of the Peace Court.

EIGHTH WARD—JAMES J. FITZSIMMONS, 2057A Ann avenue, coal dealer and professional bondsman.

NINTH WARD — HENRY STREUTKER, 2846 Salena street, drayman.

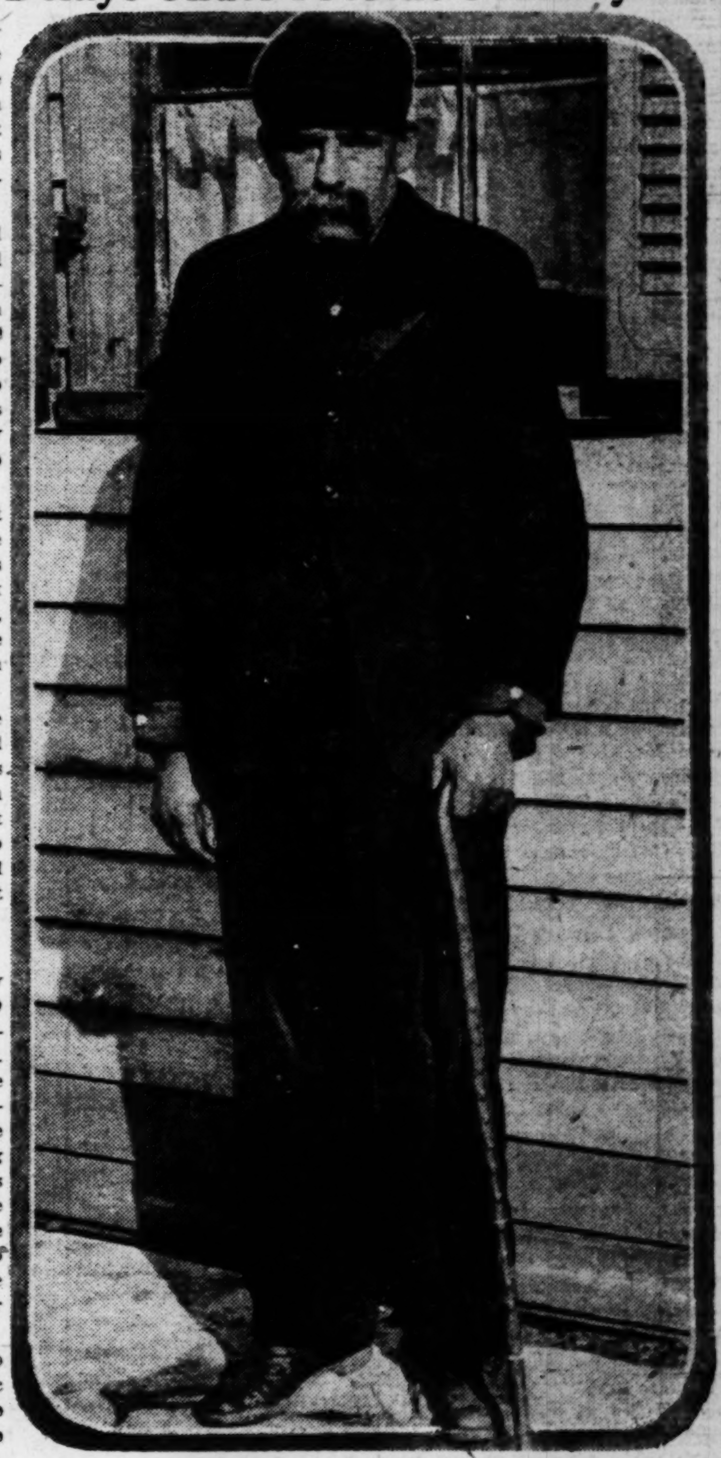
A Striking and Pathetic Illustration From Real Life of Law's Delays Under Present Court System



JOSEPH SOMMER.

ONE may meet Joseph Sommer most any day on the unpaved walk down the street to his home, tapping with a cane on picket fence and tuft of grass. Deep about his eyes are furrows which no expression quite rubs out.

Those who know him recall a stout workingman who used to be busy with his hands—those hands now feeling with cane or shaky touch lest he stumble over this or bump against that. There was no stoop to Sommer's shoulders then, no lines in his swarthy cheeks, no gray in his crisp black hair.

He had known agony that day in 1916 when a premature explosion burned away his sight. Pushed into the dark through no fault of his own, with the lights and scenes gone forever. Yet life was about him as real as ever in its demands.

He had thought for a time that the Continental Portland Cement Co., in whose St. Louis County quarry he had been working when the powder blast went off too soon, would help him. His wife and three small daughters had no money. What would become of them all?

$3000 Offered for Eyes!

The cement company may have thought an offer of $3000 squared its debt to Joseph Sommer. The blind man did not. He tried to estimate the value of the two good eyes for newspaper reporters who went to see him one day, and after getting somewhere into the millions gave it up. He fell into the habit, after that, of rubbing the places, where his eyes used to be, with his knuckles. But the sight did not come back, nor the furrows go away.

So Joseph Sommer turned to the Law, that far-off majestic thing of which he knew so little and believed so much. The courts would give him justice. Soon they would hear his story, even though he was poor. He was an American and was not America a land of liberty and justice to all men?

He told his story to lawyers. They talked of "employers' liability" and "workmen's compensation" and said yes, they thought he had a good case. How soon would he get his money, so that he and his family could live? Ah, that was another thing. The lawyers spoke of technicalities, and after obliging him to sign a paper giving them half of everything over $3000 he received from the cement company, they went away.

So Jan. 20, 1917, Joseph Sommer filed suit for $50,000 damages against the cement company. And then he went to work, peddling shoe strings from door to door, while his eldest daughter, Marie, then 10 years old, washed tiles in a tile factory.

Hearing Waits on Delays.

It was more than two years before a jury in Circuit Court in St. Louis was given the case. It returned a verdict of $25,000 in favor of Joseph Sommer. How the news must have affected the blind petitioner! What rejoicing in the little cottage at 7137 Vermont avenue. He had wanted $50,000, but even with $25,000 Marie could go back to school and Joseph Sommer would not need to stumble up unfriendly steps with his peddler's basket.

Alas, the cement company filed a bill of exceptions, after its motion for a new trial was denied. The case went to the Missouri Supreme Court. The Sommers family waited while the slow machinery turned hundreds of cases through the mill and theirs was reached. On March 14, 1922—more than five years after Sommer filed suit—Commissioner Small of the Supreme Court rendered a decision in Sommer's favor. This decision was approved by one of the three divisions of the Supreme Court.

Once more hope touched Joseph Sommer's blind, stumbling days. The highest court had spoken. Surely he would get his money now.

But the cement company moved to transfer the case to the Supreme Court en banc. Joseph Sommer dug his fists into his eyes and shook his head when his lawyers told him. He was bewildered. Did it take so long for a man to get justice?

And Mrs. Sommer must perforce eat more of charity's bitter bread, and deny her children still further.

Waiting on Technicalities.

Motion after motion, petition after petition was filed by attorneys for each side, while learned Supreme Court Judges, bound by picayunish niceties of law, scanned the court records for misplaced commas and slips of the tongue made by Circuit Judges.

The Supreme Court finally decided in December, 1922, nearly six years after Joseph Sommer had appealed to Law, that the verdicts in his favor were not legal and the case must be tried all over again.

The Court's decision was based on the amount of damages awarded, which the court en banc (the entire court consisting of the Judges of both divisions) held to be excessive, and on certain instructions of the trial Judge, to which exception was taken. The Court ruled that, under the employers' liability practice, $20,000 would have been the proper assessment, and that the extra $5000 vitiated the entire verdict.

The error in instructions, the Court ruled, consisted in the fact that instruction No. 1 did not use the same phrase as instruction No. 1-A. The word "Negligence" was used in the first instruction and the phrase "Not reasonably safe" in the second. The Court held that the latter phrase was the proper expression. On such a point and on such shades of meaning turned the case of the damages for the loss of Joseph Sommer's eyes!

The Post-Dispatch then took up Joseph Sommer's case, threw the light of publicity on it, and public indignation was aroused. The law's delays, as instanced in this case, set people to talking.

The cement company and "friends of the Supreme Judges."

And lastly, R. T. Wood of Springfield, president of the State Federation of Labor, and a group of [illegible] union heads.

To Harmonize the Missouri Court System.

Here and there, in the opposition, of course are men and women against this amendment for reasons which to them are perfectly sound and from motives of the highest. Such is their unchallenged right.

But what are the provisions of this amendment?

Delegates to the Constitutional Convention found three great groups of major courts—the Supreme Court, three Courts of Appeals and 38 Circuit Courts—functioning separately, with little or none of the cohesion and unity or purpose which should exist in a judicial system. On below these courts were found Probate Courts, Criminal Courts, Courts of Common Pleas, Justice of the Peace Courts and the like. As former Circuit Judge George H. Williams of Webster Groves, a delegate-at-large to the convention, puts it, "Missouri courts are like a lot of nerves without a nerve center."

It found the rules and procedure governing actual handling of cases in these courts, in the hands of the Legislature, which as Williams again phrased it, "is like having football players make the rules for tennis."

To these two conditions—lack of co-ordination and cumbersome procedure — attorneys ascribe much of what now is criticised as the law's delays in Missouri courts.

Amendment No. 7 would preserve all of the courts that now exist, in practically their present form.

But it would provide also for the establishment of a Judicial Council of nine composed of the Chief Justice and presiding Judge of the two divisions of the Supreme Court, the presiding Judges of the three Courts of Appeals and three Circuit Judges to be chosen by the other six.

Keeping the Wheels of Justice Turning Its Aim.

This Council would establish, revise and amend rules and procedure for all of the courts of the State. It would have power to call circuit judges from one circuit to another, or to assist the Supreme Court or Courts of Appeals in time of congested dockets, to transfer cases from one Court of Appeals to another, whenever the efficient transaction of business required. It also would be empowered to provide for the holding of court when for any reason the regular Judge could not act. These provisions were intended to provide for an even flow of litigation through the various channels of court, instead of the intermittent freshets and lulls of the present era, and to do this by using the full efficiency of Circuit Judges, many of them able and willing to help, but who in quiet circuits now are idle a large part of the time.

The amendment also would substitute for the commission of three now temporarily aiding the St. Louis Court of Appeals to try to get abreast of its heavily congested docket, a Division No. 2 of three judges, which its advocates say would make for highly increased efficiency.

Further, the jurisdiction of the three Courts of Appeals in civil matters would be increased from $7500, the present maximum limit, to $10,000, which with the increased manpower of this set of tribunals, is expected to result in the handling of such cases much faster than at present, and to relieve the Supreme Court of part of the load now falling to it.

Under the change the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court would be elected by the people, and would be an administrative executive, writing opinions in his spare time. At present the Chief Justiceship is merely a title rotated among the seven Supreme Judges.

Criminal Courts, Probate Courts, Courts of Common Pleas, County Courts and Justice of the Peace Courts would be left undisturbed, subject to power to change or abolish them, conferred upon the Legislature, which would have authority to create additional courts if changing conditions made it expedient.

Legislature as Check in Judicial Council.

The Legislature would be given power to amend or repeal any rule made by the Judicial Council, thus placing a break upon that body.

These and the obligation placed upon the legislature to provide for nomination of candidates for Supreme Judge, Judge of the Courts of Appeals and Circuit Judge, at a time different from that at which other candidates for office are chosen, are the principal departures of the amendment.

If this amendment is adopted, it will be a strict admonition by the people to their judges to shake off some of the old dignity and isolation and bestir themselves in cleaning up their dockets, deciding old cases and forcing tarding litigants to trial.

Under it, for example, whenever the St. Louis Court of Appeals begins to fall behind with its work, its presiding Judge would telephone to the president of the Judicial Council, who probably would be the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, at Jefferson City, and ask for help.

That official then would look over the list of available Circuit Judges and might find that Circuit Judge Guy D. Kirby at Springfield, Circuit Judge Harris at Columbia, Circuit Judge Henson of Mt. Vernon and Circuit Judge Westhues at Jefferson City were up with their work. He would then consult with his brother Council members and detail two of the three Circuit Judges to come to St. Louis. They would sit to hear arguments, a few cases each would be assigned to them for decision, and the Court thus would be enabled to catch up in its work. Their cases finished the Circuit Judges would return to their own respective jurisdictions. Thus, wherever the pressure of work exceeded the man power of a court, the Council could send up the reserves to help dispose of it.

Two examples of the tragedy and outright injustice of the law's delays, as they now exist in Missouri, have been referred to frequently by advocates of No. 7.

One is the story of Joseph Sommer, who fought through the Missouri Courts for six years in an effort to get compensation for the loss of both eyes in an industrial accident, but who finally had to settle out of court to get the $10,500 which must suffice to him

ILLUSTRATION OF LAW'S DELAYS FROM REAL LIFE

Sommer's lawyers got together during the storm and decided to settle the case for $20,000.

Sommer agreed and received $10,500 as his share. It must be said in fairness to his attorneys that they carried a long and expensive fight through the courts for six years for him and their persistence alone was responsible for any concession on the part of the defendant concern.

$10,500 at Last!

So Joseph Sommer, after six years, was a blind man with $10,500. His problem is still unsolved. He recently bought a house at 7119 Alabama avenue for $2250, which leaves him $8250. This at 6 per cent is $495 a year, or $41.50 a month.

Joseph Sommer does not peddle shoestrings any more. But Marie, now 16, still works and has been deprived of the schooling she might have had. Ida, 12, and Christina, 7, must leave school at an early age.

And the furrows are still deep around Joseph Sommer's eyes. He would not attempt to estimate what those six years of worry in the darkness cost in the blood sweat of his soul. But he for one would be in favor of any constitutional amendment devised to make justice more swift in action than it is now.

This case is a striking illustration from real life of the thing indicated by Circuit Judge David H. Harris of Columbia, who in a recent statement said that "Our present system is cumbersome, expensive and results in unreasonable delay in the final determination of cases. I therefore favor adoption of Amendment No. 7," because it provides for a simple, speedy and effective means for revision of the rules governing trial and appellate procedure in this State."

In this way, he points out, the trial and appellate courts will be enabled to dispose of many more cases with greater ease and satisfaction to Judges and litigants alike.

Spending $100,000,000 in St. Louis in 6 Years

CAHOKIA will cost approximately $35,000,000. For every dollar invested in a large community for the generation of electricity, two dollars must be spent for equipment to deliver that electricity to the switches of the users.

Now a rapid calculation—twice $35,000,000 is $70,000,000—for conduits and substations and wires and the other equipment of distribution. Add the $35,000,000 cost of Cahokia, and the great super project on the east bank of the Mississippi becomes the beginning of a $100,000,000 program.

Whose program? Not ours. The program of the people of the St. Louis District, exceeding even that other program of which St. Louis is proud — the $87,000,000 municipal bond issue. Cahokia is a program created by the people's greatly increasing demand for electricity, an increase so rapid it will necessitate completion of this gigantic expenditure by 1930.

Where will the money go? Much of it back to the people. Out of $12,000,000 already spent, more than $5,000,000 has gone to St. Louis labor. More than 125 St. Louis firms already have contributed materials to Cahokia.

Cahokia is rising behind your switch. Let it stand behind a safe, sound investment for you. It will work to keep your electric rates the lowest among the 15 large cities of the United States. It will save you money. Let it work also to add to your savings.

HOW LAW'S DELAY DENIES JUSTICE TO POOR MAN IN COURTS

and his family for a life of blind helplessness.

Classic Example of Delay of Justice.

The other, in the graphic narrative of Circuit Judge Ewing Cockrell of Warrensburg is as follows:

"My schoolmate, Rube Oglesby, a brakeman on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was crushed and crippled for life in a wreck. He sued the railroad. It took him four and one-half years to have his case tried and sent back by the Supreme Court for a new trial. It took another four and one-half years to have the new trial finally passed on. This time, the Supreme Court reversed the judgment for him into a final judgment against him.

"It took Rube four and one-half years to get nowhere and nine years to get beat.

"Mr. R. T. Railey, the railroad's lawyer, who beat Rube in this nine years' fight, is now Commissioner of the Supreme Court, and is leading the opposition to this amendment."

Amendment No. 7 was drafted to shear away red tape and provide for speedy justice. Its advocates say it will obtain that result.

To conjecture the reasonong of those elements which are sparing no pains to defeat this humanitarian progress is not difficult. Such obstruction in nearly all instances leads directly to selfish treasure chests or cherished personal prerogative.

The railroads undoubtedly seek to prevent any important change in the present judiciary, for reasons which the Oglesby story plainly illustrates. Railroad attorneys know what they can do under the present judiciary article of the Constitution. Perhaps they could not delay and finally wear out cases under the revision. Perhaps it does not suit them to have the Courts of Appeals empowered to handle damage suits which involve up to $10,000, with the speed they are expected to dispose of such cases under Amendment No. 7.

Reasons for City Committee's Action.

Some of the factors which have engendered the bitter opposition of the Democratic City Committee and its ward workers are glaring on their face. Others are buried behind the veil of taciturnity which the votaries of that group maintain on all occasions.

The law's delays are no bogey to the gangster or other "trooper" of city political machines. They thrive on tardy court action. In fact, the prospect of speed in the administration of justice terrifies him.

Gunmen who are arrested for carrying concealed weapons, gang criminals who are caught in or after the commission of murders, holdups, safe robberies and the other desperate crimes in which they specialize, profit most from slow movements in a court.

Witnesses move away, die or can be intimidated or killed, as seems most expedient, when sufficient delay can be obtained to permit the use of tactics which would cause the observers of crimes to become hazy in their recollection of the details of the incidents, or silent altogether.

St. Louisans know all too well how this can and does happen. In a number of instances recently after juries had said "guilty," an Appellate Court has reversed the cases on technicalties, and then the defendants either got away scot-free or had to be allowed to plead guilty on the promise of light sentences to get them incarcerated at all.

The tactics of the criminal lawyear defending guilty clients, always begin with efforts toward interminable delay. If the court dockets are so clogged as naturally to aid his efforts, fine, so much the better. So it may easily be seen why law-violators, actual or potential, and their friends and sympathizers would oppose anything designed to lessen the law's delays.

One thing here pertinent is that

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind, he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others, who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging, he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

former Circuit Judge Daniel G. Taylor in asking members of the committee to support the revision, in a speech delivered to it Thursday afternoon, said that the advocates of the amendments had no money to spend for election day expenses, having been able to collect not even enough to pay for pre-election propaganda.

After Taylor had departed, the executive session had been held, thumbs turned down on Amendment No. 7 and the meeting adjourned, a knot of committeemen was heard discussing the money question, the fact that Taylor had invited the committeemen to a dinner, which they had refused to attend, and the inference that "somebody must be getting some money" from the fact that the League of Women Voters is so active in behalf of the reform.

President Wood of the Federation of Labor has expressed the fear that the proposed Judicial Council might create an industrial court, although that body has no power to create any court, or to "abridge any substantive right given by law."

Commissioner Railey, the only attache of the Supreme Court who has taken an active open stand against the amendment, has branded it as "Visionary in its tendencies, impractical in its operations, and if it becomes a part of the organic law will stand as a menace to good government and judicial progress in this State."

Most of the seven Supreme Judges are believed to be against the amendment also, and it doubtless is unfortunate for them that some other influences have been injected into the fight on their sides.

Some Supreme Judges' Vanity Is Wounded.

The Supreme Judges believe that the existing court system has worked very well. They cherish the privilege each now has of being Chief Justice at some time during his 10-year term, they dislike the idea of being projected into work in a Judicial Council alongside of Circuit Judges and upon an equal footing with the latter, and they are somewhat piqued that their suggestion that membership of the Court be increased from seven to nine Judges was disregarded.

In answer to these objections, the Journal of the American Judicature Society editorially said:

"If the people of Missouri adopt Amendment No. 7 that State will have the best system of courts, so far as the constitution is concerned, of any State in the Union."

Samuel Untermeyer of New York, widely known attorney, wrote:

"If the law's delays in the administration of justice in Missouri are anything like as oppressive and destructive of the assertion of legal rights as they are in the East, Amendment No. 7 or any other amendment with a tendency to cure that evil should be welcomed. The present situation amounts in most of the states to a virtual denial of justice. * * * The man who does not want to pay his debts can well afford to 'hang up' his creditors in the courts for years at 6 per cent, earning perhaps twice as much on his creditor's money, whilst the creditor, after paying his lawyer's fees, loses a substantial part of his debt. That absurd procedure is but one of the many archaic methods of administering justice."

The Nation in concluding an editorial discussion of the advantages of No. 7, declared that "Certainly the processes of law need simplification, and this amendment reads like good, sound sense. We hope the people of Missouri adopt it."

The 21 amendments which will be upon the ballot Tuesday are to be voted upon separately. Votes cast for and against any particular amendment have no bearing upon the adoption or rejection of any other. A majority vote in favor of any amendment will result in its adoption.

One-Time Stage Philanderer Plays Menaced Husband in New Comedy—Sothern and Marlow and Ziegfeld "Follies" Next Week.

LEO DITRICHSTEIN'S roles have mostly been those of philanderers who are deadly menaces to the genus husband. But in his latest play, "The Business Widow," which arrives tonight at the Shubert-Jefferson, the most accomplished Lothario of the stage turns husband himself, and valiantly repels a piratical swain who seeks to board his domestic galleon. This comedy, adapted from the German by Gladys Unger, began its career last December at the Ritz Theater, New York.

Howard Thurston, a magician, aided by Mrs. Thurston, begins at the American this afternoon his annual exhibition of illusions, sleights and mysteries. The Woodward Players, at the Empress, are undertaking "Dulcy," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, in which Miss Lynn Fontaine was featured here during December, 1922, at the American. Joseph E. Howard and Ethelyn Clark lead the Orpheum's new bill with a five-scene revue called "Etchings From Life."

There is satire on business, the movies, pretended love of music and many other things. Hazel Whitmore essays the role of the preposterous Dulcinea, and Alex Luce plays that of her devoted but long-suffering spouse.

The Orpheum's Program.

IN support of Joseph Howard and Miss Clark, in their act at the Orpheum, is a company of dancers and singers. Howard is a musical comedy veteran and composer of popular songs. Charles Purcell, tenor, who has appeared in a number of musical comedy successes, offers a program of songs. Others on the bill are Al Lydell and Carleton Macy, in "Two Old Cronies;" Harry Coleman, comedian, in "The Sun Dodger," a one-act musical comedy, with radiumized costumes; Bill Robinson, the Edwin George Duo and a team of roller skaters, to say nothing of a trained seal.

On the Rialto's list are Owen McGiveney, i a one-man dramatization of "Oliver Twist;" Ray Hughes and Pam, in "The Fall Guy;" Miller and Mack, comedians and dancers; and "Al K. Hall," in "The Sap." For an after-piece, most of these entertainers combine in a bit called "The Wager."

"Stolen Sweets," a miniature musical comedy, leads the Columbia's schedule, with Jack Barton, Jimmy Fox and Beula Burke. Others announced are Jack Broderick and Buddye Jane Felsen, dancers; Roe Reaves, monologist; Boyd Senter and Jack Russell, in a jazz skit; George and Paul Hickman, blackface comedians, and the Koban Japs, magicians. The film feature is "The Lullaby," starring Jane Novak.

The Grand Opera House promises the O'Brien Sextet, Jack Trainor and others in Jack Lait's "Help." Dan Bryant and Dick Stewart, Fargo and Richards, Weber and Clifford, and an educated horse.

FIRST ST. LOUIS PRODUCTION OF SHAW PLAY MARCH 5-8

The cast will consist of St. Louis players, including Mrs. Susan Lovett Cost in the title role, Charlotte Wagner, Ruth Eisinger, Jane Belle Sante, Percy Ramsay, Gordon B. "New Toys" Is Stuffed With Ancient Sawdust

By HEYWOOD BROUN.
Drama Critic for the New York World.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

THERE are moments of truth and humor in "New Toys," by Newton H. Gropper and Oscar Hammerstein II, which was produced at the Fulton Theater Monday night, but it is well behind too many plays which have done the same thing. Here is a comedy that might be called "The Second Year," but it is not within hailing distance of Frank Craven's play about the previous 12 months. What with "The Show-Off" and "The Potters" and several others, this new comedy is a little bit dimmed by the dust.

The story is of an American husband and wife and baby, and the problem develops from the decision of the wife to go on the stage. The least credible member of the trio is allowed to play the most important part in the swing of the story. The spectator can hardly accept the child as more than an impersonal off-stage squeak, and yet most of the critical scenes depend on this wholly fictitious baby.

It has been arranged that nothing of any consequence shall happen except at such times as the nurse maid is out. Thus, we are asked to weep for the poor husband who is left to mind the baby while his wife is away making her first appearance on the stage.

Bedtime Story as Denouement.

AT the end, the play gets just about as terrible as anything in the theater can be. In the final scene the mother of the wife brings her daughter and son-in-law together by telling them a bedtime story.

This is made even more incredible than it would be otherwise by the casting of Louise Closser Hale as the sentimentalist. Miss Hale has brought about as much cheerful acid into our theater as any living actress, and one can almost see her writhing in unison with the audience when it becomes her painful duty to turn on the treacle tap.

Out of this play of good things, pretty good things and terrible things there arises one actor who is wholly admirable. Ernest Truex has been in better plays, but he has never given a better performance. He is always real. So far as he is concerned, it is possible to laugh and then suddenly to stop laughing. Still, there are times when he isn't around, and in such intervals there is no getting away from the realization that "New Toys," in addition to its fidelity and fun, has far too great a proportion of stuff and nonsense.

Frances Weston and Eric Guadard, in "The Blizzard"—Liberty.

"The Moon Flower," Adapted by Zoe Akins, Opens Tomorrow Night.

AT the Astor Theater, Monday evening, Charles L. Wagner will present Elsie Ferguson and Sidney Blackmer in "The Moon Flower," adapted by Zoe Akins from the Hungarian of Lajos Biro "The Strong," a play by Henry Baron, will try its fortunes at special matinees Tuesday and Friday.

When the engagement of "The New Englander" terminates in March at the Forty-eighth Street Theater, the Equity Players will present James K. Hackett in "Macbeth." . . . Helen Gahagen, young star in "Chains," has been engaged to play the title role in a forthcoming revival of "Leah Kleschna," in which William Faversham, Lowell Sherman and William B. Mack also will appear . . . Shaw's "Saint Joan" will move in another week from the Garrick to the Empire, to make room for the next Theater Guild production, "Fata Morgana," by Ernst Vajda.

"Cyrano" Passes 100th Showing.

WALTER HAMPDEN reached his 100th performance in "Cyrano de Bergerac" Thursday night. . . . Charles Gilpin, formerly of "The Emperor Jones," will head an all-negro cast in "Roseanne" which is now rehearsing for a Chicago production . . . Ina Claire and Bruce McRae are starred in "Grounds for Divorce," a play adapted from the Hungarian by Guy Bolton. It opens next week in Atlantic City. . . . Mme. Simone, distinguished French actress, is here for rehearsals of a play in English called "Open House," by Samuel Ruskin Golding. Robert Warwick will have the principal male role. Eugene O'Neill's play, "All God's Chillun Got Wings," which is in rehearsal for production at the Provincetown Theater in Greenwich Village, deals with the subject of miscegenation. Its central theme is the love and marriage of a white woman and a negro. Mary Blair, starring just now in "Fashion," will play the heroine, and Robert Owens, a negro, has the leading male role.

"Thy Name Is Woman" And "The Stranger" On Photoplay Bills

"Let Not Man Put Asunder," "Her Temporary Husband," "The Blizzard" and "The White Tiger" Other Local Features.

FRED NIBLO'S production, "Thy Name Is Woman," is presented this week at the Delmonte, West End Lyric and Capitol. It brings together again Ramon Navarro and Barbara Lamarr, who scored their first big hit opposite each other in Rex Ingram's "Trifling Women."

"Thy Name Is Woman" is laid in Spain. Its theme is a new angle to the old triangle—the eternal three. The wife of the story, played by Miss Lamarr, is married to a smuggler who is much older than she. The Government suspects his illicit trade and elects to send a handsome young soldier to make love to his wife and thus learn the husband's business.

The wife, learning of the plot, is insulted and rebuffs the soldier upon his first visit. As time wears on she falls in love with him.

The old husband sees the truth. He pits his brain and cleverness against the strength and good looks of the soldier. The cast also includes Edith Roberts, Marc McDermott, Robert Edeson and William V. Mong. The Karimos Dancers appear at the Delmonte, as that theater's only stage feature.

Richard Dix and Betty Compson are featured at the Missouri Theater this week in John Galsworthy's "The Stranger." The story, an appealing love drama, has for its chief characters a girl and a ne'er-do-well, brother of an English aristocrat. The scenes are laid in London and the action centers around the trial and conviction of an innocent elderly man for a serious crime. The ne'er-do-well, who is responsible for the crime, endeavors to give himself up, but is induced not to by his selfish brother for fear of scandal. The innocent man is about to be convicted when the ne'er-do-well, persuaded by the girl, surrenders. His aristocratic brother forsakes him in his hour of desperate need, but the girl, by a clever ruse, uncovers information that wins his freedom and their happiness.

Richard Dix is cast as the ne'er-do-well, Betty Compson as the girl, Lewis Stone as the aristocratic brother, and Tully Marshall as "The Stranger."

Paul Whiteman's Collegians, under the direction of Vincent Gauthier, make their first stage appearance in St. Louis on this program.

The Grand Central Theater's semiannual Revue shares honors this week with the photoplay feature, "Her Temporary Husband," a full length farce comedy.

The cast of the Revue includes Frank Moulan, comedian; Miss Elsie Thiede, prima donna soprano; Lorna Doone Jackson, contralto; Sudwarth Frasier, tenor; Reiff Brothers, dancers; Chat Gorman, soubrette; Joe Gill's Ragged Raggers; Jess Walton, cornet soloist; Stuart Barrie, the organist; Gene Rodemich's Orchestra and a chorus of 20. "My Sweetheart," the new song by Gene Rodemich and Larry Conley, trombonist, with Gene's Orchestra, is the featured musical number.

"Her Temporary Husband" is full of comedy situations which evolve when a young heiress decides to marry an old man to protect her fortune, in accordance with a peculiar will. However, the young man who really wants to marry her substitutes in the old man's place, with amusing complications. Owen Moore and Sydney Chaplin, past masters at light comedy, supported by Sylvia Breamer and Tully Marshall, are in the cast.

"Let No Man Put Asunder," the feature at the Kings, treats the divorce question from several angles. Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen are the stars. This is the first time they have played opposite each other. The story deals with Petrina Faneuil, heiress to a vast fortune, who marries Harry Vassall of an old Puritanical family of New England. He demands that she live in a modest home, such as he can provide. She refuses, and obtains a divorce. Dick Lechmere, the college chum of Vassall, has been married to Felicia de Proney, an opera singer, from whom he obtains a divorce. Petrina and Dick meet and marry, although each knows that the other still loves the first mate. Felicia loses her voice and is in poverty. Dick learns of her circumstance and leaves Petrina to find her. Felicia dies and Dick makes the supreme sacrifice which brings about a reconciliation between Petrina and Harry Vallall.

Pictures shot during scientific explorations in the far North are used in the William Fox production "The Blizzard," at the Liberty. The story was picturized from "The Story of a Country House," by Selma Lagerlof, winner of the Nobel prize for literature.

The picture follows the fortunes of a troupe of wandering jugglers. Adolf Olachansky portrays the trouper, Stina Berg is his wife and Mary Johnson is Ingrid, the adopted waif of the little circus. The big scene is the stampede of reindeers during a blizzard. The story

Two Works Listed for First Time in America

BESIDES the St. Louis debut of Miss Erika Morini, sensational girl violinist, as soloist at the concerts of Thursday evening and Friday afternoon, the Symphony Orchestra's programs this week will be distinguished by the performance of two works for the first time in America. One is a Suite Sinfonica, "Acquarelli," by Francesco Santoliquido, which will be played at this afternoon's popular concert at the Odeon. The other, "Melee Fantase," by Arthur Bliss, will be featured at the Thursday and Friday concerts.

Miss Morini, who is still in her 'teens, was born in Vienna, of Italian parents. At the age of 11 she made her debut in Berlin under the baton of the late Arthur Nikisch, who, after her performance of Mozart's A Major Concerto, exclaimed: "She is not a wonder child, but a wonder." Her first American appearance in New York during 1921, was so spectacularly triumphant that she gave four New York recitals in the next four weeks. For her St. Louis visit, she has chosen the familiar Concerto in G Minor, by Max Bruch.

Bliss an English Composer.

ARTHUR BLISS is one of the interesting personalities among the youthful composers who are creating the present musical awakening in England. His "Melee Fantase" ("A Whimsical Conflict") was composed in 1921, in memory of the painter, Claude Lovat Frazer. This work is considered the most modernistic as yet attempted by the orchestra. The program for the regular concerts is as follows:

1. Symphony, No. 1, in E minor, op. 39 .... Sibelius
   I. Andante ma non troppo; allegro energico.
   II. Andante, ma non troppo.
   III. Scherzo: Allegro.
   VI. Finale (Quasi una fantasia): Andante; Allegro molto.
2. "Melee Fantase" .. Arthur Bliss (First Time in America.)
3. Concerto for violin, No. 1, in G minor, op. 26 .... Bruch
   I. Allegro moderato.
   II. Adagio.
   III. Allegro energico.
4. March, "Pomp and Circumstance" .... Elgar

Today's Popular Concert.

THE title of Signor Santoliquido's suite, to be played at today's popular concert, may be translated "Water Colors." It is in four movements. The composer was born in Italy during 1883, and has spent most of his life in Tunis, North Africa. This afternoon's concert will present two soloists, Gwilym Miles, baritone; and Mme. Wilma Souvageol, pianist. The program follows:

1. Overture to "Semiramide"— Rossini
2. Prologue to "I'Pagliacci"— Leoncavallo. (Mr. Miles.)
3. Suite Sinfonica, "Acquarelli"— Santoliquido
   I. "Morning in the Woods."
   II. "Snow."
   III. "Evening."
   IV. "Night Festival. (First time in America.)
4. First Movement, pianoforte concerto in B-flat minor— Tschaikowsky (Mme. Souvageol.)
5. "An den Fruehling," for string orchestra .... Grieg
6. Songs With Piano:
   (a) Serenade from "Don Juan" .... Tschaikowsky
   (b) "Twilight" .... Glenn
   (c) "Danny Deever" .. Damrosch (Leo C. Miller at the Piano.)
7. Valse de Concert in D major, Op. 47 .... Gazounoff

At the two final pairs of regular concerts, on March 6-7 and 13-14, the soloists will be Frieda Hempel, coloratura soprano; and Joseph Schwartz, baritone. The season will close with a special concert at the Odeon on Sunday afternoon, March 16. As soloists for next Sunday's popular concert, the management announces Elizabeth Estle Rucker, pianist; and Edward Atchinson, tenor.

INDIAN AGITATORS CONTINUE FIGHT FOR SELF-GOVERNMENT

Mohammed Ali, Recently Released From Prison, Attends Congress.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

COCANADA, India, Jan. 10.—The thirty-eighth session of the Indian National Congress, which closed recently, was marked by a renewed determination of the nationalists to continue their agitation until complete self-government has been achieved in India.

The nonco-operators evidenced considerable encouragement over their victories in the Government elections, having increased their numbers in each of the provincial councils and attained majorities in three. These nationalist councillors are pledged to block all legislation, and thus bring the reforms scheme to an end.

Mahommed Ali, recently released from a two-year prison sentence, presided over the congress meetings. In his presidential address, he narrated the story of Indian discontent, urged his followers to seek unity among themselves and cooperation with their Asiatic neighbors. He promised that self-government would be attained as soon as the nationalists were willing to lay down their lives for their country.

MUNY OPERA PRICES REMAIN UNCHANGED

Larger Attendance on Sunday and Monday Nights Is Hoped For.

Admission prices to the 1924 Municipal Opera performances will be the same as last summer, it was announced yesterday by the Municipal Theater Association, although net profit from ticket sales last summer was only $14,932. If the association had encountered inclement weather in the final week of the season, a loss, rather than a profit, would have resulted.

The association has been considering prices for some time, and an increase for 1924 was suggested to assure the opera against loss if unfavorable weather should keep patronage away from performances this summer. As is known, last year's ticket receipts of $295,718 set a new record for the opera series. Audiences of nearly capacity size were present at five of the seven performances given weekly last summer, and only the opening and closing presentations of each production showed empty seats in the huge outdoor amphitheater.

Needs Larger Attendance.

The only possible source of increase in ticket receipts this summer is larger attendance at the Monday and Sunday night performances. The tentative budget for 1924 productions calls for an expenditure exceeding that of last summer, since the cast engaged for the coming season is the most expensive in the history of the enterprise and reduction of fixed charges is impossible.

Last summer the receipts from three performances were refunded because of rain, and tickets for two others were exchanged following interruptions by showers. It is pointed out by officials of the theater association that should a like number of performances be lost this summer, no profit will be made unless the ticket sales be increased by heavier patronage at the Monday and Sunday night performances.

Admission Prices.

Admission prices announced for 1924 are as follows: Box seats, $2: 12 rows, $1.50; 11 rows, $1; 22 rows, 50 cents; 19 rows, 25 cents.

All seats, except in the 25-cent sections, will be reserved. Season reservations approximating $80,000 already have been made for the 1924 season. Prospective operagoers are urged to file season reservations and thus be assured of the same seat locations for each of the 10 operas, at the same time eliminating wating in line at the box office each week. The offices of the Municipal Theater Association are in the Arcade Building, where full information regarding the opera cycle may be obtained.

This summer's season will open Monday night, May 26, and continue for 10 weeks. Performances will be given nightly, with the first presentation of each opera on Monday night and the concluding show on Sunday night. The repertory, as announced recently, lists six works new to the Municipal Theater stage and revivals of four operas given in previous seasons.

"THY NAME IS WOMAN," AND "THE STRANGER," ON PHOTOPLAY BILLS

tells of the love of a boy for his violin, which brought love for a girl, because she, too, loved her fiddle.

Priscilla Dean is presented in one of her familiar roles in "The White Tiger," the feature attraction for the week at the Rivoli Theater. In support are Matt Moore, Wallace Beery and Raymond Griffith. The plot centers around an international gang of crooks, none of whom trusts another. The principal scenes and location are laid around Limehouse in England and in New York.

The Columbia's feature for the week is Jane Novak in "The Lullaby."

Franck Sonata to Open Kreisler Recital

A SONATA and a concerto will supply body for a recital which Fritz Kreisler, master violinist, will give Wednesday night at the Odeon. It will be his only St. Louis appearance this season, and the usual capacity attendance is expected.

There will also be a list of the small pieces with which Mr. Kreisler always varies his concerts. The program will be as follows, with Carl Lamson at the piano:

1. Sonata in A major..... Franck
   I. Allegretto ben moderato; Allegro.
   II. Recitative; Fantasia.
   III. Allegretto poco mosso.
2. Concerto in D major— Tschaikowsky
   I. Allegro moderato.
   II. Andante: Canzonetta.
   III. Allegro vivacissimo.
3. (a) Minuet .... Porpora
   (b) Variations .... Tartini
   (c) Melodie— Paderewski-Kreisler
   (e) "Midnight Bells"— —Heuberger-Kreisler
   (f) "Heyre Kati"........ Hubay

Benefit for Miss Punchon.

A BENEFIT recital will be given Wednesday night at the Wdenesday Club Auditorium by Amy Guth Runshon, who is leaving for New York to continue her studies. She will be assisted by Ellis Levy, violinist, and Max Gold, pianist. Among her numbers will be Liszt's "Die Lorelei, "Me voici dans son boudoir," from Thomas' "Mignon," Sibella's "La Girometta" and a group of songs in English.

The Kirkwood Choral Club of 60 mixed voices will give a concert Tuesday night in the auditorium of the new Kirkwood high school, under the direction of John W. Bohn. The principal offering will be "The Rose Maiden," a cantata by Frederick H. Cowen. The chorus will be assisted by Mrs. William B. Ewald, pianist, and eight members of the Symphony Orchestra.

The Norfleet Trio, which gave a concert last night at the Wednesday Club for the benefit of the Settlement Music School Fund of this city, will give a program tonight at Loretta Academy, Webster Groves; and another tomorrow afternoon at Lennox Hall, Kirkwood. The members are Helen Norfleet, pianist; Catherine Norfleet, violinist, and Leeper Norfleet, violoncellist.

News of Organists.

AN organ composition for two players, a sonata by Merkel, will be presented tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Friess at St. John's Episcopal Church, 3666 Arsenal street. A meeting of the Missouri Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will be held tomorrow evening at St. Mark's Church, Russell boulevard and McNair avenue, with Elmer H. T. Ruhe as host, and Mrs. George Coffman as program director. The Guild will present James Quarles in an organ recital on March 31.

The Music Committee of the Women's Chamber of Commerce will give a concert Saturday evening at the New City Club auditorium for the purpose of establishing scholarships for voice, piano, violin and violoncello. Those taking part in the program will be Miss Vera Schlueter, Miss Helen S. Phillips, Miss Elsie Stricker, Mrs. Esmeralda Berry Mayes, Mrs. Carl J. Luyties, Arnoldo Haskel and Miss Deborah Carnovsky. Mrs. Lee Schweiger is chairman.

FIGHT DISEASE IN EFFORT TO SAVE TAHITIAN RACE

Authorities of Papeete Would Avert Fate That Has Overtaken Many Aborigines

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Jan. 10.—A determined effort is being made by the authorities to clean up Papeete and to stamp out certain diseases which long have been prevalent in

For many years Papeete, on account of its insanitary state, has been the breeding ground of maladies which have spread to all the islands of the colony. The death rate, both in the town and the outlying islands, from this cause has been very great. This is especially the case among the native population, whose members have little resistance to European or, in fact, any, diseases.

It has been predicted freely by well-informed residents that if the old conditions were allowed to continue, a few more years would see the extinction of the Tahitian race, a fate which already has overtaken the aboriginal inhabitants of the Marquesas archipelago.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Local Singers to Essay Grand Operas

AN ambition to accomplish in grand opera what the Municipal Theater Association undertakes to do in operetta and musical comedy is presented as the motive of the St. Louis Grand Opera Company, which will attempt "La Traviata," "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" and "Lucia di Lammermoor" at the Odeon on March 11, 12, 14 and 16.

With the exception of Rogelio Baldrich, guest tenor, the organization will supply its own principals. It has a chorus of 60 St. Louisans, who have been rehearsing for three months. The singers will be assisted by a ballet of 20 local dancers and 25 members of the Symphony Orchestra. Frederick Fischer, assistant conductor of the orchestra, is musical director. M. A. Rossini is artistic director and Miss Adeline Rotty is ballet mistress.

Permanent Troupe Planned.

IT is hoped to make the organization permanent, and to continue rehearsals two nights a week throughout the year. As in the Municipal Opera Association, chorus training is free, the only requirements being vocal ability and regular attendance at rehearsals.

The series will open with "The Barber of Seville," with M. A. Rossini in the title role. Others in the cast are: Conte Almaviva, Rogelio Baldrich; Rosina, Esther Baker; Don Bartolo, U. Casano; Bon Basilio, F. Buccola; Betha, A. Colina; Firrello, B. P. Schibert; Officer, A. San Fuan, and a notary public, F. Sacks.

Miss Phillips as Violetta.

"LA TRAVIATA" will be given on the evenings of March 12 and 16, with Miss Helen Stephens Phillips in the title part. Baldrich will sing Alfredo Germont. Other parts have been assigned to M. Elkings, A. Krone, J. Buccola, U Casano, A. San Fuan, L. F. Geffen and B. P. Schibert.

Miss Esther Baker will sing the name part in "Lucia di Lammermoor," and Baldrich will have that of Sir Edgardo. F. Glenn Lee will be Lord Arturo Bucklaw, and J. Buccola will sing the role of Sir Enrico Ashton.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

Upon completion of his picturization of Rex Beach's "Flowing Gold," which will soon be accomplished, Richard Walton Tully expects to go into immediate production of his stage success, "The Bird of Paradise," for the screen. This will be produced in Hawaii, where the original settings will be secured.

Sylvia Breamer is in excellent company in "The Woman on the Jury," the forthcoming First National production in which she is being directed by Harry O. Hoyt. Lew Cody, Frank Mayo, Bessie Love, Hobart Bosworth and Mary Carr are already in her cast and other notables are to be engaged as the story progresses.

Years fall lightly on Cissy Fitzgerald, musical comedy star of 25 years ago. She has just finished an important role in First National's "Lillies of the Field," giving admirable support to Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, the co-featured players. The actress, for whom all blooded London swanked and who later thrilled high-hatted Broadway, looks younger in "Lillies of the Field" than she does in antique photographs made at the height of her career.

First Nation al's first production for the new year will be an elaborate scree ntranslation of "The Woman on the Jury." Sylvia Breamer will play the leading role.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage in order of application.

A PALESTINE NOTEBOOK, 1918-1923, by C. R. Ashbee. Vivid pen pictures of Lord Allenby, Lord Milner, Lord Curzon and many others. It also throws new light on the Jewish and Moslem questions and many other political issues in the Near East.

SONNETS AND VERSE, by Hilaire Belloc. A most enjoyable collection which for sheer beauty can scarcely be surpassed.

PIRATES OF THE NEW ENGLAND COAST, by George Francis Dow and John Henry Edmonds. This is based on original documents in the Massachusetts State archives and in the records of the Vice Admiralty Courts, and much interesting information and details have been gleaned from newspapers published at the time. Many illustrations add greatly to this history of piracy.

MODERN FARM BUILDING, by Alfred Hopkins. A third edition of this work, which the author has made more useful by the addition of many photographs showing the possibilities for more attractive architecture. Has a new chapter on different materials in use today.

A KING'S DAUGHTER—A TRAGEDY IN VERSE, by John Masefield. The author has portrayed the dramatic story of Jezebel Queen of Samaria. This absorbing subject and the blank verse with its heroic rhythm make it a play of great force.

BOOK OF THE PIKE, by O. W. Smith. By the Angling Editor of Outdoor Life, who says, "that during the last 30 years more questions have been asked regarding the identity of the Pike family than of any other group of fishes." Very comprehensive and fascinating reading, as there are many stories and anecdotes.

AMERICAN CONSTITUTION; AS IT PROTECTS PRIVATE RIGHTS, by Frederick Stimson. Treats this subject on what may be called its human aspect, in a popular and readable style.

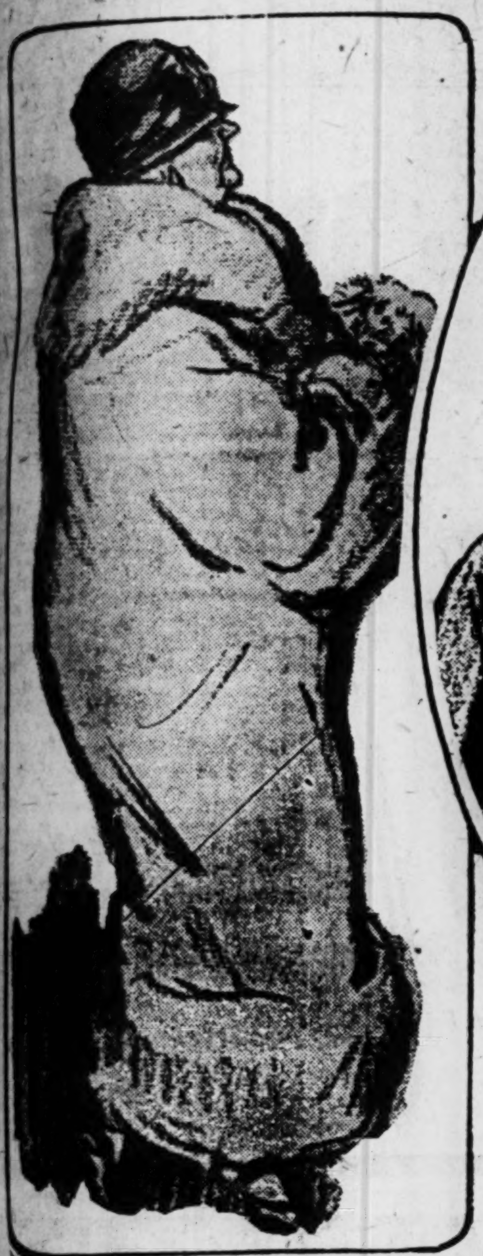
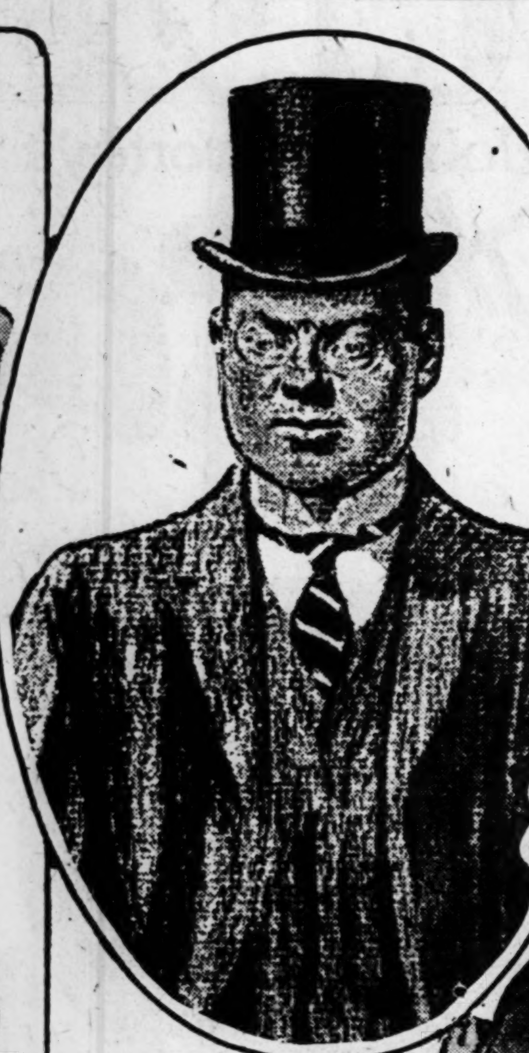
STYLE

(Copyright, 1924.)

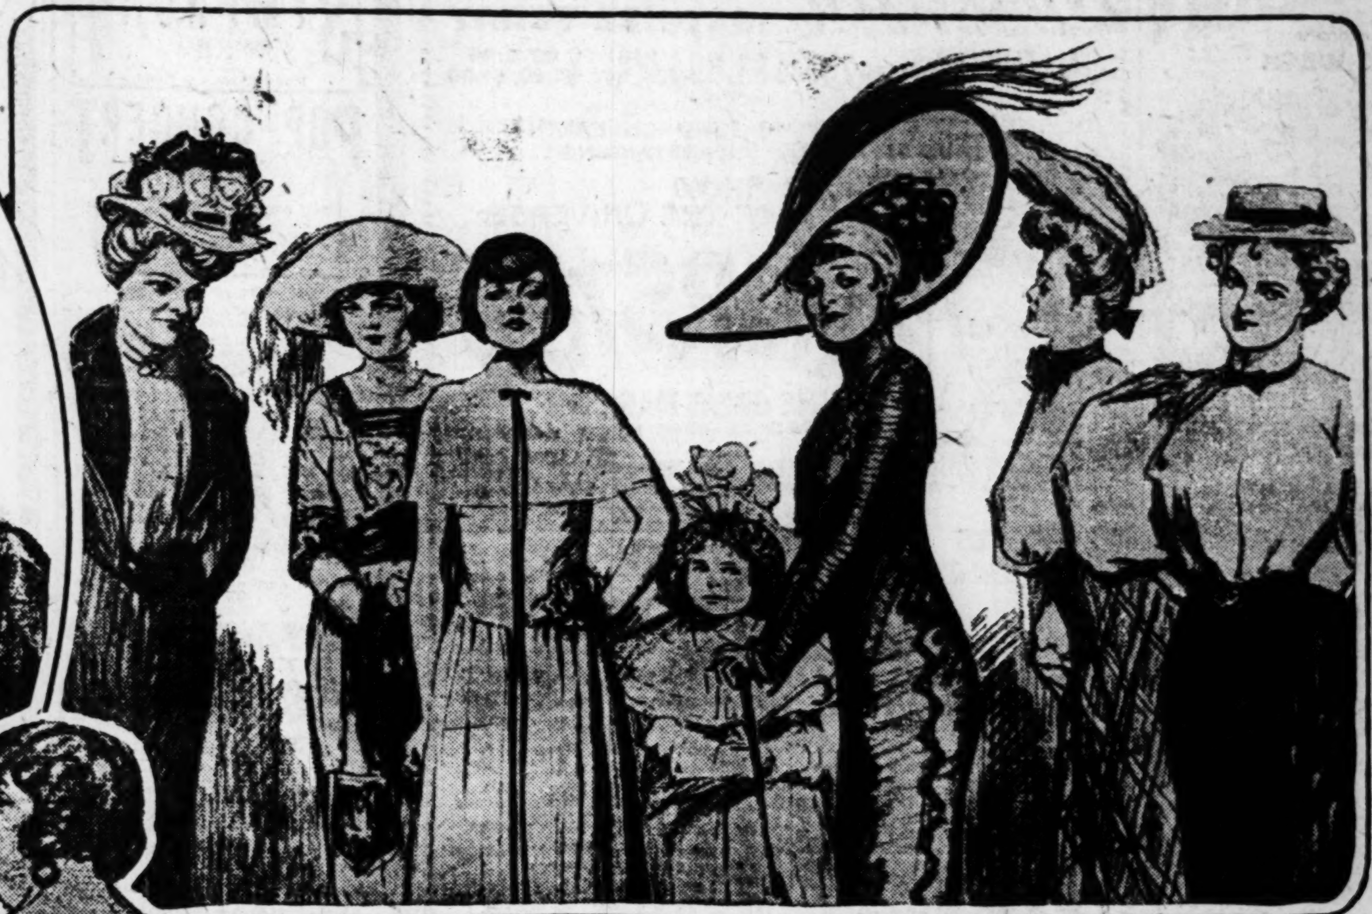
Drawn by W. E. Hill
For the Sunday Post-Dispatch



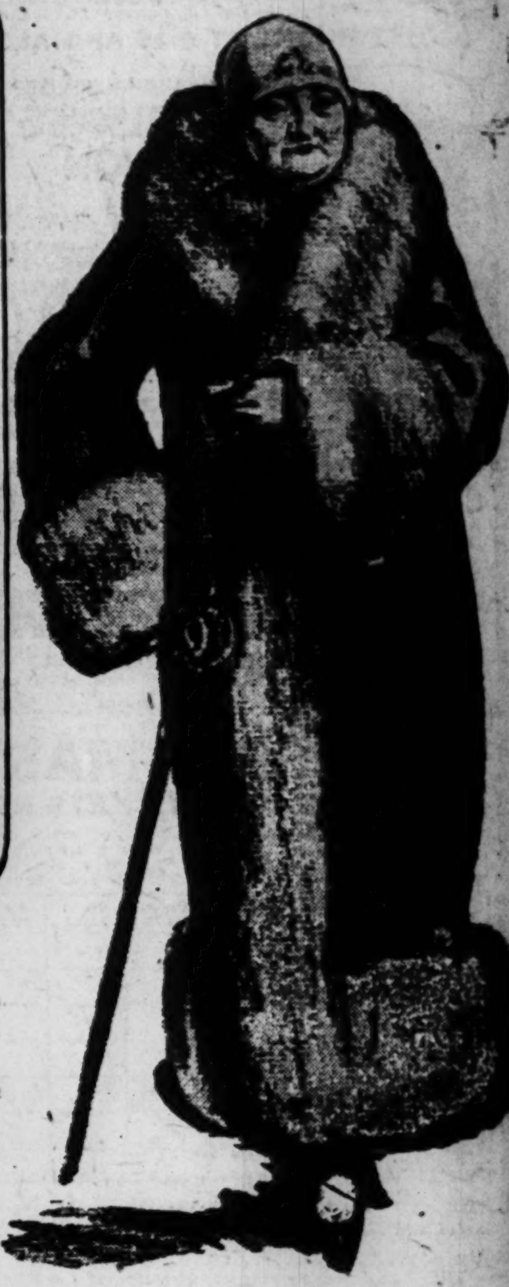
The stylish stout lady lost her girlish figure years ago. She can still be stylish stout however.



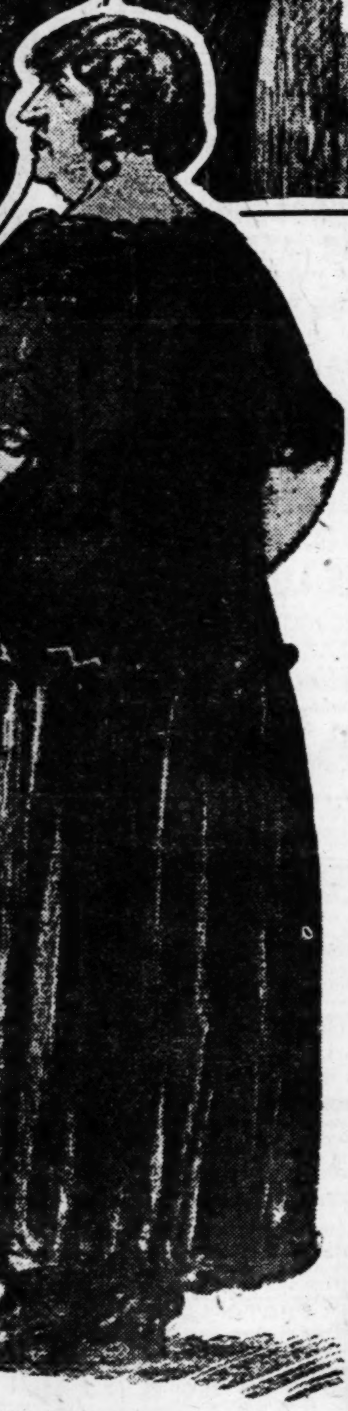
The somewhat short and stout young man with plenty of clothes, that ought to be stylish but never are.



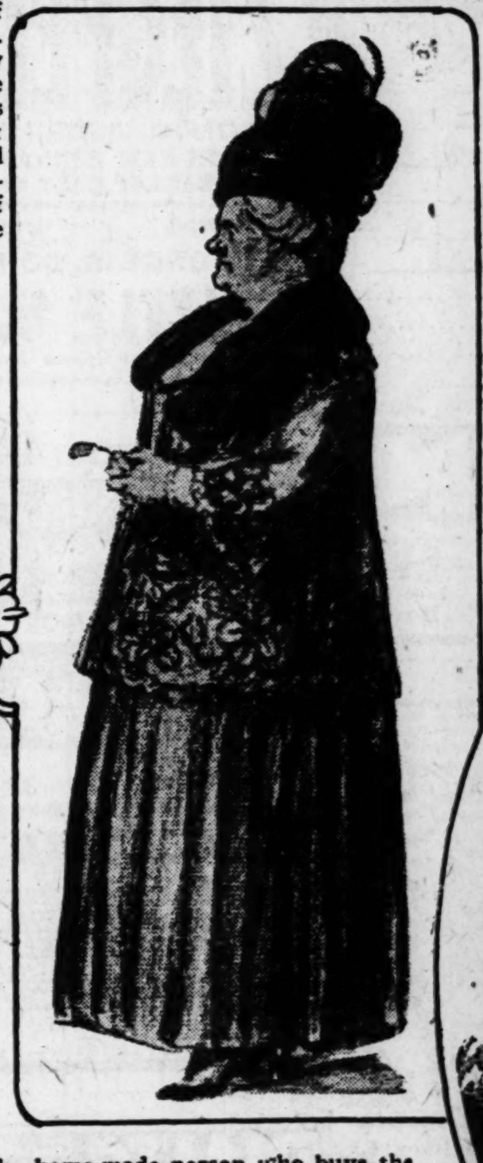
A 1924 young lady surrounded by a bevy of stylish beauties from the not so distant past. The girl on the extreme left was the very latest Paris hint of 1901. The girl with the hobble skirt and the willow plume was just as popular in 1911. The present-day flapper stands next. Then comes a beautifully and simply dressed little child of the early nineteen hundreds. The sheath gowned girl of 1909 and the shirtwaist young lady of the late nineties complete the glittering galaxy.



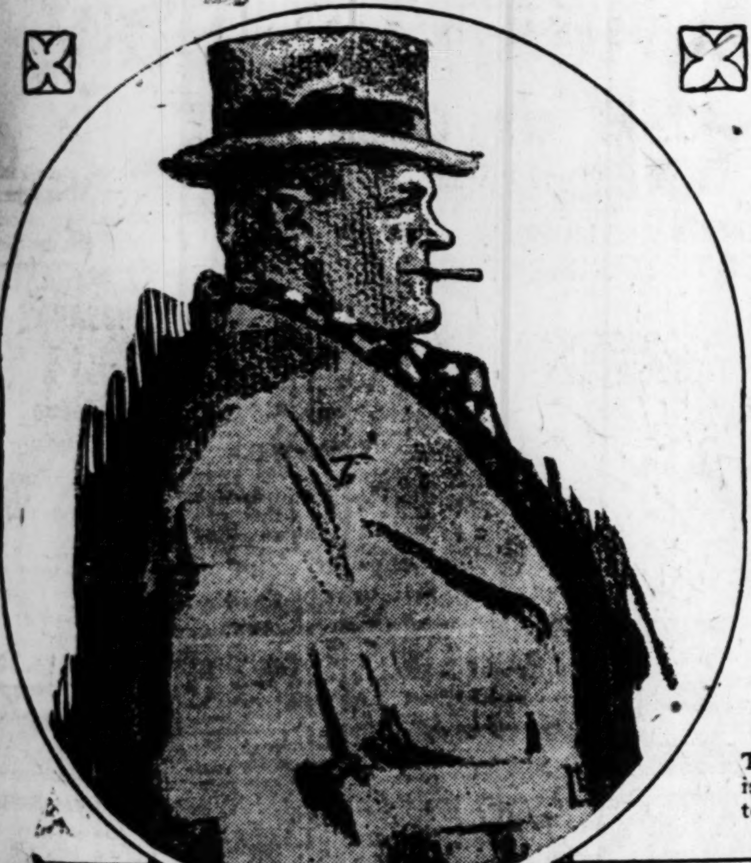
Something pretty Parisian, showing conclusively that style lasts longer than beauty.



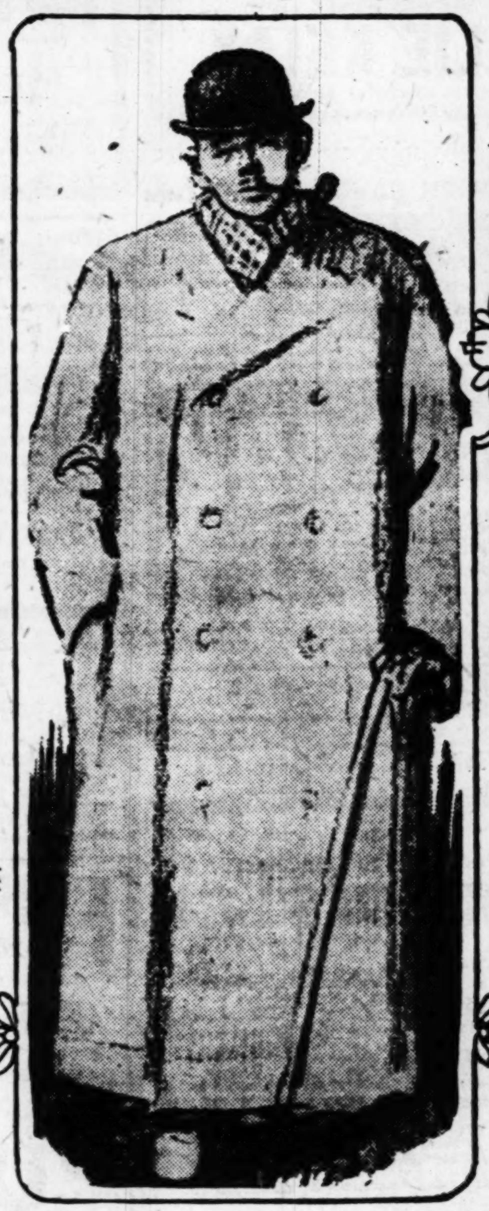
The modiste with what everyone says is a remarkable style sense. Too busy to be very stylish herself, thank you.



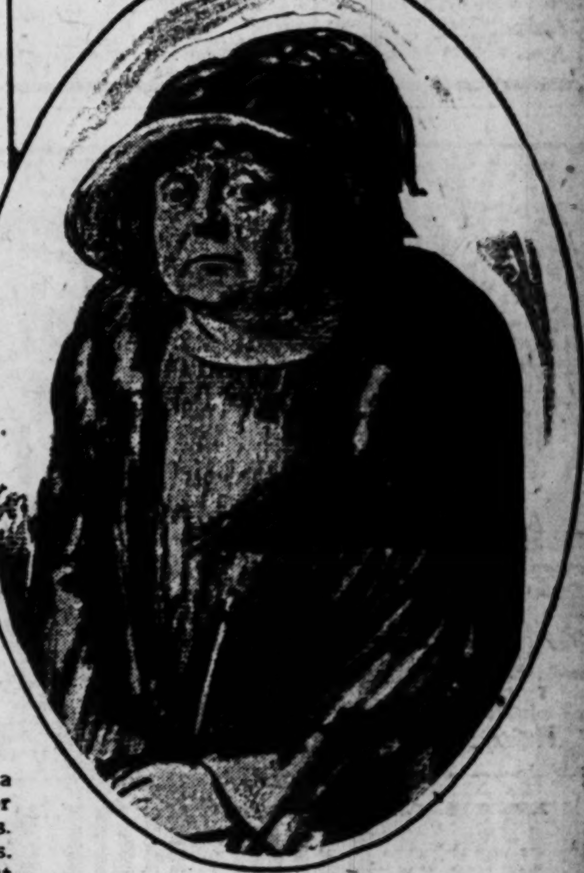
The home-made person who buys the best of everything and has it made up at home. Devoted to purple and black combinations and rooster feathers.



The sheik of the office force, who dresses, as Miss Bessimer, the filing clerk, puts it, "awfully collegiate."



At right: The young man in the long ulster and the pipe is hoping you have mistaken him for a visiting Englishman.



At right. Mrs. Horace Ringold has on a last year's hat, but don't you think for a minute she is behind the times. Mrs. R. is waiting at the throat specialist's. If it's the style to have tonsils out she will have 'em out!

:: In Studio and Gallery ::

GISELLA LOEFFLER'S exhibit at the Town Club cannot fail to impress upon persons familiar with her work for the past five years the fact that progress is made but slowly by the young artist. Several years ago, when these amusing posters appeared in local exhibits, everyone prophesied a swift rise to brilliant heights, the foundation for these expectations being the promise displayed in the entertaining drawings. Indeed, the promise still remains.

It is incongrous that an imaginative mind, capable of visualizing subjects and arrangements as fantastic as those Miss Loeffler draws, should not leap ahead and automatically compound its own possibilities. Instead, it seems at something of a standstill. One would suppose that curiosity concerning what is ahead would impel her forward. Until she passes the point at which she apparently has stopped, her work will continue to be a series of reiterations like the utterances of a person with a limited vocabulary.

It is a mistake, of course, to regard Miss Loeffler's posters as "paintings." Until their significance deepens, they remain bedtime stories for the kiddies. Such slight variation in subject and color and so little variety of general theme, make for monotony for the adult. The use of Miss Loeffler's drawings as illustrations for juvenile literature is their logical fate.

IN the 40 pictures now being shown at the Town Club, only two relieve the prevailing sameness. These are small companion pieces, "Dawn" and "Dusk," the only instances of studied harmony that we have been able to locate. Their tone is soft green, and no harsh contrast of salmon pink and purple brings them back to the usual formula. More grace and less weight make them lovely pictures for the nursery wall.

"Dawn" is a conventionalized woodland interior where a little girl stands, having just awakened from sleep in the mossy clearing. Faint tints of the sun's light peep through the small brush that screens the spot from the outside world. "Dusk" is more pensive, more relaxed and doubly graceful. Beneath a love tree that grows on a hillside, a child sits looking out into space, content with its dreams. The composition of this picture is as pleasant as its quiet tone of green.

IN the Art Department of the Public Library, the interesting exhibit of commercial art and printing will reamin on display for another week. This exhibition, which has become an annual event, is one of the most practical and useful shows of the year. It is not limited to examples of good printing and typography, but includes samples of the best work in advertising layout, copy writing and advertising art that has been done in America during the year.

The outstanding feature of the collection is the lavish use of color. Advertisers of such prosaic commodities as insurance, concrete and machine parts are recognizing the necessity of keeping up with the advertisers of more glamorous objects by furnishing an equal amount of color to the eye of a prospect. Accordingly, insurance pamphlets containing hum-drum statistics and trite epigrams about precaution, are cleverly disguised by flamboyant covers of vermillion which fairly scream, "Pick me up!" In some notable cases, the advertising agent has even gone so far as to improve the copy inside these seductive bindings.

COLOR in retail advertising takes the lead over every other commercial use. Retail merchants know full well that 90 per cent of their merchandise is sold through appeal to the eye, and consequently know the value of presenting their advertising arguments as interestingly and as colorfully as possible. Marshall Field's "Fashions of the Hour," the recognized leader among retail house organs; Franklyn Symons' "Gift Book," Mallinson's "Blue Book of Silks," Bonwit Teller's "Gift Book," Prufrock & Litton's "Within the Home," and others are instances of successful use of luxuriant color, splendidly skilled composition and light literary style in copy writing.

This exhibit at the Library already has been visited by the majority of St. Louisans engaged in the production or use of advertising and printing. It is one of the most popular displays on the Library calendar.

"THE Road to the Sea," by Tom P. Barnett, which is being exhibited at the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington, has just been invited to the Peabody Institute exhibition at Baltimore after it leaves its present place. Both invitations are high tributes to this artist's work.

Mr. Barnett's exhibition at the Guild remains on display until the end of the coming week. Next Tuesday afternoon, a musicale by the St. Louis String Quartette will be given at the Guild for members and their friends while Mr. Barnett's exhibition is still in progress.

FOUR local artists have assembled an interesting collection of their works in etching, and are displaying it until March 1 in the small front gallery of the Artists' Guild.

Gustave Goetsch's wharf marine subjects have a gentle and elusive quality. Their manner is whimsical yet displays great skill. A comparison between his work and that of Hazel Weedel Goetsch brings out the atmospheric qualities in Mr. Goetsch's etchings and emphasizes the miniature-like precision of the others. Mrs. Goetsch's little landscapes, usually panoramic views reduced to minute proportions, show painstaking care, good draughtsmanship and a definite aim. The exactness of her etchings, admirable, of course, for their certainty, is in contrast with the flexibility of her husband's works in the same medium.

C. K. GLEESON, the majority of whose subjects are architectural structures, has a pleasant way of depicting a lovely old archway, an ancient portico, or a queer, crooked street, without boring with excessive detail. The lines of his etchings are fine and firm. They show the confidence the artist has in his own ability. Upon seeing Mr. Gleeson's exhibit of his etchings, one cannot help remarking the superiority of his work in black and white over his work in color. In comparison with his etchings, his water colors seem amateur and elementary. To us Mr. Gleeson's sense of composition surpasses his sense of color.

Cornelia Maury contributes several quick sketches that make no attempt at an accurate account. With a very few hasty lines, whisked briskly across the plate, she has suggested several of the quickly changing moods of childhood. In Miss Maury's sketches, a nice spontaniety is felt; the lines, while not yet certain, have good quality, and give promise of interesting work in the future.

THREE-FOURTHS OF PEOPLE OF HEBRIDES STARVING

Inhabitants for Century Have Resisted Efforts to Induce Them to Move to Better Land.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A condition likened to Irish famine times exists in the Hebrides or Western Isles, that group off the coast of Scotland, where, of a population of 40,000 there are 30,000 starving.

At the best these people barely make a livelihood. Their life is a continual struggle against a relentless climate and a relentless soil. The last year has been more than usually hard.

To help these people is a problem. They live in poor huts, speak only their own language, and have a hearty dislike for anything English or modern. But the real tragedy is that they resist any suggestion that they should migrate to more productive land. They have stubbornly refused to do this for the 100 years, but continue to bear the hardships of the islands while they might become a happy, thriving folk in a different land.

The islanders regard with suspicion the efforts of any outsider to help them with money, food or clothing. They are content to sit in their cottages, awaiting aid from their own Government that is not forthcoming because of the lack of funds.

INSTITUTE FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot to Be Among the Speakers.

An institute for discussion of government and politics will be held by the Missouri, St. Louis County and St. Louis Leagues of Women Voters March 11, 12 and 13 at the new City Club, Eleventh and Locust streets. Mrs. Gifford Pinchot will speak on "American Foreign Policy" at a banquet March 11. Mary Barthelme, Judge of the Juvenile Division of the Chicago Circuit Court, will lead a round table discussion March 12.

Others scheduled to speak are: Chancellor Hadley of Washington University, W. J. Shepard and Walton H. Hamilton of the Graduate School of Economics of Washington University; Forrest R. AUSTRALIA TO GROW COTTON

Experiments on North Coast Successful.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 15.—Cotton growing on an extensive scale on the north coast is to be tried as a result of the success attained on two small plots. On one, worked by a farmer and his two sons, the net return was 45 pounds to the acre and the quality was such that a sample took first prize at a cotton show in Sydney. The other plot yielded 70 pounds to the acre. In the first instance the growers had no previous experience.

A Sydney business man is erecting a cotton spinning mill with 12,000 spindles. A number of operatives brought from England have declared the Australian-grown cotton to be of excellent quality.

Meeting on Accident Prevention.

A mass meeting of women in the interests of accident prevention will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Forest Park Hotel under the auspices of the women's division of the Safety Council. Judge Alva R. Corlett of Cleveland will discuss "Speeders and Our Jails," and Miss Harriet E. Beard, supervisor of accident prevention in the public schools of Detroit, will talk on "Accident Prevention in Public School Work."

Examinations for Army Commissions.

Competitive examinations for second lieutenancies in the regular army will be held the week of April 14, next, to fill 150 vacancies in the infantry, cavalry, field artillery, coast artillery corps, engineers, quartermaster corps, ordnance and finance departments and chemical warfare service. Preliminary examinations will be held at all army posts, including Jefferson Barracks, to which applications may be sent.

GRECIAN SCHOOL WILL BE NAMED FOR WOODROW WILSON

Henry Morgenthau Announces Plan to Make Institution in Syra Memorial for War President.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Feb. 23.—A proposal to dedicate as "The Woodrow Wilson Memorial School" the large new orphanage now under construction on the Island of Syra was announced by Henry Morgenthau at a Washington's birthday celebration here yesterday.

The institution will be the largest industrial training school in the Levant. It will provide for 5000 children and form an important link in the chain of American educational institutions existing in Constantinople, Beirut and Cairo. Morgenthau said it would be a tribute to Woodrow Wilson, "Who to opposed and subject races most nearly represented the highest ideals of American altruism and humanitarianism."

The celebration was attended by M. Venizelos, all the members of the Greek Cabinet and American residents of Athens.

PAN-AMERICAN UNION GOOD EXAMPLE, HERRICK SAYS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The value of the example set by the Pan-American Union was the theme of the speech made by Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, at a luncheon given at the embassy yesterday to the diplomatic representatives of Latin-America.

Speaking of the creation of the Pan-American Union as a spontaneous event, the only motive behind which was a desire for mutual helpfulness, he said:

"The stronger the structure becomes the more the rest of the world will be convinced of the feasibility of many nations living together in peace and concord, and our example becomes yearly a more potent example for others."

"We are advancing the day," he continued, "when business between nations can be carried on in an atmosphere of confidence rather than suspicion and if crises arise decisions will be reached through justice instead of by force. . . . Europe is as deeply concerned as we in strengthening the moral union which our countries have effected in an effort to establish a new practice in the conduct of international affairs."

It's Nerve Force From Nuxated Iron

that helps make STRONG, MAGNETIC, FORCEFUL MEN, who make their over-mastering presence felt the moment they enter a room.

NUXATED IRON contains the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve force in a form which most nearly resembles that in the brain and nerve cells of man. It also contains organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Organic iron enriches the blood and plenty of rich red blood means more nerve force, so that Nuxated Iron not only feeds what might be termed artificial nerve force to the nerve cells, but it stimulates the blood to manufacture a greatly increased supply of new nerve force. If you are weak, nervous or run-down, get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today, and if within two weeks' time you do not feel that it has increased your nerve force and made you feel better and stronger in every way, your money will be refunded. Sold by all druggists.

Contributions to the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund, amounting to $166.20, have been received since the last acknowledgment was published several weeks ago. This sum brings the total amount in the 1923 fund to $16,135.75, setting a high mark for donations toward the annual Christmas hospitality by $431. The next largest fund was raised in 1920, when $16,704 was contributed.

In addition to the elaborate festival given at the Coliseum for more than 10,900 children, with toys and gifts for all, the Executive Committee last Christmas delivered 3005 dinner baskets to families whose names were recommended, and sent gifts of pipes and tobacco to the men in the municipal and benevolent lodging houses. The total cost of the 1923 festival was $15,941.62 for the work of the three departments of the association, exclusive of administration expenses, which are paid by the Post-Dispatch.

It is estimated that this year between 32,000 and 34,000 persons, through their contributions, shared in distribution of the material things which make for Christmas joy.

SOAKS RIGHT IN AND LIMBERS UP STIFF JOINTS

Pharmacists call it "Joint-Ease" because it's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint-Ease" because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint-Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint-Ease." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

All druggists dispense it daily for about 60 cents a tube.

STATUE FOR OREGON PIONEER

It Will Be Placed in Park on Site of Meeker Homestead.

By the Associated Press.

PUYALLUP, Wash., Feb. 2.—Ezra Meeker, pioneer of the Oregon Trail, whose travels in the East with an ox team commemorated the migration of Americans to the Oregon Territory, is to have a statue.

The statue of Meeker in bronze is to be placed in Pioneer Park here. The park includes a homestead that he settled when he came to the country from Iowa about the middle of the last century. Alonzo Victor Lewis, a Seattle sculptor, is making the monument. Mr. Meeker celebrated his ninety-third birthday Dec. 30, last.

Answer: For the quick relief of such disorders of the kidneys and bladder I advise the use of Balmwort tablets which promote normal activity, heal and soothe the irritated, congested membranes and often influence the dangerous high blood pressure due to inactive kidneys.

Miss G. B. asks: "Is it possible for a very thin, nervous person to take something to help increase weight and make arms, cheeks and neck fill out? General health seems good."
Answer: Yes, it has been proven possible to do this by taking regularly with meals for several months a nutritional tonic. I find Hypo-Nuclane tablets the best of these.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, has been recommending trustworthy medicines to millions of people through the medium of the newspapers, and doubtless has helped in relieving the ailments and minor infirmities of the public more than any single individual in the world's history; and by an inexpensive method.

The medicines mentioned by him are pure and free from habit-forming drugs. They represent the combined wisdom and experience of physician and chemist.

Progressive druggists can supply them. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

LETTERS TO DR. BAKER

Ellen Head, 104 Pleasant St., Cambridge, Mass., writes: "For years I suffered and did not realize it was kidney and bladder trouble, until I read the symptoms in your little book. I was so short of breath when I walked upstairs, and I had backaches so often. After faithfully taking Balmwort tablets for a period of six months I am quite a new woman. I can run up two flights of stairs just as well as when I was younger, being now in my 62nd year. It is a pleasure to recommend Balmwort tablets to other sufferers."

Mr. Urban Wickford, Route 2, Mansfield, Ohio, writes: "My wife has used Balmwort tablets for several years and always found great relief. In my own case, my blood pressure went to 186. After taking Balmwort tablets, it came down to 140. I also wish to say that I have used Mentho-Laxene for coughs and colds and that it is the best I ever used."

James J. McConville, 117 Marshall St., Patterson, N. J., writes: "I am 45 and a silk spinner. Have always been troubled with pimples, headache, coated tongue and constipated bowels, but now my face is clear and I think Sulpherb tablets is the greatest thing for these troubles I have ever known. Whenever I feel out of sorts I take a treatment of six tubes and then I feel like a new man. Publish my letter if you wish, as this is the truth I write, etc."

Mr. D. G. George, 5227 20th Av., S. W., Seattle, Wash., writes: "Just a few words to say how much good your Cadomene tablets have done for me. For over a year I have been in a general run down condition; nothing helped me until a friend told me of Cadomene. I thought I'd give them a trial, and now, after taking only 3 boxes, I feel like a different man. I cannot praise Cadomene enough."

Mr. Lester Cook, 2728 W. Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I had the worst cough. I could not sleep nor rest at night. I tried many remedies and got no results. Mentho-Laxene gave me wonderful results. In one week I was sound and well. This medicine is a Godsend to suffering humanity."

Louise Roberts, 18 Worsted St., Franklin, Mass., writes: "For two months I coughed so it weakened me and I tried many cough syrups, but none helped. Seeing the advertisement of Mentho-Laxene I thought I would try it, and am more than thankful. I had only taken it two days when I felt relieved. It is now three weeks that I have taken it, and my cough is gone. It also cleared me of a slight catarrh. It is very pleasant to take and very inexpensive."

Mrs. A. C. Gaiser, 484 Mineral St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin, writes: "I have been troubled with migraine headache for the last ten years. Usually had them twice a week and many times just had to go to bed. I was so very weak. About six months ago I learned of your wonderful Hypo-Nuclane tablets. I began taking them and ever since the headaches have been gradually leaving me. I and my friends have also used Su-thol tablets and all think they are wonderful for pain relief. I really had to write to express my appreciation, etc."

Mrs. Lulu R. Thomas, 602 Parkway South, Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I would not exchange Sulpherb tablets and Cadomene tablets for all the medicines I have known. About seven years ago I used both for a run-down condition, dizziness, wakefulness and other ailments and they not only relieved me for a short time, but completely restored me. No cough remedy of any kind helped my husband's colds, coughs due to asthma, until I began giving him essence Menthe Laxene—he has not had asthma cough since. Plain Yellow Minyol has done wonders for my hair and scalp. Am now taking Hypo-Nuclane and I have gained in flesh after taking only one box. I wish more people knew of these good medicines, etc."

COIN COLLECTORS WILL BID ON LOOT OF ROBBER BARON

1150 Specimens Comprise Hoard Found by Purchase of Castle Near Eberbach.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HALLE, Germany, Feb. 3.—Back in 1701 a certain German baron, whose principal vocation was the robbery of passing travelers, secreted some of his loot in the castle walls, and then died before he had a chance to spend it.

Thus it was that one Wilhelm Kraaz, of this generation, is today the owner of a fine collection of old coins. He became possessed of the castle which is near Eberbach, and discovered the baron's hoard. The collection is interesting and valuable, and consists of 1150 specimens.

Kraaz is going to sell them all at auction, and expects coin collectors from all over Europe to attend the sale.

WARSAW, Feb. 23.—Two hundred delegates, including representatives of the American Poles who served in Gen. Haller's army in the European war were present Thursday at the second conference of the Union of Haller Veterans.

Gen. Haller, reporting on his American trip, alluded to the favorable impression the organization of the American Legion had made upon him. The congress decided to propose that other Polish army veterans form a similar national organization.

NEW HOSPITAL TO BE OPEN TO POOR PERSONS

Jewish Institution Designed to Fit Pocketbook of Every Patient.

A hospital designed to fit the pocketbook of every patient, from the empty purse of the poor man to the fat wallet of the rich man—such will be the new $2,000,000 Jewish Hospital to be erected at King's-highway and Forest Park boulevard, as it is now planned.

While the detailed building plans have not been announced, they provide for a bed capacity of 250, planned to accommodate patients of all financial conditions. One hundred and twenty-five will be ward beds—either free or partly free, depending on the patients. Another 44 beds will be in semi-private rooms, designed for the man of moderate means who as a general rule must choose between a high-priced private room or a ward bed. The remaining 81 beds will be in private rooms.

The Jewish Hospital Board, headed by Aaron Waldheim, chairman, is now engaged in raising funds to begin the new work. The present structure at 5415 Delmar boulevard, built in 1900, has been declared inadequate considering the development of hospital methods, research work and the growth of St. Louis. It has but 110 beds, the laboratories and nurses' quarters are crowded, and the demand for ward accommodations is imperative. The hospital claims to have done more free work during the past year than any other general hospital in St. Louis.

POINCARE FALLS OFF WATER WAGON IN PARLIAMENT

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Premier Poincare, who praises French wines but drinks water, recently fell off the water wagon in the Chamber of Deputies. The Premier's attack of the grip, which finally sent him to bed for a day during his fight to drive his tax measures through Parliament, had worn him down greatly.

His physician and friends, realizing his weakness, instructed attendants to put a glass of hot punch, "grog Americaine" before him while he was speaking, instead of the traditional glass of sweetened water. The Premier took sips of the beverage every few minutes, the glass frequently being replaced when the liquid began to grow cold with another steaming hot one. This was kept up during the entire two and one-half hours which it took him to deliver his speech.

ETON HAS LONG WAITING LIST

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Eton College, England's most aristocratic institution of learning and the alma mater of the royal family, has enough students entered on its rolls to keep the school filled until 1934.

The school authorities have announced that they are unable to enter any more students before that year, and for the five years following only prospective students who are sons of old Etonians will be considered.

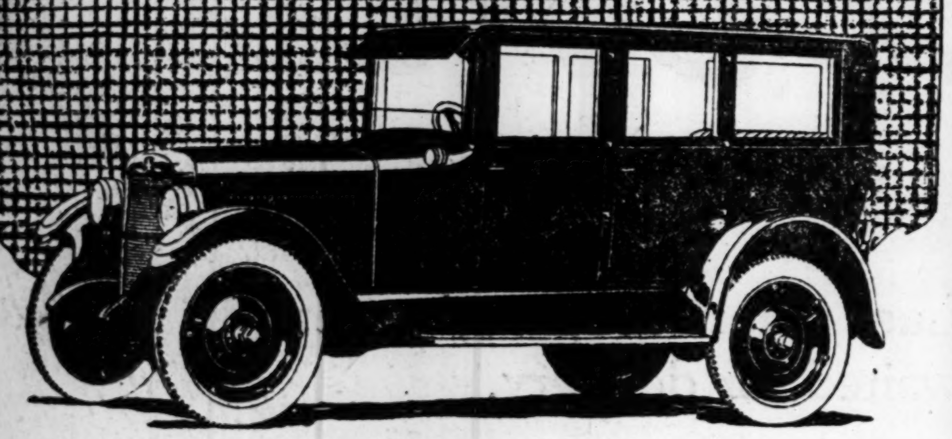
COLUMBIA ARTCRAFT MODELS

a new kind of AUTOMOBILE



The beautiful new Columbia Sixes represent a bold departure from customary methods of building moderately priced automobiles.

On a chassis known for very exceptional ability and trustworthiness have been mounted bodies as fine as can be built for cars of their size and type.

The finish is the best obtainable, involving several extra operations usually omitted save in very costly bodies. Upholstery—Spanish genuine leather in the Phaeton and heavy mohair plush in the Sedan—is the kind seldom found except in special high priced models. Fittings and equipment are richly complete.

Hydraulic Four Wheel Brakes are optional at a small added cost. So are Balloon Tires.

There are larger, heavier and more expensive cars than these new Columbia Sixes, but not better or more practical cars for the average family—and none so reasonably priced that offer such rich beauty, finished artistry and proved qualities of performance and reliability.

You are cordially invited to visit the showroom of the Columbia dealer nearest you and see the new Artcraft Models.

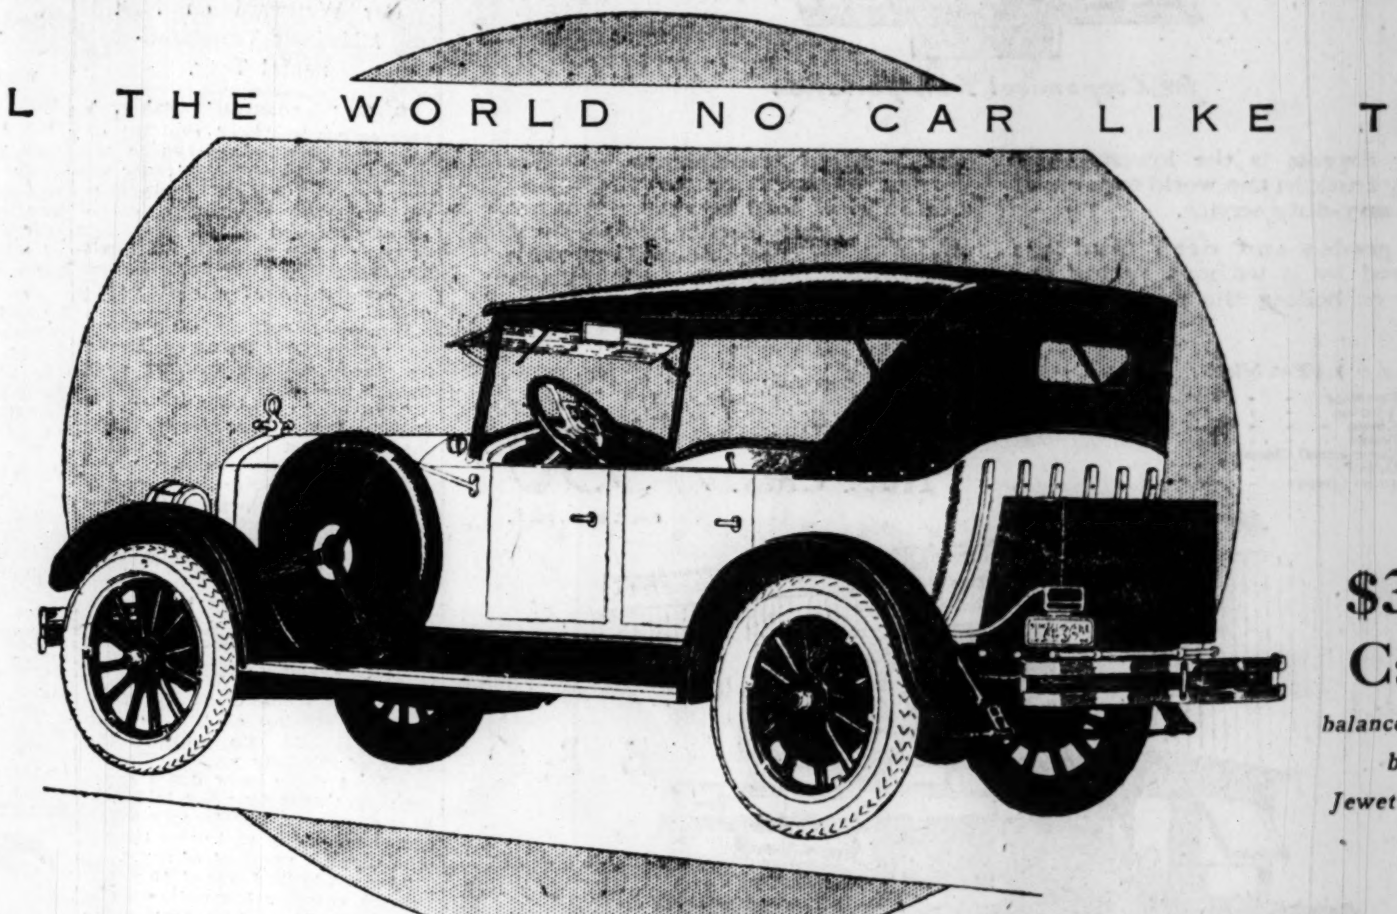
IN ALL THE WORLD NO CAR LIKE THIS



$385 Cash

balance monthly, buys a Jewett Touring

The Complete De Luxe Beauty

THERE'S style in every line of this Jewett touring car. Japanese blue finish, matched by hand-crushed Spanish leather, is set off smartly by the flash of full nickeled trimmings and equipment. Its thousands of owners are proud of its appearance. And there's nothing to buy for this De Luxe beauty. Equipment is beautifully complete.

Thrilling Performance

In the New Jewett modest cost buys thrilling 50-horsepower performance—a light-footed nimbleness that outshines far more costly cars. The New Jewett shows best up hard hills. Takes hard hills in high, easily, that most cars "rush" to make. It even picks up on hills! And Jewett's power is flexible. You can drive from 2 to 60 miles an hour, or more, in high. It picks up from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high.

Jewett's cylinders are 3¼x5 inches, giving 249 cubic inches piston displacement. Jewett's motor stays good because it is high-pressure oiled, like the big Paige.

Convenient chassis size permits Jewett to park in but 16½ feet at the curb. Turns around in a 42-foot street—enters or leaves your garage on but a 14-foot alley or driveway. Yet Jewett's bodies are as roomy inside as larger, cumbersome cars.

Delightful for Women

Women marvel at the easy handling of this powerful car. Gear-shifting is rarely necessary—and then how simple! Move the lever fast or slowly, with rarely a "miss" or clash. Clutch pressure is gentle—depress it with your hand to prove this. Jewett steers easily, due to ball-bearing steering spindles.

In all the world no car like this! Jewett Six combines mechanical superiorities and advantages found in no other car. Jewett is equalled mechanically only by cars costing $700 to thousands more—and then at the sacrifice of convenience and economy.

Drive this De Luxe beauty. Come in today for just the kind of a demonstration you want.

How Jewett Six Outclasses "Light" Sixes

Weight tells sturdiness. Jewett weighs 2805 lbs. Certain "light" sixes weigh 2650 lbs.—2545—2420—2300. No further evidence of Jewett's sturdiness is needed! As to power. The word "horsepower" is not a reliable guide. Cubic inches piston displacement indicate power. Jewett has 249 cu. in. piston displacement. The same "light" sixes have 207—177—171—169—from 20 to 40 per cent less than Jewett. Not one but will be sluggish compared with Jewett. Prove this by driving the Jewett. The difference will amaze you!

GARDNER "BLIZZARD" CROSSING COUNTRY

E. G. 'Cannonball' Baker Driving St. Louis-Built Closed Car Westward on First Midwinter Transcontinental Tour.

E. G. "Cannonball" Baker, is progressing westward rapidly on his transcontinental run in the Gardner "Blizzard," a Gardner sedan, in which it is said he is making the first midwinter cross-country tour on record.

Baker came through St. Louis last Wednesday night and was met by Gardner factory officials on his arrival.

Some of the difficulties the Gardner "Blizzard" is facing are shown by the following extracts from Baker's reports.

"Arrived in Zanesville at 11 o'clock, Feb. 19, 530 miles from starting point in New York in Gardner sedan on transcontinental endurance run after encountering one of the worst storms of the East that raged the entire day. Pulled entire 530 miles on chains. Leaving New York with roads covered with snow, arrived at Lancaster, Pa., 6:30 a. m. Snow began falling, becoming heavier as we progressed westward, developing into a blinding blizzard as we reached the mountain region. We had heavy going across the mountain, temperature ranging as lew as zero with a 60-mile gale sweeping the crests of the lofty peaks. We encountered many snow drifts ranging from two to four feet in depth. In one instance, the Gardner sedan was compelled to pull more than a mile through two feet of snow.

"Arrived in St. Louis at 10 p. m., Feb. 20, covering 508 miles on the second day of the transcontinental endurance run in the Gardner sedan, "The Blizzard." Immediately after leaving Columbus this morning, we encountered a heavy fog which covered the road for 15 miles. Running out of this we hit a heavy blizzard that raged for 45 minutes. From 20 miles west of Columbus to 25 miles east of St. Louis the roads were covered with a sheet of ice which was the result of the heavy sleet storm that swept the middle western states last night. The full 508 miles of the second day's run was made with chains on four wheels. At one place east of Dayton the roads were so slippery that we were forced to detour for four miles.

Swayne Addresses Meeting.

Alfred H. Swayne, chairman of the Committee on Relation of Highways and Motor Transport to Other Transportation Agencies, which is a committee of the Chamber of Commercee of the United States, addressed the North Central Division of that body in Chicago.

STUDEBAKER ADDS TO PLANT FACILITIES

New Building Just Completed Increases Investment in Closed Body Plants to $8,000,000.

With the recent addition of another enormous unit to its facilities, the Studebaker Corporation now has an investment in closed body plants at South Bend, Ind., amounting to $8,000,000. The new building is 800 feet long and 100 feet wide, six stories high, and is of reinforced concrete, faced with brick.

Some idea of its immensity may be had from a comparison with the tallest business building in the world. If placed on end alongside the Woolworth Building, the new Studebaker unit, 100 feet square, would tower eight feet higher towards the clouds.

The glass used in windows and skylights would cover two and one-half acres, and the cement and brick in the mammoth structure are sufficient to build a two-foot sidewalk from New York City to Boston. Ten miles of chain are used in the conveyor system and 20 miles of piping supply the sprinkling and heating systems for the plant. The closed body division of Studebaker's business employs 5000 men.

Besides the closed body building, large additions have recently been made to the storage and shipping building and to the power plant at South Bend. Studebaker's new gray iron foundry, 722x698 feet, is near completion.

Seventy per cent of Studebaker's total plant capacity has been provided and developed in the past seven years. During this period the investment in plants has grown to $50,000,000, and its production has increased from 40,000 to 150,000 cars a year.

The Sale of a CASE does not Terminate with a Signed Order

THE sale of a Case automobile is something more than a mere business transaction. To us, it invariably means another enthusiast. The percentage we make is small compared to the word-of-mouth advertising we can count on.

It is a Case policy to keep in touch with the Case user. This is good business; records show that approximately ninety percent of the Case cars which were sold last year were sold to Case owners, or to people to whom the Case had been recommended by someone who knew.

So the Case, then, is a self-selling car. Frankly, our sales effort is devoted to a far greater extent to users, not so much to sell them another car, but to keep them sold on the one they already have.

The Case Service Plan

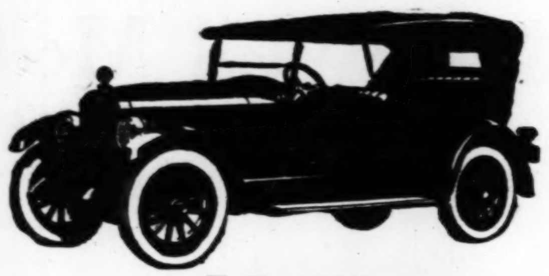
When you buy a Case either from us or from one of our dealers, you are automatically a participant in the Case Service Plan.

This means that we "break your car in" for you. It means that it will be oiled, greased, and adjusted free of charge (save the nominal cost of material) during the first three thousand miles of its life.

This, together with mechanical perfection, explains why folks who are once sold on the Case stay sold on the Case.

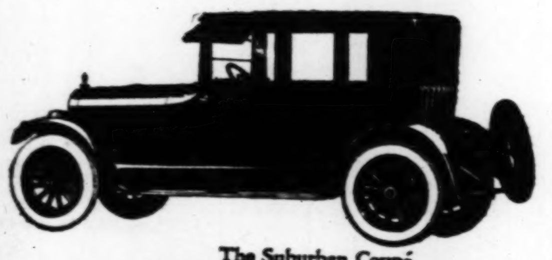
The "Y" Sedan

The wheel base a trifle longer (132-inch base). The frame of extra deep section, 5-16 x 2 1-2 x 6 1-8 inch channel steel construction. Plenty of room for seven within; the seats and walls finished with the finest of broadcloth material or of Spanish leather to match paint at small additional cost.



The Model "X" Touring

This is the car on which Case built its reputation for sturdiness. It seats five passengers comfortably; it is propelled by a Continental motor, and started and lighted by Delco.



The Suburban Coupé

For the country home, or for the man who commutes. Snow, rain, or wind have no effect on the snugness of this car. It holds four passengers and is fitted and upholstered in the best taste.

Frankly Answer 20 Questions Motorists Are Asking About

BALLOON

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

Much confusion and misrepresentation has been caused by manufacturers offering oversized cord tires announced as "Balloons" or "Balloon-type" which are in reality, semi-balloons.

The true Balloon was pioneered and perfected by Firestone We, the Firestone Service Dealers of this territory, after talking with hundreds of interested motorists, have prepared the following answers to twenty questions, so that you may be fully acquainted with the situation, and authentically informed about the construction features and advantages of the genuine Balloon Tires.

You, no doubt, have either asked these same questions — or, at least have had them in mind. Now—you have them frankly and truthfully answered.

1 What Is a Real Balloon Tire?
The true Balloon is a super-size Gum-Dipped Cord that is specially designed and constructed. It has twice the air capacity and operates successfully with only half the pressure of regular tires. We believe it to be the most important contribution to motoring comfort, safety and economy since the invention of the pneumatic tire.

2 How Does It Differ From the Interchangeable, or "Semi-Balloon"?
The so-called "balloons" that are interchangeable with present wheel and rim equipment are merely 10% to 20% oversized cord tires, with fewer plies. They are little better than your present regular cords. The true balloon has double the air capacity of the regular tire it replaces, has its thinner side wall made extra strong and is mounted on a smaller diameter wheel, so that the gear ratio of the car is unchanged, and the proper fender clearance is provided.

3 Can a Real Balloon Tire Be Applied to Present Wheels
NO. To provide sufficient tire section to carry the load on low air pressure it is necessary to have a larger tire than can be applied to wheels and rims now on cars using high-pressure tires.

4 Why Are the Smaller Wheels Necessary?
Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords do not change the present operation of your car. For instance, a 7.30 balloon gum-dipped cord replaces a 33x5 standard size tire. It is mounted on a wheel 20 inches in diameter. This makes the outside diameter actually no greater than the standard tire it replaces. We have special service wheels built by Firestone, with spokes offset three-quarters of an inch. This readily takes care of fender and body clearances. And it is a fact that you cannot replace a regular 33x5 tire with a semi-balloon without wheel changes.

5 Who Was Responsible for the Real Balloon Tire?
Firestone made the low air pressure idea practical and developed the Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord to its present point of utility.

6 What Made the Real Balloon Tire Practical?
GUM DIPPING. Low-pressure tires require thin side walls that flex easily as road shocks are encountered. Firestone found the way to combine extreme flexibility with toughness and strength. The Firestone gum-dipping process impregnates each cord with special rubber compound.

7 Has the Real Balloon Tire Been Tested?
YES. Before announcing Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords to the public, Firestone submitted them to more than two-million miles of test driving, and millions of additional miles of actual service have strongly emphasized their wonderful advantages.

8 Do Automobile Manufacturers Offer Real Balloons as Original Equipment?
YES. Sixteen leading car manufacturers today offer Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords as original or optional equipment. They put Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords to their own tests before offering them to the public.

9 Do Automobile Manufacturers Offer Semi-Balloons as Original Equipment?
NO. No automobile manufacturer uses Semi-Balloons, either as original or optional equipment, as they would change gear ratios, interfere with fender and body clearances, and cause other mechanical difficulties.

10 Do Real Balloons Make Riding More Comfortable?
YES. They do what tires from the first were intended to do—cushion the car on air. Bumps, holes, and irregularities are completely absorbed, making even the worst road smooth to travel. If you have never ridden on real Balloon tires, you cannot conceive the luxurious riding comfort, the wonderful feeling of safety and complete relaxation they make possible.

11 Are True Balloon Cords Safer?
YES. Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords virtually eliminate skidding, and give you both wheel and braking control of your car, never before experienced. Their broad, flexible treads have twice the contact area with the road. Multiplied crosses, squares, and deep grooves cling to slippery surfaces and increase the traction.

12 Do They Add to the Life of Your Car?
YES. By cushioning jolts and vibration below the hubs. Wear and tear on the motor, gears and bearings, from the pounding of the road, is reduced. Crystallization of chassis parts is slowed down and body squeaks and rattles are minimized.

13 Do Genuine Balloons Cut Down Power or Increase Fuel Consumption?
NO. Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords do not change the gear ratio of your car—do not increase gasoline consumption—do not decrease tire mileage—do not decrease accelleration—do not affect the cars' hill-climbing ability.

14 What Happens When a Real Balloon Tire Is Punctured?
NOTHING. In the first place, they do not puncture as easily as ordinary tires due to the fact that they yield rather than be pierced by the puncturing object. Secondly, when a puncture does occur the air escapes slowly because of the low pressure.

15 Do They Make Steering Harder?
NO. Steering is actually easier when car is in motion and long-distance runs are made with much less fatigue to driver, as car holds a steadier course. When maneuvering into a cramped parking space more of an effort is required at the wheel.

16 Do Real Balloon Tires "Shimmy"?
NO. Not when wheels and tires are correctly balanced. Due to Firestone's unusual method of balancing tube and carcass, with proper relation to valve, splice, bead and other parts, vibration in steering mechanism is practically nil.

17 How Am I to Know a Real Balloon Tire?
By its greater size, its thin side wall, its distinctive tread of grooves and crosses and squares, the name Firestone on the side wall and the Mark of Quality.

18 Are Real Balloon Tires Standardized?
Automotive authorities have approved the Balloon Tire as applied to 20 and 21 inch wheels in the sizes offered by Firestone—4.40 and 5.25 on the 21-inch wheel, 6.20 on both 20 and 21 inch wheels and 7.30 on the 20-inch wheel.

19 Are Real Balloon Tires Made for All Cars?
YES. The genuine Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord can be had in sizes for all cars. For instance, a 7.30 Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord replaces a 33x5 standard size Firestone, and a 4.40 Balloon replaces a 30x3½-inch tire, used by light car owners. We have the wheels and rims built by Firestone which make Balloons applicable to all makes and models.

20 Who Will Make the Change-Over to Real Balloons for Me?
We will. And do it so quickly, too, because we are supplied with the Firestone special service wheel for Balloon equipment. We would like to explain this feature to you in detail and answer any other questions you may have in mind regarding this wonderful tire. Drive around, any time, and let us arrange to take you for a demonstration. A ride on Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord—on any street—will amaze you.

QUEEN MARY HAD THE FIRST TUDOR MODEL

The earliest coach and the latest sedan—both Tudors!

Queen Mary's was the first Tudor sedan.

The latest Tudor sedan is the new closed car type recently announced by the Ford Motor Co.

The new car admirably reflects the world's progress in travel equipage since Mary Tudor took her first airing in the royal coach in 1556.

Creation of this original Tudor sedan is credited to "one Walter Rippen," by Ralph Strauss in his "Carriages and Coaches, Their History and Evolution." "Rippon's first coach is supposed to have been built for Queen Mary in 1556," says Strauss, "and in 1564 the first "hollow-turning" coach with pillars and arches, for Queen Elizabeth, though precisely what is meant by "hollow-turning" coach is difficult to conjecture.

HUPMOBILE STRONG IN EXPORT FIELD

Big Increase in 1923 in Foreign Sales—Surveys Forecast Increases in 1924.

Surveys of business conditions throughout the world, recently completed by the Hupp Motor Car Corporation's foreign agents, reveal that a continued expansion of considerable proportions may be expected abroad by the well-established motor car manufacturers in 1924, according to information received by Weber Implement and Automobile Co., local Hupmobile dealer. Hupp has been one of the largest export shippers in the entire automotive field for years.

Hupp foreign business in 1924 should be at least 40 per cent greater than last year, according to advices. "During 1923 we increased our export sales 53 per cent above our 1922 figure, which was more than four times that of 1921," reads the report. "Our 1923 business was handled through more than 60 distributing companies abroad, comprising several hundred dealers. Our present export sales organization is the strongest we have ever built up.

"Big gains during 1923 were made by Hupp in Australia, South Africa and portions of South America. These countries have taken a large part of the total number of American automobiles exported for years. From the survey we have learned that we can expect a continued expansion in sales from all these countries. Also, we expect to enjoy a tremendously increased business in the British Isles and several continental countries. England, particularly, should show a great increase in Hupmobile sales over last year.

"Many of our export distributers have, during the last two months, placed larger orders than during similar periods a year ago. Several others, after a lapse of months in 1923, during which time they were cleaning up surplus stocks, are now ordering regular stocks on a monthly basis and selling their cars during the same month they are received, just as American distributers do. This point augurs well for their future prosperity and the stability of the American automobile's future abroad.

"Our export shipments during the last three months of 1923 were nearly double those for the corresponding period of the year before, and materially larger than for any other three months of 1923."

HUDSON PRODUCTION AND DEMAND LARGE

"The Hudson Motor Car Co. is at the highest point of production in its entire history," declares R. C. Frampton, president Hudson-Frampton Co., "and that is particularly fortunate for us, because the demand for the new Essex and the Super-Six is far ahead of the supply.

"I have seen new automobile models come and go, almost from the beginning of the industry, but I never before saw a car take hold on public demand, and keep that hold, as has the new Essex six. There is no doubt but that twice, and probably three times, as many motorists will buy Essex cars in 1924 as did in 1923.

"It would not surprise me if in 1924 Hudson would become the largest exclusive producer of six-cylinder cars in the world, counting on a larger number of Super-Sixes and a multiplied production of Essex. Certainly we shall make in 1924 more six cylinder enclosed cars than any other company. Seventy-five per cent of Hudson-Essex production is enclosed, as against 40 per cent for the industry."

To Show Hupp Film Again.

The Hupp Motor Car Co. film which was exhibited by the Weber Implement and Automobile Company to dealers at the annual auto show dinner given by the firm last week, will again be shown next Saturday. Then, at the Weber salesroom, 19th and Locust st., the picture will be shown to Hupmobile owners. The film depicts the building of the Hupmobile, showing the various processes of manufacture and is of unusual interest.

Exceptional Opportunities

For Men of Business Ability with $5,000 to $50,000 Capital

Do you seek a business opportunity of proved large earning possibilities and an unusual degree of safety?

We have not merely one such opportunity, but many, and offer locations in practically any State.

We already have the second largest automobile distributing organization, but recent material enlargements of our productive capacity now make it feasible for us to open up desirable selling opportunities not hitherto available because all of our production was needed to meet the demands of our existing distributive organization.

Profit Possibilities

We are prepared to prove numerous cases wherein Chevrolet dealers with moderate capital and average business ability have materially increased their capital in a single year, through earnings.

Our records also prove that 98.26 per cent of our dealers are successful—a much higher percentage than the average in the automobile business and in general business.

Strong Backing and Guidance Assured

We succeed only as our dealers succeed. We enable our dealers to do business and make money on a scale impossible were they dependent only on their own ability and capital.

We give greater advertising support than any other automobile company.

We show men without previous automobile experience how to do business successfully from the start. We provide complete organization plans and give active assistance in building and developing these organizations.

We show experienced automobile men—even those who have failed to make satisfactory profits with other lines—how to do business right and make exceptional profits.

We assist in securing the necessary credit facilities and complete simplified accounting methods.

We assist in organizing modern service facilities on a profitable basis.

We have ample capital, five manufacturing and seven assembly plants and the world's largest capacity for high grade closed cars.

Permanently Established

We are a strongly established Division of General Motors Corporation, and desire many additional permanent high class dealer connections, to handle our increased production. We are the world's largest manufacturers of low-priced quality cars. Nearly a million and a half Chevrolets are now in use.

Our automobiles are all well within the less-than-$1000 price class, which constitutes 85 per cent of the market.

In this class, unusual profits accrue to dealers through handling large volume, selling the kind of cars that anybody can afford to buy, of a quality satisfactory to all classes of buyers.

If you have business ability, integrity, ambition and capital, we want to hear from you.

Investigation will cost you nothing and put you under no obligation.

A letter or wire from you will receive prompt and courteous attention.

Please state age, business experience, references, capital and several preferences as to locations.

AUTO SHOW BRINGS A NEW BUYING ERA

H. C. S. Distributor Calls Attention to Changed Tendencies in Purchasing of Cars.

"The automobile show which closed last night has revealed some interesting lights on the buying situation for 1924," says A. E. Archer, president, MacCarthy-Archer Automobile Co. "The thousands of visitors who attended the show during the past week displayed an entirely different interest than was in evidence in previous years.

"Heretofore the general topic of discussion among buyers was 'How much will you allow me for my old car?' This year buyers unquestionably are seeking better automobiles, and never before has so much actual interest been shown in the mechanical construction of cars or in the quality of material used.

"This point was particularly noticeable at our booth because for years we have preached quality automobiles to our buyers.

"We have sold H. C. S. cars in St. Louis for four years. Harry C. Stutz, the veteran designer and builder of these cars, is the man from whose initials the car took its name. Stutz believes that there are many people who are accustomed to buy fine things. Prompted by this belief he has built into the H. C. S. car every detail which he has learned from long experience to be valuable.

"In our closed bodies cast aluminum is employed largely in the construction of doors and window frames, avoiding the usual joints and corners. In the trimming of closed cars only the very finest of wool fabrics and silk mohairs are used, because we appreciate the fact that the interior of the car is subject to just as hard use as the outside and besides must be pleasing and harmonious to the occupant.

"In painting our cars this year we have featured the King Tut colors, because we discovered that the Egyptians 3000 years ago used four basic colors from which many soft, warm, pleasing shades were blended.

"The ever increasing traffic congestion on our streets and highways today, the increasing dangers of accidents emphasize more than ever that the year 1924 will mark a new era in the buying of cars. It is a very definitely established fact that economy in automobile buying today will center in the product that affords the buyer confidence in operation, which is the chief factor in satisfactory car ownership and maintenance."

Maxwell production for 1923 showed an increase in every month over the corresponding month of 1922.

PROSPERITY SHOWN BY AUTO BAROMETER

Automobile Manufacturer Says Dissatisfaction With Conditions Is a Healthy Condition for Country.

Harry M. Jewett, President Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., in a dealer's letter just received by James E. Newell, president of Newell Motor Car Co., Paige and Jewett distributors, says:

"With prosperity on every side of us we find the American public vainly seeking subjects over which verbal strife may be created.

"Everyone has started the present year better off in worldly goods than at any time in their past. The satisfied American citizen doesn't exist. Now we find ourselves in the midst of violent arguments on the taxes, farmer problems, presidential possibilities, European debts and the Volstead Act.

"This is a healthy condition for our country. It shows that its citizens are possessed with an everlasting ambition.

"It would be timely for someone to start talking about how really prosperous we are. Being in the automobile business, while the industry is generally taken as the business barometer by the present generation, I always think of national prosperity in terms of automobile sales.

"The last year, as we have all heard many times, was the biggest we have ever had in the industry. It is true that the list of automobile manufacturers shrunk approximately 20 per cent, but these were builders of a fraction of the production of any one of the larger companies.

"The business during 1923 began to show that it is settling into a "survival of the fittest" condition. The "fittest" in this case being those companies that are giving the biggest value for the money. The best selling motor cars during the present year will be the same big buy for the money. The American public is motor-wise and shops where it can get the most for its motor dollar.

"We attribute the success of the Jewett during the past year to the automobile education of the public. We tried to make it the best value for the money. The result was an increase of exactly 113 per cent in sales in 1923 over 1922.

"This is the policy of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. We expect that its continuance during the present year will make it possible for us to show a proportionate increase in the sales of our products in the present year over 1923. Our plant capacity has been tripled. A new Jewett plant has just been started in operation following a year spent in its construction. We believe it is the most modern automobile factory of its kind in the world.

"Our Paige and Jewett capacity is now about 650 daily. Adding to our production was caused by our belief in the continuance of American prosperity during the year and a better showing of world business conditions. Prosperous as we are, there is more money in circulation.

"There was enough more last year to make possible the sale of nearly a million more motor cars than in 1922. Continuing the subject of prosperity in 1924, more people will accumulate the necessary funds with which to buy that necessity to their existence—the automobile.

"Women learning to drive cars creates another great market. Two cars are necessary to the household of the man of means when woman becomes an expert driver. That they are gradually coming into their own in the motor car field is evidenced by the increase in purchase of automobiles by women in their own names.

"Our distribution department reports that 4 per cent of the Paiges and Jewetts sold in the United States last year were purchased by women. Compare this with the fraction of one per cent of the production of our company which women bought in 1922.

"Turning further we find that the man with an income of less than $200 monthly has found the need of a motor car. He is purchasing this household necessity by combining with the other, one, two or three members of his family. They own it on a share basis. Their standard of living improves.

"Business firms have long since realized that a representative in a motor car is worth many on foot. Sales to this class of buyer have steadily increased with the nationwide prosperity.

"With the increase in motor car ownership comes an increase in replacements. Once an automobile owner, always one.

"Who said the point of saturation has been reached? The recognized builders of real motor car values will continue turning out automobiles to supply the demand for years to come."

SOUTH BROADWAY BUYS TWELVE CARS AT SHOW

The South Broadway Merchants and Manufacturers' Association was one of the big purchasers of automobiles at the Auto Show. Twelve cars were purchased through Frank Schanzle, the president of the association.

These included three Chevrolets secured from the Big Four Auto Co., three Oldsmobiles purchased from P. H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co.; two Fords, which were bought from the Ollie Haupt Motor Co.; two Gardners, which were ordered through the Biederman Motor Sales Co., and two Stars, which Burgdorf Motor Car Co. are to deliver.

Why
The Good Word on BALLOON TIRES IS GOODYEAR

Goodyear makes both kinds of Balloon Tires—

1. For use on new small diameter wheels
2. For use on the wheels now on your car

If you are buying a new car—or if you are equipping your present car with small diameter wheels in order to provide sufficient fender clearance—you can get Goodyear Balloon Tires in the 20- and 21-inch rim sizes.

In most cases, the wheels now on your car provide sufficient fender clearance to permit of using Balloon Tires, and in such cases you can get Goodyear Balloon Tires that fit your present wheels.

If you can use these interchangeable types of Goodyear Balloon Tires, Goodyear saves you the expense of wheel and rim changes.

Remember, both kinds of Goodyear Balloon Tires are of genuine Goodyear quality. The name "Goodyear" on them guarantees that they are of correct design and proper construction to yield maximum economy.

Complete information on Goodyear Balloon Tires is now available in convenient form; simply mail the coupon and an authoritative booklet will be sent you free.

BOOK OF STANDARD RADIO CIRCUITS RECENTLY ISSUED

Contains Complete Descriptions of Every Type of Receiving Circuit Used at Present Time.

The Norman W. Henley Publishing Co. have recently issued what is probably the most complete book of radio cricuits ever published. It contains 222 radio diagrams, including all the latest and standard circuits, such as Colpitts, Cockaday, Grimes, Reinartz, Hazeltine, Armstrong, De Forest and Flewelling. It gives the complete electrical design of the circuits, showing the values of inductances, capacities and resistances with the name of each element on the diagram of the circuit. It contains complete descriptions of every type of circuit used in radio, from the simplest crystal receiver to the most complex super-heterodyne, and from the most complex spark transmitter to the latest broadcasting station.

The 10 chapters of the book are headed as follows: 1. The Meaning of Wave Length and Frequency. 2. Tuning. 3. Antennas. 4. Fundamental Coupling Schemes. 5. Coils and Condensers. 6. Simple Crystal Detector Circuits. 7. Simple Detector Circuits Using Vacuum Tubes. 8. Amplifier Circuits. 9. Miscellaneous Circuits. 10. Transmitting Circuits.

In addition, it contains a list of symbols and a glossary of all technical terms used in the book; also a revised and up-to-date list of the important broadcasting stations in the United States and Canada, together with their operating wave lengths and frequencies.

the key to Radio is amplification without distortion

AMPLIFICATION is the key to radio. It is used at both transmitting and receiving stations. Without amplification we could hardly have radio broadcasting.

But just to amplify is not enough. When your set reproduces a singer's voice as if it were a series of cat calls, you have amplification all right, but you also have distortion.

For Amplification without distortion use Acme transformers—the Acme R-2, 3 and 4 Radio Frequency Transformers for distance and the Acme A-2 Audio Frequency Transformer for amplification without distortion. Ask your radio dealer to show them to you.

Send 10 cents for book, "Amplification without Distortion" to Acme Apparatus Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Importance of the Grid-Leak and the Function It Performs Device Usually Given Little Consideration But It Plays an Important Part in the Operation of Most Receivers.

By Stuart C. Mahanay,
Radio Staff, Post-Dispatch.

MANY enthusiastic radio fans fail to appreciate the highly important part played by the grid leak in the efficient operation of their detector tubes.

That the manufacturers have realized its importance is indicated by the ever-increasing number of leak resistances, both fixed and variable, which have lately flooded the market. Probably the greater number are of the variable type, because the manufacturers are beginning to realize the difficulty of obtaining exactly the proper resistance for a given condition. Hence, one whose resistance might be altered would make the strongest appeal. And of the multitlde which have made their appearance, it is very seldom that a satisfactory one is obtainable.

Let us consider for a moment the theoretical action of a resistance across the grid condenser, or between the grid and filament of a vacuum tube.

It is well known that the current which is applied to the grid is of an alternating character, that is, it reverses from negative to positive a great many times every second and the result is that alternating charges—negative and positive—are applied to the grid.

But the vacuum tube, otherwise known as the "valve," only allows a flow of current through the tube when the grid and plate are positive with respect to the filament. This means that the negative charges of electrons accumulate on the grid and assume such magnitude that if not provided a way of "escape" they will hinder the functioning of the tube to such an extent that its sensitivity will be reduced, often spoiling the quality of the signals. Sometimes this will even stop the operation of the tube for a moment until the excessive negative charges are allowed to pass off. The grid-leak then, forms this leakage path, and one can readily understand its importance. Every vacuum tube has a slightly different characteristic, which explains why one resistance will not serve for any and all tubes. Some tubes may not require a grid-leak, but this can only be determined by experiment. The reason for this may be due to leakage elsewhere, either in the grid condenser, which is very likely to be the case, or in the socket, due to a poor quality of material of which it is constructed, or in the tube, itself.

Two methods of connecting a grid-leak in the circuit. Both are equally effective.

In the case of "soft" or gaseous tubes, a grid-leak is not always necessary because the gas itself acts as a passageway for the excessive negative charges. But the leakage of current off the grid should be properly timed by varying either the "B" battery voltage or the resistance of a grid-leak.

Since the amount of gas content varies with each individual tube, a different resistance is necessary for each one. When an excessive amount of plate battery voltage is applied to the plate of the tube, the gas becomes ionized and breaks up. This increases the resistance path through the tube and to counteract this change the grid resistance has to be decreased. It may be readily seen, therefore, that the more efficient method would be to employ a variable leak resistance, even with "soft" tubes.

The location of the grid-leak has caused much wonderment on the part of beginners. As fig. 1 shows, there are two places, it may be connected, either of which is as good as the other. The more widespread use of the first method (across the grid-condenser) is due to the fact that both the resistance leak and condenser can be assembled to comprise one unit and wired in the circuit with a minimum of trouble.

This, however, is not possible where one or more stages of radio frequency precedes the detector as a certain amount of the plate battery potential would be applied to the grid of the detector tube and the method illustrated in fig. 2 must be employed.

There are two kinds of grid-leaks, fixed an variable. Opinions differ as to the value of variable grid leaks as well as to the comparatve merits of various makes, types and varieties.

One way, and probably the easiest method of constructing one of the fixed type is to draw a pencil line across the grid condenser from one terminal to the other. The use of an eraser make this type variable, but it comes under the "fixed" classification. This form of leak, while fairly stable in a receiver used indoors is not suited for use in a portable set which is to be used outdoors. Pencil mark leaks absorb moisture to a high degree, changing their value from hour to hour with consequent upsetting of proper and constant operation of the tube.

Regardless of type grid leaks should be so constructed as to be impervious to atmospheric variations. For this reason, the fixed type which has the resistance element sealed within a glass tube is far superior to any other kind. Tubular fixed leaks find many friends, as the leak, after the proper resistance has been determined, remains unchanged until another detector tube is placed in the set.

The principal requirement of a good fixed grid-leak is that it have a constant resistance of the correct value. The requirements for an efficient variable leak are somewhat more exacting. In the case of a variable leak, the resistance should not only remain constant after being adjusted, but the increase or decrease in variation should be gradual. And incidentally, this is very difficult to obtain in home-made grid-leaks.

Of the variable types, there are many, but probably the most common form is that of a uniform india ink line over which a moving lever makes contact. The ink being drawn on an insulating base. Another type is composed of an insulating hollow tube, filled with a semi-fluid solution of graphite which is compressed by a plunger; thus giving a variable range of resistance.

A recent type is composed of numerous asbestos fibers impregnated with a metallic compound which coats metal plates one of which is movable by a screw action, thereby giving a large resistance range.

Another type consists of very high resistance carbon or graphite discs or granules, the resistance of the instrument being varied by increasing or decreasing the resistance upon these discs.

A column of mrecury has been used as the resistance for a variable grad-leak. The resistance being varied by varying the amount of mercury.

In mounting the grid-leak unit fixed or variable, care must be exercised to see that it is not mounted on panels or sub-panels made of material which will absoro moisture, for in that case proper adjustment of the leak will never be possible. Never attach the grid-leak to a wooden baseboard by means of its terminals, for, though it may seem entirely dry upon the surface, the resistance of the wood for the distance between the two terminals is extremely small, compared to that of the leak, and this would greatly reduce the efficient operation. Wood, being a porous substance, is very easily affected by humidity, and no visible notice is given of the fact.

An improperly adjusted grid-leak will cause crackling ticks in the head phones, similar to the sounds made by a run-down "B" battery. A loud humming noise is another indication of trouble in the grid circuit, although this noise may be also be caused by alternating currents in the house-lighting system. Sometimes the trouble is caused by the "grid-return" being connected to the wrong side of the "A" battery. That is, this lead is connected to the "plus" filament of the tube when it should go to the "negative" filament; or it may be that the opposite connection is the correct one.

A cheap grid-leak is poor economy and it is usually better to use a reliable tested fixed leak, even though it may not be exactly the right resistance, than to try to get results with an inefficient variable one which may change its resistance from minute to minute—often the cause of much noise and dissatisfaction with the receiver.

Adivce About the Lead-In.

Even though the lead-in wire is insulated, never let it touch against any metal. This means the cornice around the edge of the roof, the metal window screens or weather strip. Even if it is insulated there will be leakage and trouble will surely result. It usually manifests itself by constant whistling and inability to clear up a station altogether.

WEEKLY RADIO GUIDE A SATURDAY FEATURE

THE Post-Dispatch Radio Guide, a special section of interest to all radio users, is now a feature of each Saturday issue of this newspaper. It was inaugurated on Feb. 16 and at once drew expressions of appreciation and commendation. This is an eight-page section of handy magazine size. It has as one of its distinguishing features a complete listing of the programs of all principal broadcasting stations for the ensuing week. These are so arranged that it is the work of an instant to find out what will be broadcast by any station at any evening hour. Each guide has articles of general interest to radio users and a special illustrated feature giving details of various hook-ups with picture-diagrams which will enable a beginner to assemble sets of various types correctly. These picture diagrams show the exact location of each piece of apparatus and are much more easy to understand than the usual circuit diagrams in which symbols instead of pictures are used.

ENGLISH INDUSTRY BELIEVED TO BE STIMULATED BY RADIO

New Sub-Head in London Directory for "Wireless Supplies Dealers."

It has been estimated that more than 12,260 miles of aerial wire have been erected in Great Britain during the past 12 months, so much has the radio craze seized the public. Officials of the British Broadcasting Co. believe that approximately 2,000,000 people are entertained daily at a cost of a farthing each.

The company claims that wireless has stimulated industry considerably. It has necessitated the opening up of a new sub-head in the London Directory for "Wireless Supplies Dealers." One hundred thousand pounds sterling has been paid to the entertainment industry in salaries, fees and copyright royalties, and a large number of engineers and studio staffs are given employment at the various broadcasting stations.

Hints for Selection of Parts.

When buying contact points, get those with high heads and two nuts, and see that the nuts screw all the way up to the heads. Contact points with only one nut are likely to cause a lot of annoyance by working loose under the action of the switch lever, but where two nuts are used, one nut to hold the contact point firm and the other nut to lock that one, there will never be any trouble. When buying binding posts, see that the head screws all the way, and also see that the screw of the binding post is not so long that when the head is screwed down all the way, after allowing for panel or baseboard thickness, there is too much space, otherwise the post will not grip the wire tightly. When buying dials, see that the set screw thread in the knob is not stripped, that is, worn away. When buying dry cells or "B" batteries, see that the binding posts are not in that condition where a little handling will cause them to break off, and see that the heads screw easily and all the way on the screws.

Factors Affecting Operation.

Length, height, direction, insulation, material, number of wires and other factors in an aerial affect the operation of a set. All these factors also apply to the ground lead. One operator may be able to get wonderful distance with a set and another operator may not be able to reach more than 100 miles with the same set. A receiver in a frame dwelling in the suburbs will operate differently than the same set in a steel building in a congested city area.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MARKET

A unique loud speaker has been placed on the market by the U. S. Doll Co. The horn of this instrument is moulded of wood pulp. The purity and softness of tone characteristic of wooden amplifiers is preserved and the [illegible] features common to wooden horns are eliminated. Moulded similarly to the faces and arms of non-breakable dolls, these horns are capable of taking a very high and delicate polish. They are finished in mahogany, green, golden oak, hazel and various stipples. The tremendous pressure maintained during the baking process is accountable for the smoothness of finish, and, to a large extent, is responsible for the remarkable resonance and beauty of tone.

Single layer "broadcast coils" four inches in diameter are a product of the Chas. A. Branton Manufacturing Co. They are intended for use in three circuit receivers and require the same mounting arrangement as honeycomb coils. They are exceedingly high in [illegible] but this type of tuning inductance has been found very selective and remarkably efficient.

Another series of vacuum tubes new to the radio public have arrived in this city. They are made by the Connewey Electric Laboratories, an Eastern concern. The ¾ volt type is known as the Magnatron DC-199; filament consumption .06 amperes; plate voltage 40-90. Other models are Magnatron DC-201A and Meletron DC-12A. All three models are provided with standard bayonet prong bases.

The Pacent "Everytone" headset, manufactured by the Pacent Electric Co., has several novel features, not the least of which is the special design and arrangement of the magnetic circuit. Instead of two poles each with its separate windings, the "Everytone" has a single soft iron pole piece in the center of the case. As a result, the magnetic pole is concentrated at the center of the diaphragm. It is claimed that additional selectivity is secured through this feature. The new model is somewhat lighter than usual, weighing less than 10 ounces, and, because of its sturdy construction, interior terminals and safety spark gap, the headset is practically "fool proof."

The new Bremer-Tully air core transformers with bank-wound primaries are available at local dealers. It will give excellent results in all tuned radio frequency circuits where low capacity, high inductance and close coupling are required. It also makes an excellent wave trap and in many circuits replaces a coupler.

New Crosley model 51 sets have just made their appearance in this city. They are 2-tube sets consisting of detector and one stage of audio frequency amplification. The Armstrong regenerative circuit is employed, and, according to the manufacturers, this receiver will give loud speaker volume on local stations at all times and on distant stations under fair receiving conditions.

General Radio Type 247-W tapped inductance coils for use with General combination wavemeters and filters will be welcomed. Their use increases the direct reading range of General calibrated variable condensers. This coil in the circuit and multiplying the condenser scale readings by 2, enables any wave length range between 300 to 1000 meters to be read at a glance.

German headphones have found their way to the St. Louis market and are now on sale here. Across the water they are known as Nordfeldt & Kunkel telephones, but here they are advertised and marketed as the "N. & K." brand. The chief features of these phones are their comfort and sensitivity. The unusually large diaphragms which are said to be the result of scientific research to improve and find a size better suited to the reproduction of voice and musical tones heard in broadcast reception.

MATEURS DISPATCH NEWS IN EMERGENCY

ink Chicago With Rest of World When Land Wires Fail.

When all press and commercial telegraph wires connecting Chicago with the rest of the world, except those leading to the north through Canada, were put out of commission by the most terrific sleet storm of the winter, representatives of two press associations depended upon radio and the American Radio Relay League to get press dispatches through the world's largest relay point.

One of the several important stories handled was a bulletin on the mine disaster at Crosby, Minn., giving a list of the dead, which the newspaper correspondent addressed to an office in New York. D. H. Hiebert, operator of amateur station 9BQQ at Minneapolis, who handled this message, back by his set with only three hours sleep in as many nights transmitting both news and private messages.

While the regular commercial telegraph operators were trying frantically to get their Eastern news through Canada to Winnipeg and St. Paul and the western dispatches by way of Seattle and St. Paul, C. Wallace, operator of amateur station 9ZT at Minneapolis, acted as a radio "Paul Revere" calling amateur "minute men" to the breach.

By the time that the storm was in full swing scores of amateurs in the vicinity of Chicago and Minneapolis were accepting and relaying hundreds of messages of all descriptions. Although their territory was not immediately affected to the same extent by the driving storm, radio men in other districts, carrying storm reports and "urgent" also swung their own stations into use for relaying traffic to distant points until telegraph wire connections were again established.

EARLY FIXED DETECTOR

Needle Driven Into Lump of Coal Stayed "Fixed Under Gunfire.

The following story is told of a radio operator who, before the days of "tube" receivers, seems to have had his share of trouble with crystal detectors.

On board the U. S. S. Georgia, during some gun-fire tests, the operators experienced great difficulty in copying code, even from the ships in the immediate vicinity. Every time the ship fired a salvo, the crystal detectors had to be readjusted. Consequently parts of the messages were never received. Another war-time difficulty was the top-side radio shack exposed to enemy fire. This, the radio officer moved below on the gun-deck as an experiment, the lead-in wires being run below through a conduit from the aerial between the masts. Even though less exposed to the roar of guns, reception was difficult, and the cat-whisker continued to be shaken off the crystal.

Something had to be done: The operator secured a lump of hard coal and a heavy needle. Driving the needle into the lump of coal, he provided a fixed crystal detector, perhaps the first known detector of this type. It functioned poorly, though it stayed "fixed." Messages from the flagship, which was yards away and sending at full power, came in faintly, were copied, and no more reports were missed.

New Radio Bill Provides for Establishment of Fees

Revised White Bill Would Not Otherwise Alter Existing Regulations.

The question of whether or not commercial and amateur radio operators shall continue to be licensed by the Government, is very likely to come up in connection with Congressman White's bill to regulate radio communication. Like the former bill, which did not pass last year, the new bill, it is understood, will require that existing regulations for the licensing of all operators be continued and in addition that fees be established, whereas no fees are charged today. Since the question affects over 18,000 amateurs, about 6000 commercial operators, and a large percentage of the public, an outline of the situation, with some of the pros and cons follows:

Certain Governmental officials, acting for what they believe the best interests of the Government and public, seek to abolish the present requirements for both commercial and amateur licenses, which they claim are unnecessary, making added work for the Department of Commerce and its inspectors. Transmitting station licenses for commercial, ship and shore stations and amateur stations, they believe, are necessary and adequate, as far as the Government need concern itself. The ship operators, commercial station owners, and amateurs possessed of transmitting stations, they claim, would see to it that regulations were observed and proper operations maintained. Locomotive engineers do not have operating licenses, even though handling trains filled with people, they point out, explaining that the railway companies are responsible in case of accidents, and sufficiently interested in efficiency to keep only skilled and experienced men at the throttles. It is also shown that the Navy and Signal Corps operators are not subject to regulations and requirements for commercial or amateur operators, the two Government departments being responsible. In this connection, it will be recalled, that these two services protested violently a year ago when the proposed radio bill threatened to require that their operators be subjected to the regular commercial examinations and they won out; naval and army radio operators are not required to take the Commerce Department's standard examinations, except when they enter commercial service. Many examples are given by those who advocate the abolition of the operators' examinations, of lack of Government control where the safety of the public may be at stake, some even citing that the Steamboat Inspection Service is unnecessary.

On the other hand, other Government officials insist on the necessity of standardized commercial and amateur examinations and licenses in the interest of efficiency, safety of life at sea and the minimization of radio interference. One of their chief defenses is that it is in accordance with the international agreement, especially on ship stations.

"Article X."

Article X of the International Radiotelegraph Convention, London, 1912, they explain, provides:

"That service of the station on shipboard shall be carried on by a telegraph operator holding a certificate issued by the Government to which the vessel is subject, or, in case of necessity and for one voyage only, by some adhering Government." The regulations go further, prescribing two classes of certificates and specifying the requirements of operators. Our own national law that requires each ship carrying 50 or more passengers must be radio-equipped and supplied with two or more skilled operators.

If the question comes up in the forthcoming public hearings, officials of the radio section of the Department of Commerce will probably testify that it would be practicatlly impossible to control radio stations without controlling the operators who transmit. Station licenses do not require any technical ability or knowledge on the part on the owner. Unskilled operators, if used, would increase interference and break rules as to operation before the department inspectors could detect and inspect the station offending. The field force of 53 inspectors and supervisors is busy all day now, it is said. Aboard ships the risk of permitting unlicensed operators to handle sets and transmit is more than the present officials care to assume responsibility for. There is constant need for ship stations to be in operating condition in the interests of safety at sea. If a set was burnt up by an incompetent operator or he could not send an "SOS" properly, resulting in the loss of a ship, it would be too late to close the station, it is pointed out. Who would be responsible? Advocates of eliminating licenses say the owners, just as on railroads.

Shippers and commercial operators do not object to the licensing system used in the past 12 years, and the department records do not show the failure of a single operator licensed in that time. American ships could not clear from foreign ports unless their operators were licensed, it is explained. During the past year, American inspectors cleared 11,305 American and foreign ships from our ports, each of which carried two licensed operators. Defenders of the bill's provisions say that the four radio operating companies serving shipowners, who their opponents say would be responsible, do not control all ships, there being hundreds of independently equipped ships.

On the status of the amateur, the Department of Commerce records show that most of the trouble today is with the unlicensed amateurs, through breaches of the law and radio interference. Licensed amateurs behave very well, and most of them are proud of their certificates, it is claimed.

One value in licensing both commercial and amateur operators is theestablishments of lists of efficient operators from which the military arms of the Government can draw its men, as was done during the past war. These lists change, as the licenses are for two years duration, and only 50 per cent of the licensed operators renew their licenses. During the past two years, 5966 commercial operators were licensed. Out of 3131 applicants in 1923, only 1877 qualified, showing that 1254 who thought they were efficient, found they were not. This tends to show the necessity of Government licensing. Amateurs to the total of 18,828, were licensed in 1922-23, of which 16,846 were new men.

Instead of eliminating examinations and licenses, the department is understood to favor making qualifications harder in order to establish a high class of operators both for commercial and amateur work.

Congressmen White has not yet expresed a willingness to change his bill or eliminate operators' licenses, but it is known that both sides of the question have been called to his attention.

Faulty Tube Sockets.

Radio tube sockets are often the cause of a new receiver not working. Look them over and see that all the contacts are tight, clean and are bent up far enough to make contact with all four prongs of the tube. These prongs should be cleaned often.

RADIO "DEAF SPOTS" A BAFFLING PUZZLE

Some New York Fans Never Hear the High-Power Stations Nearest to Them.

One of the oddities of radio is that with a large number of high power transmitting stations in New York, Brooklyn and the surrounding territory there are hundreds, perhaps thousands of radio fans in New York City who cannot hear these stations. In some suburban districts they are heard clearly and in others not at all. A case in point is Station WEAF, which recently moved to a new location and greatly increased its power. A member of the radio staff of the New York Evening Journal writes:

Well, old WEAF is back on high power again with a vengeance.

Fans in certain sections of New York and Brooklyn, not to mention New Jersey, are up in the air because they cannot receive any other station, while in some sections of Long Island and Westchester, County WEAF is a thing of the past and only a dim memory.

Unfortunately, I happen to be situated in one of these localities, and at the present time I am able to bring in stations such as KYW and WHAS with just about four times the volume of WEAF. In fact, with an ordinary detector and two-step amplifier, it is absolutely impossible to bring in WEAF on anything but a pair of receivers, and this only faintly.

The first night that I heard this station since the change was made I thought that I had Los Angeles or some other equally distant station, and when the anncuncer stated that it was WEAF, I thought something had gone wrong with my set, but I was able to bring in WJZ with the usual ease and volume. Of course, it did not take me long to get the idea of what had happened and, needless to say, I went to bed that night rather sore. The next chance I had I checked it up with the neighbors and found that in every case the same thing had happened, WEAF was only a memory, and yet the fans in New York were being "burned up" by the new power.

Just why this situation should exist is mighty hard to explain, the favorite theory being that the tall buildings have a lot to do with it, but I am inclined to doubt this because there are no more tall buildings between my set and WEAF now than there were before. The new station is only a few blocks from the old one and yet there is such a vast difference in the strength of reception. Our suggestion for an ideal broadcasting station would be on Staten Island, where the land is high and the broadcasting would penetrate into every part of the city with equal intensity.

Making Shields.

When shielding a panel, remember that the tinfoil or copper glued to the inside of it must not touch the metal part of any piece of apparatus. Cut the holes in it considerably larger than those where the shafts and screws pass through, so that there is no danger of them touching. This shield is connected to the ground binding post only.

Keep Kinks Out of Cord.

Kinks in the telephone receiver cord should be straightened out every time they occur. A kink in the receiver wire will soon wear the cord fabric through and expose the wiring. Later this will short circuit or open circuit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer.

Q. I wish to attach an audio frequency transformer to my crystal set so that I can hear KSD's programs through a horn. Please list the parts necessary. J. A. M.

A. Rheostat, amplifying tube transformer, socket and "A" and "B" batteries. These instruments are obtainable in units, already wired, which greatly simplifies their addition to a detector circuit. A telephone jack connected before and after the amplifier will also facilitate quick changing from the detector to the amplifier. In this case, a telephone plug must be attached to the end of the headphones or loud speaker cord.

Q. During zero weather I could pick up distant stations, sometimes several hundred miles away, using a simple crystal set. Would a Steinite crystal permit such reception during ordinary weather conditions? R. G.

A. The crystal you mention has given satisfaction in many cases, but it is not certain that it would bring in distant stations with the average aerial and ground used in city homes.

Q. (1) Is it necessary to have a lightning arrester on my aerial if I have a common switch on my lead-in? (2) If I do not have an arrester, and my aerial is struck by lightning, would it be destroyed? S. P.

A. (1) If by "common" switch you mean the usual 600-volt 100-ampere single pole double throw switch, as specified by the underwriters, it will not be necessary to have an additional lightning arrester. If your switch is not of the size mentioned, it would be well to include an approved lightning arrester for safety. (2) The chances are that it would, and perhaps set fire to the building.

Q. Can I use a C301-A as an amplifier with a UV-200 as a detector? C. W. B.

A. Yes. However, if both rheostats are of 6 ohms capacity, it will be necessary to include a 25-ohm resistance unit in series with the rheostat which controls the "A" tube as this tube is more efficient and has a longer life when operated on less current than the UV-200 type.

(1) Could satisfactory results be had using UV201-A or C801-A tube on dry batteries? (2) Which would give the best results for amplifying—the UV801-A or UV-199? (3) Could a WD-11 and a UV201-A be used in the same circuit? E. M.

A. (1) Yes. Connect four 1½-volt batteries in series. (2) The 301-A would give greater volume in an audio frequency circuit. The difference in volume would hardly be so noticeable in radio frequency amplification. (3) No. The WD-11 is a 1½-volt tube while the 201-A is a 5-volt tube. They might be used with separate "A" batteries, the first as a detector and the second as an amplifier.

Q. About a year ago I purchased a receiver and two-stage amplifier, in which I have been using UV-200 and UV-201 tubes. Will it be necessary to change the rheostats in order to use UV201-A tubes? E. J. F.

A. We would suggest that if you use a storage battery to light the filaments of your tubes, that you continue to use a UV-200 tube as detector, and the "A" tubes as amplifiers. This will means that a 25-ohm resistance unit must be placed in the circuit between the detector and amplifier. Many experienced radio enthusiasts have a strong preference for the UV-200 tube for "detecting." It functions with only a 6-ohm rheostat, but the "A" tubes require 30 ohms.

Q. Will two aerials on one house have any effect on the operation of receivers connected thereto? G. H.

A. It is quite likely that they will, unless both receivers are of the crystal detector type.

Q. What can be done to eliminate trouble caused by the proximity of two antennae. My set is regenerative, and so is my neighbor's. We both interfere with each other when tuning our sets. C. E. B.

A. One solution would be for one concerned to add several stages of radio frequency amplification and use only a loop aerial, while the other solution would be to rearrange the aerials so that they would be as nearly as possible at right angles to each other.

Q. What would be the cost of constructing a two-stage audio frequency amplifier? C. H.

A. The cost of the parts only would be approximately $30.

Q. (1) How can I eliminate body-capacity? (2) How can I make a loading coil? (3) How can I make a wave-trap? L. H. K.

A. (1) By placing aluminum, copper or tinfoil sheeting directly behind and adacent to the panel. It should be grounded but prevented from making contact with any metal parts of the set, such as shafts or taps. (2) Wind 60 turns of wire on a 3½-inch tube, taking off taps at every sixth turn. (3) Complete data for winding and connecting a wave trap in different kinds of circuits appeared in the Post-Dispatch issue of Jan. 27.

"Getting Pacific coast stations strong with loud speaker on type F," writes E. S. White, Lowell, Mich. "Heard concerts from Havana, Cuba; Fort Worth, Texas; Atlanta, on a loud speaker." Austin Rhemer writes from Chicago. W. E. Culver, Savannah, Ga., says, "I get stations from all over the country loud and clearly." "Picked up 72 stations—ten in Canada, and get them back any time I want them," writes Jas. Berne, Aberdeen, So. Dak. Like this hundreds certify the genuine quality and perfect performance of Air-Way—a radio set built to represent the highest quality, and offered at nominal and fair price.

The favorite form of Bakelite
FROM coast to coast more Formica is sold for radio uses than other insulating material. It is used by practically all of the large independent radio manufacturers. Good dealers everywhere carry it.
Formica is so strong that a thinner panel is enough for a radio set. It will not soften, sag or warp because of heat. Its beautiful finish, far finer than any other you can find, is not affected by the weather or other conditions.
No cheaper material can compare with Formica in durability and permanent satisfaction.

Loud Speaker Noises.

The problem of rattling sounds from a loud speaker is one of the hardest to overcome, especially if a telephone receiver is used. The fact that the noise is produced by the vibrations of this diaphragm inside of the receiver is responsible because when the vibrations get too strong the diaphragm strike the magnets inside, thus giving an entirely different tone, and one which is usually not pleasing. On the other hand, running the set below its fullest capacity will frequently give an excellent tone from the speaker, simply because the telephone receiver is not being forced.

WORLD ARTISTS MAY GIVE RADIO PROGRAMS

Movement Started in New York to Defray Expenses of Engaging Musicians.

Clarence H. Mackay, Felix M. Warburg, Frederic A. Juilliard and A. D. Wilt Jr., four very wealthy New Yorkers, announce that they have constituted themselves a committee to be known as the Radio Music Fund Committee, with the object to raising a fund to the known as the Radio Music Fund for the purpose of broadcasting radio music concerts by the world's greatest artists.

The committee has selected station WEAF, the broadcasting station of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., 195 Broadway, New York City, to broadcast the proposed concerts. Concert Manager Arthur Judson, manager of the Philharmonic, Philadelphia and the Cincinnati orchestras, will handle the engagement of artists for these concerts.

The members of the committee, who are already well known for their activities in support of things musical, believe that the radio offers a wide and hitherto undeveloped field for stimulating the increasing public interest in good music. The committee hopes, through the Radio Music Fund, to afford to thousands of people, who, for one reason or another, are unable to be present at concerts and the opera, the opportunity of hearing by radio the world's best musical talent.

The potential value of radio broadcasting in bringing good music into millions of homes now beyond reach of opera house and concert hall, has long been recognized, but until the formation of the committee no means has existed for paying the large expense of engaging prominent artists of high caliber. The distinguished sponsorships under which the fund will be administered assures its use for recitals by talent of a grade which has not been available up to this time.

The technical advancement which has been made in the art of radio broadcasting has already been demonstrated by the successful transmission of concerts by the Philharmonic Society and the New York Symphony Orchestra.

RADIO CLUB MEETING FEB. 29

Engineer Will Talk on Characteristics of Vacuum Receiving Tubes.

The next meeting of the Radio Transmitters' Association will be held at the Marquette Hotel, at 8 p. m., Feb. 29.

The speaker for the evening will be Chief Engineer Miller of the Jewell Electrical Instrument Co., who will discuss "Characteristics of Vacuum Receiving Tubes." He will supplement his talk by platting curves of vacuum tubes on a large blackboard chart, on which are mounted meters of sufficient size to be plainly seen from any part of the assembly room. A number of receiving tubes will be tested and charted.

All interested in radio are invited to attend. Broadcast listeners are always welcome.

DISTRESS SIGNAL FOR LAND MAY BE ADOPTED

Need of Emergency Radio Service On Land Similar to "SOS," Pointed Out.

Most amateurs and many broadcast listeners are acquainted with the ominous "SOS" of the sea, and its significance—a vessel in distress, calling for aid. These letters, or another national call, may come to be the distress call on land if airships are carried away, railway trains become stalled and other means of communication are put out of service by storms.

When the Shenandoah was torn from her moorings, the navy cleared the air in an effort to locate and aid the airship. On Feb. 4, when some Western trains were stalled in the heavy snowstorm which carried down practically all the available wire circuits, a literal land "SOS" was sent out from the local train dispatcher.

Four broadcasting stations, and perhaps more, are known to have aided stalled railway trains that night. Listeners-in in Washington heard WPAH, at Waupaca, Wis., transmitting a message from the Chicago & Northwestern train dispatcher to the superintendent of the division in Chicago. The message told of the stalling of a train by snow near Green Bay, Wis., and WPAH tried to get the message to KYW in Chicago. This station was in the midst of a program and did not answer. WOAW in Omaha, however, heard WPAH, and advised that it was standing by for a message to be relayed to KYW. Eventually the message got through, and snow plows and aid sent the stalled train. Later in the evening, WLAG at Minneapolis also broadcast a message relative to a Burlington train in difficulties.

Such experiences as these point to the use of an emergency radio service on land, not unlike the "SOS" of the sea, which can come to the aid of the public when disaster befalls carriers or wire circuits give way. It may lead to definite regulations providing for silence when a land 'SOS" is broadcast, and prescribing the relaying of distress messages as in marine service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

OUT of the year-and-a-month-old story of the robbery of Mrs. Irene M. Schoellkopf, the silly, vain wife of a rich man, this week brings the tale of the vengeance of the fates of the underworld against those who violate the thieves' code. Up and down the middle Broadway streets, where the master crooks hunt cabarets and "clubs" as rich sportsmen hunt quail in southern "covers," and in the quiet suburban towns, where the master crooks bring up their families in mincing uprighteousness there is one paragraph of the thieves' creed at which only the daring pretend to sneer:

"Jewels taken from the body of a woman bring trouble."

The warmth of the live body or the chill of the dead body from which they are wrested, be it the body of a woman good or bad, alive or dead, carries with it the hatching of a contagion of bad luck which is likely to reach the innocent who were present at the robbery as it is certain to reach the brutes who planned and executed the crime.

Defiance of the law is one thing. The penalties of detection by police and distric attorneys and of conviction by juries and sentence by Judges and imprisonment in jail is a part of the same thing. District Attorney Banton, in an announcement to the newspapers recently told what the processes of the law had done to the cunning and desperate men who set a trap for the wife of Hug C. P. Schoellkopf, wealthy Buffalo manufacturer, and sprang it Jan. 1, 1923, before the first daylight of the New Year.

A peculiar interpretation of fate's work in the Schoellkopf case is now heard in the general gossip around certain Broadway cafes. In effect it is that the "woman's flesh" curse is at work in two more recent jewel robbery cases and that before many weeks have passed will stalk down the murderers of Dorothy King and Louise Lawson.

The home of the Schoellkopfs in Buffalo wealthy manufacturer of chemicals and is bringing them to the same inexorable retri bution.

The Hard Luck Nemesis.

Disquieting as it may be to the Distric Attorney of the County of New York, and to the Police Commissioner, and to his De tective Inspector, John Coughlin, and his able subordinates, Detective Sergeants Mar tin Owens and Thomas Horan, their shrewd ness, their persistence, their fearlessness and their resourcefulness are not taken into ac count by underworld gossip. A Nemesis of hard luck was on the trail of the despoilers of the foolish and rich Buffalo woman, and there is no thief at large in Manhattan or Brooklyn or Queens or the Hoboken hinter land of beer saloons who is too mean to say "They might 'a' known it." And just as certainly as the daylight follows dawn, the casual philosopher rendering the verdic from Tottenville to Yonkers and from Long Beach City to Passaic would add the illum inating comment, age-old in gutter philo

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

OUT of the year-and-a-month-old story of the robbery of Mrs. Irene M. Schoellkopf, the silly, vain wife of a rich man, this week brings the tale of the vengeance of the fates of the underworld against those who violate the thieves' code. Up and down the middle Broadway streets, where the master crooks hunt cabarets and "clubs" as rich sportsmen hunt quail in southern "covers," and in the quiet suburban towns, where the master crooks bring up their families in mincing uprighteousness there is one paragraph of the thieves' creed at which only the daring pretend to sneer:

"Jewels taken from the body of a woman bring trouble."

The warmth of the live body or the chill of the dead body from which they are wrested, be it the body of a woman good or bad, alive or dead, carries with it the hatching of a contagion of bad luck which is likely to reach the innocent who were present at the robbery as it is certain to reach the brutes who planned and executed the crime.

Defiance of the law is one thing. The penalties of detection by police and district attorneys and of conviction by juries and sentence by Judges and imprisonment in jails is a part of the same thing. District Attorney Banton, in an announcement to the newspapers recently told what the processes of the law had done to the cunning and desperate men who set a trap for the wife of Hugo C. P. Schoellkopf, wealthy Buffalo manufacturer, and sprang it Jan. 1, 1923, before the first daylight of the New Year.

A peculiar interpretation of fate's work in the Schoellkopf case is now heard in the general gossip around certain Broadway cafes. In effect it is that the "woman's flesh" curse is at work in two more recent jewel robbery cases and that before many weeks have passed will stalk down the murderers of Dorothy King and Louise Lawson, bringing them to the same inexorable retribution.

The Hard Luck Nemesis.

Disquieting as it may be to the District Attorney of the County of New York, and to the Police Commissioner, and to his Detective Inspector, John Coughlin, and his able subordinates, Detective Sergeants Martin Owens and Thomas Horan, their shrewdness, their persistence, their fearlessness and their resourcefulness are not taken into account by underworld gossip. A Nemesis of bad luck was on the trail of the despoilers of the foolish and rich Buffalo woman, and there is no thief at large in Manhattan or Brooklyn or Queens or the Hoboken hinterland of beer saloons who is too mean to say "they might 'a' known it." And just as certainly as the daylight follows dawn, the eternal philosopher rendering the verdict from Tottenville to Yonkers and from Long Beach City to Passaic would add the illuminating comment, age-old in gutter philosophy, "They oughter known money you make that way don't do you no good."

It was months ago when they began—the unhappily "wise guys," who know by whispers slipped out of the corners of tight lips, by sudden oblique glances and by shrugged shoulders—to check up against the microbes retribution which were avenging the breaking of the code by the despoilers of Mrs. Schoellkopf. The industry of the highbrow students of the occult, who, at about the same time, were blaming the death of the Earl of Carnarvon on his desecration of the tomb of Tutankhamen in the Valley of the Kings, was a mincing murmur of academic nonsense in comparison to the bitter prophecies and the squabbles and the upstairs speak easy, bottle-throwing battles in which men and women of booze and drug frayed nerves took sides as to the ultimate deserts of Biddulph, Moran, Hurwitz, Mahan, Hughes, the Curtis brothers and a score more who, never having been publicly indicted, may not be mentioned at this time.

The genesis of the accursed robbery is pretty well remembered by everybody who read the newspapers a year ago. Mrs. Schoellkopf, whose rich and elderly husband indulged her in having a good time to the limit of her own nonsense and his own wealth—having complete confidence in her real squareness to himself—had the services of Barry Carman, a dapper-handshaking little actor-dancing man in "showing her a good time" in New York. An essential part of the poor, rich woman's good time was to wear a quarter of a million dollars' worth of jewels such as no "Brazilian diamond" pinchback jewelry store would have dared display except behind a steel netted screen.

Was Sure to Be Marked for Robbery.

It was inevitable that sooner or later she would be spotted. In the cabarets where there are always sleek gentlemen criminals on the lookout for prospects, the 38-year-old matron, dancing nightly with her young paid companion was at once conspicuous and was sized up as a green sightseer from the country. Though, as a matter of fact, she was from Buffalo, it amounted to the same thing. She was not familiar enough with New York's night life perils to know that a woman who goes to strange places and mingles with strange people while gilded from head to foot with gems does so at the risk of her treasure or her life.

It happened that the first crooks to get on Mrs. Schoellkopf's track were Biddulph (known to last year's newspapers as "Mr. Marshall"), Moran and Hurwitz. They made what the upperworld (in contrast to the under world) calls a "survey" of her and contrived a stratagem for relieving her of those pearls and diamonds. Their first move was to hire an apartment directly beneath the one occupied by Carman and make friends with him. Then the rest was easy.

On New Year's eve when Carman gave a party for Mrs. Schoellkopf's delectation—one of those real wild New York parties which up-staters and Westerners like to whisper to their friends about and which are about one-half of one per cent as wicked as some of the parties in their own home towns which they are too cautious to whisper about—all the thieves had to do was to start a fight. This they did and when Mrs. Schoellkopf fled in breathless, brainless panic from the encounter, they simply steered her into the robber flat below, stripped her with great violence of about $300,000 worth of jewelry and turned her loose to yell for help while they made for Westchester county in an automobile.

They Feared Disaster From Start.

Moran and Hurwitz in their later confessions assert that Biddulph, the hard boiled strong arm man who was hired to pose as a "cake-eater"—mealy-mouthed, palpitating-pawed and glowing-eyed Adonis—was so rough in taking the jewels from Mrs. Schoellkopf's arms and hair and neck and shoulders that they, instinctively feeling that he was defying the fateful tradition to the point of flouting it, begged him to "go easy."

Now Mrs. Charlotte Palmer had been robbed, going home from a party some months earlier, of several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and Moran had been a suspect in that case, though he was not arrested. Mrs. Palmer gave up her jewelry, according to her own story, cold. The robbers did not snatch the gems from her body.

Then Mrs. Lillian Meyers, wife of "Smokey" Meyers, a race track magnate of shifting capital, was forced to tell where she kept $50,000 in cash and jewelry. She identified Charles Curtis as one of the men who robbed her, but said they had treated her like "perfect gentlemen."

Charles Curtis, like his brother, Marquis—pronounced "Markee"—was a friend of Moran. Marquis Curtis had meantime got in trouble with the law and had managed to be adjudged insane and sent to Matteawan. It was common report among criminals that Mrs. Meyers had been robbed to obtain funds to make possible the transfer of Marquis Curtis to an insane asylum rather than to prison.

Underworld gossip is even more definite in asserting that the Schoellkopf robbery was inspired by the necessity for getting money to finance the disastrous attempt of Marquis Curtis and three others to escape from Matteawan, which ended by their inglorious capture by a "hick posse" in Kent, Conn., after a few hours' freedom.

The friends of Moran and Hurwitz stanchly assert that it can be established that never, up to the time that they committed the "social error" of enlisting the services of the crassly impious Biddulph, who apparently knew little and cared less about the finer shades of the practice of their profession, had they been suspected, even, of manhandling a woman.

Three of the Seven Now Dead.

To be sure Inspector John D. Coughlin, in hunting the robbers of Mrs. Palmer, "took a chance" and raided the flat in which "Markee" Curtis and Moran were hiding and found nitroglycerine in Curtis' trunk and guns in Moran's pockets. But didn't Moran get out on bail, and didn't Curtis get away to Matteawan? Neither of them had slapped or scratched a woman or twisted her wrists or torn earrings from her pink, fat ears. Sure not.

There were seven persons at funny, smiling, balancing Barry Carman's self-contained New Year's "party" besides Mrs. Schoellkopf.

There were Mr. and Mrs. Taylor. Taylor is dead.

There were Mr. and Mrs. Mann. Mann is dead.

There were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Englehardt. Englehardt posed as a friend of Mrs. Schoellkopf, keeping an eye on her lest her desire for novel experiences get her into trouble. He is merely divorced.

There was a Mrs. Buchanan. She is dead.

Biddulph, who had the jewels after mauling Mrs. Schoellkopf, scratching her face, pulling out her hair and spraining her knees and elbows to get them, went to the Gedney Farms Hotel in White Plains with Moran and Hurwitz. They got the $300,000 worth of jewelry from him and told him to wait until they came back. None of them had any cash; they had nothing but the jewelry with its woman's flesh-warm curse.

Moran and Hurwitz came to New York and disposed of the whole lot of jewelry to John W. Mahan, a wandering jeweler of theatrical Broadway, Jan. 2. They say now—but they are not as positive as they were since they began to understand how fiercely the tide of fate has set against them—that Mahan promised them $40,000 and gave them $10,000 on account. Both of them say that. Mahan says he doesn't know how much Hurwitz got, but that Moran, with whom he "did business," got $39,000.

Moran and Hurwitz, from Kingston, N. Y., got in touch for one day with Biddulph at White Plains, and took him to New Brunswick, N. J., where Biddulph admits, they gave him $300 and sent him back to White Plains. Moran and Hurwitz, careless of what the movie writers call "continuity, assert they gave him $10,000 which "he lost on the horses or a frail."

Anyway, Biddulph took refuge with one Hughes, a brother-in-law of Moran, who sent him to hide in Albany. Biddulph was arrested in Albany and brought to New York.

MRS. IRENE SCHOELLKOPF,
Wife of the Buffalo millionaire who was robbed of jewels valued at $300,000 at a New Year's party a year ago in a New York apartment house. She is seen here wearing the pearl and diamond lavalier and two of the diamond bracelets which were stolen and which have been recovered.

Another view of Mrs. Schoellkopf and some of her troublesome gems. Here she appears in the $120,000 pearl necklace which was part of the robbers' loot. The thieves believe it was their act in tearing these jewels from her body that brought the "woman's flesh curse" upon them.

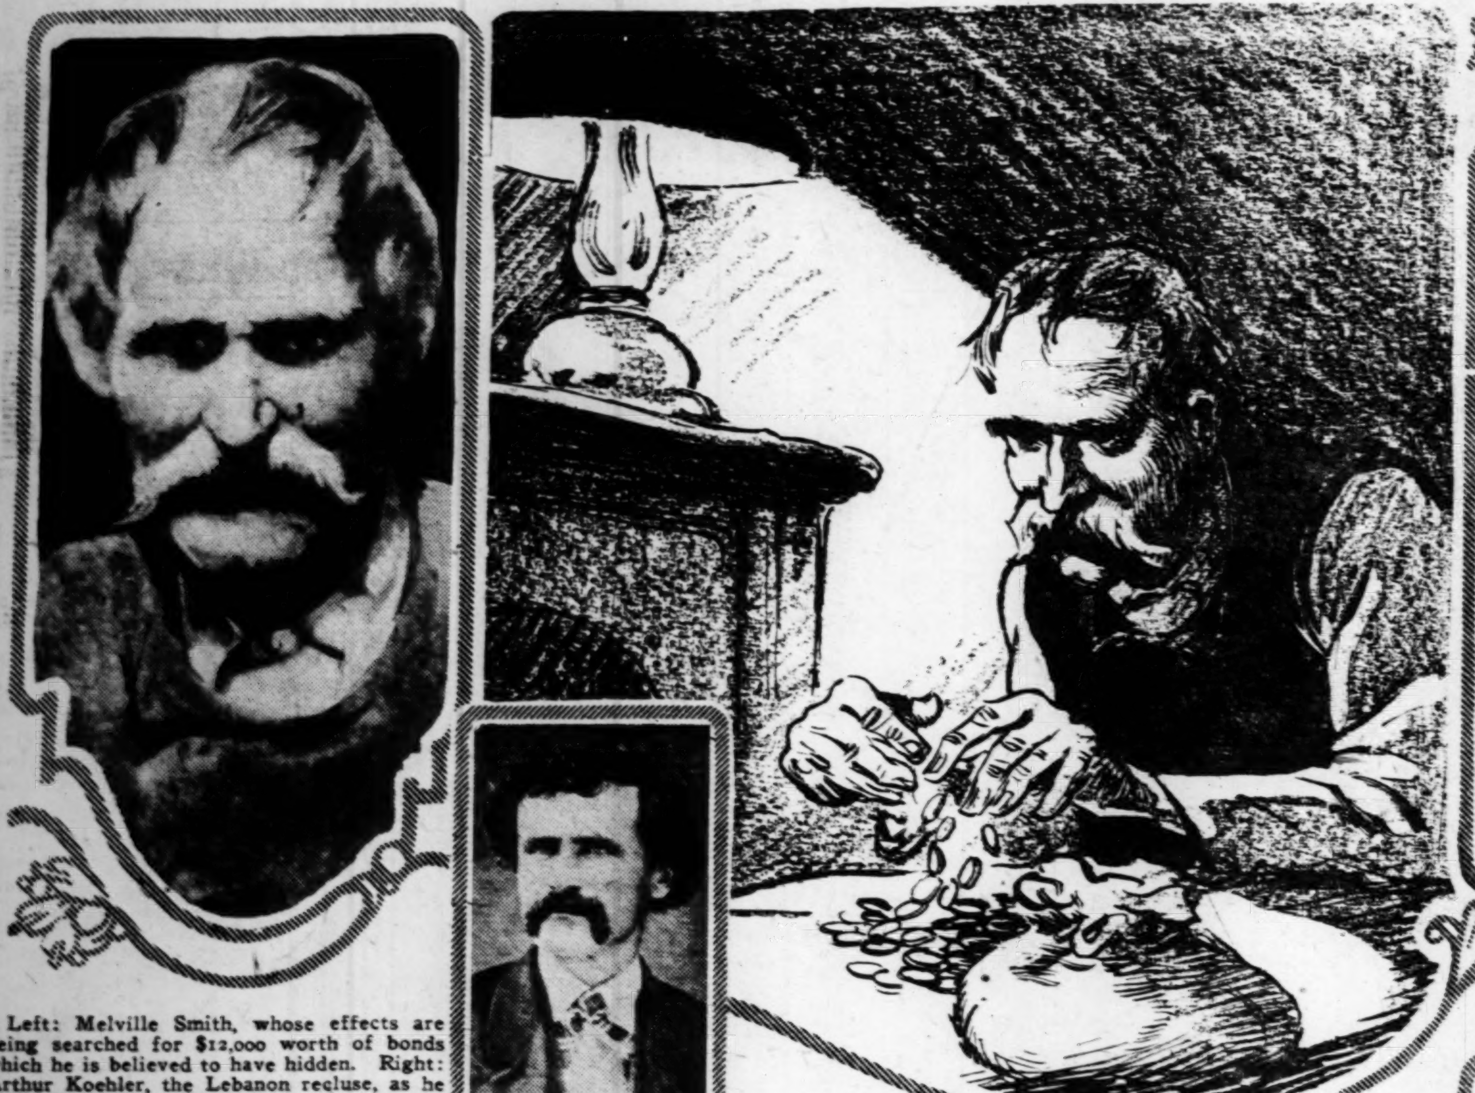
STRANGE TALE OF TWO MISERS WHO DIED IN POVERTY WITH HOARDED THOUSANDS AT HAN

NEITHER HAD DEPENDENTS AND BOTH COLLECTED GOLD JUST TO SATISFY THEIR GREED FOR IT



Left: Melville Smith, whose effects are being searched for $12,000 worth of bonds which he is believed to have hidden. Right: Arthur Koehler, the Lebanon recluse, as he appeared 50 years ago in his wedding suit, which he cherished to the day of his death and guarded carefully from the moths.

The eight nephews and nieces of Melville Smith who were sadly neglected by him and allowed to live almost in want, although he had wealth at his command.

Arthur Koehler, Who Lived for Nearly Half a Century in Kitchen of His Shuttered Home in Lebanon, Ill., Subsisitng on Bread and Molasses and Sleeping on Rags, Found to Have Accumulated $16,566 Which He Hid in Lard Cans in His Cupboard — Melville Smith of La Plata, Mo., Spent His Last Days in a Squalid Chicken House, Eating Only Bologna Sausage and Crackers Because of Delusion That Relatives Were Trying to Poison Him for His $25,000 Estate.

THEY were misers, Arthur Koehler of Lebanon, Ill., and Melville Smith of La Plata, Mo. For the love of gold, which they possessed in abundance, they denied themselves every human comfort. Koehler subsisted upon bread and molasses and died alone in the kitchen in which he had lived alone for nearly half a century. Smith lived upon bologna sausage and crackers and his last days were spent alone in a chicken house.

Hoarding to no purpose except to gratify the lust of greed and gain, each left hidden wealth. Smith buried some of his and the greater part has not been found. Koehler kept his in tin lard cans on the shelf of his kitchen cupboard.

Even when Arthur Koehler was growing up on the old Koehler farm, two miles north of Scott Field, they said he was "close," and he was so reserved that it was not until he was 32 that romance came into his life. Strangely, then, he became enamored of a girl who was in all her ways so antithetical that his father foresaw disaster and bitterly opposed their marriage.

Amelia Arth of Lebanon was pretty and gay and extravagant, according to the Koehler standard. She knew Arthur Koehler was "close," but she thought she could cajole him. Arthur Koehler thought he could curb her love of pleasure and her spendthrift ways.

So they were married and lived a while on the farm and then moved to Lebanon, into a story-and-a-half brick cottage on a quarter-block near the business section.

Even Went to Dances Sometimes

For a while the pleasure-loving Amelia had her way with her taciturn man, with his brooding eyes and curly hair and drooping mustache. She wheedled him into dressing up on occasions in his broadcloth wedding suit and dragged him off to dances at Rahner's Hall where, scorning such frivolity himself, he watched with scant approval his wife flitting about and enjoying herself in the only way that she knew.

But it took more than his wife's blandishments to break Arthur Koehler of his miserly inclinations, and as the days passed he became less indulgent and the woman's lot became increasingly unbearable.

Koehler's father died and left him $5000 or $6000 and a half interest in the farm. He sold some land he had acquired north of Trenton and to these major sums he added the accumulations of his frugality. He had bought the brick house and quarter-block and by intensive cultivation he made the town land profitable. They might have lived as well as their neighbors, but of such profligacy Koehleh was incapable.

So his wife left him and obtained a divorce and $5000 alimony, and to the day of his death he cherished in bitterness the faded receipts that she gave in September and November, 1885, for the two payments of $2500 each.

He became then thorough miser and misanthrope, living alone in the kitchen of his home, cultivating his quarter-block and selling produce to the neighbors, denying himself everything except the barest necessities, increasing not only his store of gold but accumulating useless flotsam which served no purpose other than to satisfy his mania for hoarding.

In the earlier years he kept his money in a bank, but rumors arose that the bank was not safe and he quickly withdrew the $15,000 that he had on deposit. Shortly afterward the bank failed and Koehler, shuddering at the narrow escape he had had, never again took a chance. Two tin lard cans, in his kitchen cupboard, became his bank vaults.

It was in those earlier years, when the bank had his money and it was not necessary to keep his eye on the kitchen, that he indulged a social impulse to the extent of loafing part of the time at Midgley's meat shop. It was the flippant talk of the time that he lived on the smell of the meat, but that was not quite true. Once in a while he bought a soup bone, to impart for days a flavor to the bread and molasses which constituted his regular fare.

Came Near Losing a Penny Once

It may be that in earlier times he sometimes allowed himself the luxury of variation, but in late years his purchases at Landwehr's store were confined to the two staples. It nearly killed him when the price of bread advanced from 5 cents to 8 cents a loaf. And once, tragically, he came near losing a penny through not knowing that two 8-cent loaves could be bought for 15 cents. He had bought a loaf one Saturday for 8 cents, grumbling at the extortion. Then he learned somehow that he might have had it for 7 1-2 cents if he had known.

He brooded over it until came another day when the school children did not pass and he knew it was again Saturday, his shopping day. So he went to the store and bought another loaf and laid down 7 cents and reminded the store man of the 8 cents he had paid the week before. Was not the price two for 15 cents? Well, that was 7 1-2 cents a loaf. So he had overpaid half a cent and the 7 cents would make it straight. And, seeing that Koehler was one of his regular customers, the store man said all right and Koehler was again on even terms with the world.

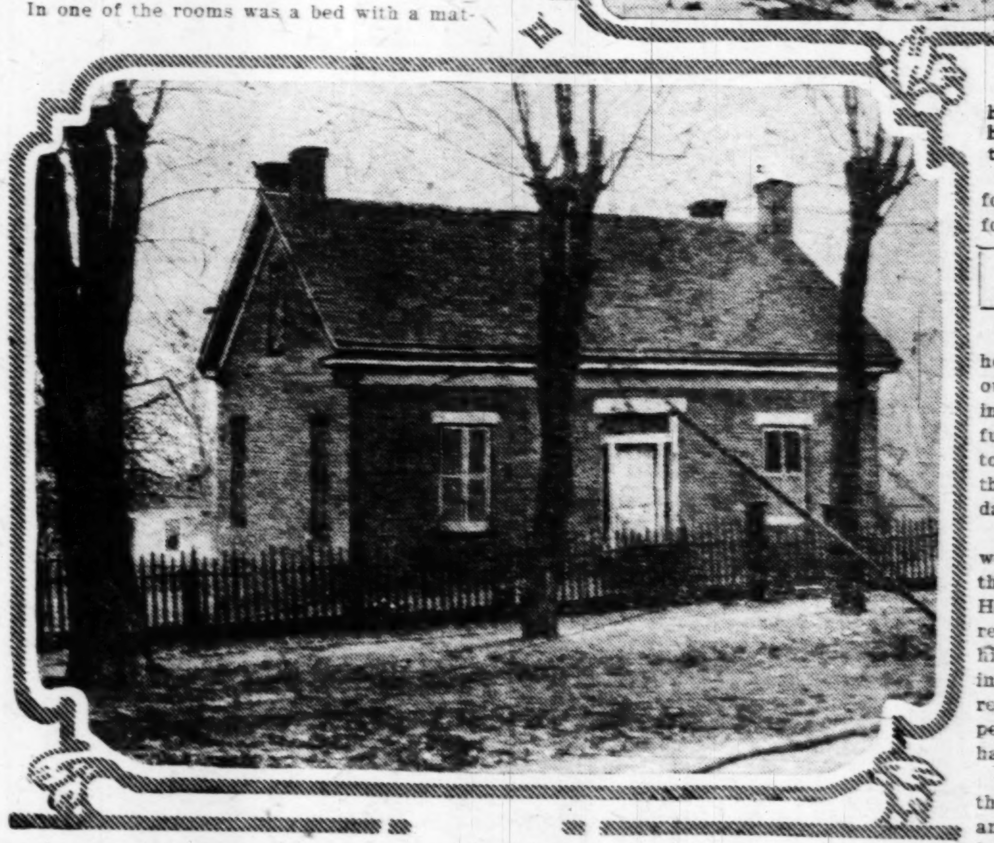
It was also in the earlier days that Koehler, with singular extravagance, subscribed for a weekly German paper. Sometimes, when he was busy with his gardening, he did not have time to read it by daylight, and as he had no lamp he went to neighbor Traband's, where the lamplight was free, and read it there.

When his wife left him he closed the shutters and from then until his death none of them was opened except, by day, those at one of the kitchen windows. At nightfall he closed these and no ray of light was ever seen and no smoke ever came from the chimney except a little on the bitterest days.

Most of his relatives and neighbors he viewed with distrust. Exceptions were his niece, Mrs. George Moore, and her husband and George Crosby, Mrs. Moore's half-brother, of O'Fallon, and Dan Schmitt, who lived across the street, and one or two other neighbors. These, if his mood was hospitable, he would admit to his kitchen when they came to see him. Others he turned away.

The children feared him and they were out of luck if marble or rubber ball rolled through his patched fence, for none was daring enough to retrieve, and Koehler would have thought it flying in the face of favoring fate to have returned a marble or a ball, seeing that he was hoarding these and every one that came through the fence increased his wealth in marbles and balls.

There were peonies in the yard and these Koehler tended with something like affection, selling the blooms when he had a chance.



The shuttered home where Arthur Koehler lived for half a century in Lebanon, Ill., and where $16,566 in cash was found hidden after his death.

In one of the rooms was a bed with a mattress, but he never slept on it. His couch was an old sofa reversed against the wall, with newspapers and rags to rest upon and serve as coverlet.

One day last week the kitchen shutters were not opened and Koehler did not appear. Dan Schmitt went to inquire. Koehler was sick and weak. Schmitt notified the Moores. They came and tried to get him to go to a hospital, but he refused. They arranged with Schmitt to look after him. Thursday there was no answer when Schmitt knocked. The shutters were forced and the old man, 83 years old, was found lying on the floor, dead.

There was search then for the hoard he was known to have. They found it in the two lard cans, gold and silver, currency and bonds, $16,566 in all, the bills and coins carefully wrapped, for Koehler's bookkeeping was so exact he had no need to count it often. In his books was set down every penny that he had received or expended in 50 years, with monthly balance sheets and annual recapitulations, and the record tallied exactly with the hoard.

The books showed increasing care and caution as the years passed, reaching a certain perfection last year when his expenditures seldom exceeded $3 a month, and one month he brought them down to $2.70.

Money was not the only hoard that was found. There were stacks of German papers, paper bags, a thousand or more, as they had come from the grocer's in the days when his purchases were more liberal, assorted by sizes and tints and carefully folded, bits of pencils that the children had dropped on their way to school, boxes of buttons and balls of string, scraps of tissue paper, samples of yeast cakes, assorted nails and bits of wire, and 138 marbles, the accumulations of a lifetime.

Georgie Moore, young son of the O'Fallon Moores, has fallen heir to the marbles, and with such resources at his command is planning an early spring "for keeps" campaign which, unless he is dissuaded, will probably result in them being restored to circulation, for George Moore is too young to be a match for the marble champions of O'Fallon.

The chicken house in which Smith spent his last days hiding from his relatives who, his distorted fancy led him to believe, were trying to poison and rob him.

Cherished Spark of Romance

Arthur Koehler loved money too much to hold his wife, but romance never quite died out of his life. They found the proof of that in his wedding suit of broadcloth, hung carefully in the wardrobe, with layers of tobacco to keep away the moths, and lying beside it the shirt of fine linen that he wore with it the day he married pretty Amelia Arth.

Only once, so far as anybody knows, had he worn his wedding garments after he wore them with his wife to the dances at Rahner's Hall. One day, a long time ago, moved by a resurgence of romance, he arrayed himself in his wedding finery and walked up town, causing no end of comment and speculation. He returned to the shuttered house and disappeared within, never again to emerge in the habiliments of his lost happiness.

It may be, though, that, sometimes, he took the broadcloth and linen from the wardrobe and donned them and sat in his solitude, living again, harmlessly—and inexpensively—the romance that was dead.

There was romance long ago, too, in the life of Melville Smith of La Plata, Mo. He married in his young manhood and for three years he had such happiness as was possible to a man who, like Arthur Koehler, was always "close." His wife died in giving him a child and the child died too, and he did not marry again.

More than 40 years ago Robert H. Smith, with his sons, Melville and William, and his blind daughter, Elmira, migrated from Hocking County, Ohio, to Macon County, Mo., and settled upon a partly-timbered farm of 440 acres, three miles southwest of La Platte. They cleared the land and sold the timber and raised stock and crops and were frugal and the land value increased.

When the old man died in 1893 he left the land, his personal estate of $7000 in cash and $12,000 in bonds to the sons jointly, subject to a trust of $4000 created in Melville's hands for the benefit of Elmira, to revert to the joint estate if she married or died. She died in 1902 or 1903.

The brothers lived together on the farm. Melville in 1899 married a girl named Graves. She died three years after the marriage. William married her sister, Margaret Graves, in 1901. Melville continued to live with them after the death of his wife.

Not Even a Buckboard for Luxury

The brothers permitted themselves and the woman and an increasing family of children only the most meager living. Melville loaned money on mortgages. Driving to town was an unallowable luxury. When the brothers had eggs or vegetables to sell they walked the three miles, carrying baskets. Reaching town they continued to walk tandem as they had along the country roads and paths, having no converse beyond the necessities of their small transactions, committing the one extravagance of buying a flask of whisky, but carrying it well out into the country before performing the ritual of taking solemn and carefully measured libations.

When William, three years ago lay dying, he told his wife to go to Joseph Park, a La Plata lawyer, for advice. She told him that shortly before her husband's death Melville dug up some gold in the yard. Park confronted him and he said yes, there was $2200, which he had in his trunk. He produced it and half of it was given to the widow and the land was divided. Expecting that Melville would at his death make a full accounting, she did not press for a further settlement then. Melville continued to live with William's family.

Last April Melville was taken sick. He had John Carpenter, a neighbor, send for the Rev. Arthur Smith of Carthage, Mo., a nephew. The preacher stayed a couple of days at Carpenter's. Melville's condition improved and the preacher went away. But as the days passed Melville indulged a growing suspicion of his sister-in-law. Finally he refused to eat or drink anything that she prepared for him and narrowed his diet to bologna and crackers. He moved, Nov. 5, with his meager effects, to a chicken house on his own land. Noah Graves, son-in-law of Mrs. Margaret Smith, looked after him and kept him supplied with bologna and crackers. John Carpenter visited him.

Smith came back. Attorney Elmer O. Jones and Walter Wilkinson, cashier of the La Plata Savings Bank, were summoned. Smith conveyed certain property, in consideration of love and affection and $1, to his brother, James, and his nephew, Joseph, in Ohio, whom he had not seen since he left there more than 40 years ago and who had never visited him. He made his will. He made small cash bequests to nephews and nieces other than the children of William. Concerning them his will read: "I have given certain land to Julia Ann Graves, wife of Noah Graves, but otherwise it is my will that the heirs of my brother, William, take nothing whatever from my estate." It has since been found not true that he had conveyed any land to Mrs. Graves.

The residue of the estate was bequeathed to his brother James.

Smith told his nephew there was gold buried under a beehive cap that served as a step to the toolhouse in the yard. The preacher and Carpenter dug there Jan. 1 and found a fruit jar with $1300 in it. There was $100 in his pocketbook, which he kept under the mattress of his bed, and $25 in an overshoe hanging on the wall, and this money he also turned over to his nephew.

The next day when Noah Graves [illegible]

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Feb. 23.

LIFE flows leisurely again on the big Stovall plantation. The darkies sing at their belated cotton picking. In the cabins they have ceased wondering why Young Mis' changed her mind. Up at the big house in the grove the gardener rakes the flower beds, for Spring comes early in the Mississippi Delta and it is near.

In her library Miss Louise Fowler Stovall reads and writes, seeking in the resumption of her studious habits recompense for the romance that was shattered when she sent back to Italy Maj. Gustavo Bacci del Marchesi di Marineo, whose bride she was to have been.

The wedding that would have joined the wealth of America's Southland with the name of a noble Italian family was set for Saturday, Jan. 19, and the Major, all eagerness, came a week before. But Mississippi in January is not like Italy in October, and the January day that he came to Mississippi was worse than most January days, with sharp chill in the air and steady downpour of rain.

Their meeting was joyous, as it should have been, but it was not like the day when promise was given, under Italian skies. There was a subtle change, which grew the ensuing two days. Maybe Miss Stovall, after time to think it over, was less inclined to trust her life's happiness to the foreigner and maybe he was depressed by the dismal landscape, different from what he had pictured it, for Mississippi is not at its best in January.

Anyway, things were not as they had been in the Italian autumn. There was a constraint which, by Monday night, had reached the breaking point. That night Miss Stovall came to the conclusion that her happiness did not depend upon the changeful moods of a Latin wooer, so she exercised a woman's prerogative and called the wedding off and sent Maj. Gustavo Bacci Marchesi di Marineo back where he came from.

Had Noble Name of Her Own

As for his noble name, Miss Stovall had no great need of that. The South has its own aristocracy and not only in Mississippi but throughout the South Stovall is a noble name. Col. William Stovall fought for the lost cause and when peace came he returned to his rich lands between Sunflower and Mississippi rivers in Coahoma County.

When he passed on, the estate descended to his sons, William H. and John Willis Stovall. Both of the men are dead now and the widows live on the adjoining estates in style befitting their thousands of acres, dotted with the whitewashed cabins of the negroes who work the cotton fields. The Stovalls and their workers constitute such a considerable community that the railroad has established a station, where the Clarksdale road crosses it, and built a station and called it Stovall.

In the big house among the trees, half a mile from the station, Miss Stovall has lived the life that she likes best, surrounded by refinements collected in her travels to distant lands, mingling when she chose with the society of Clarksdale and Memphis and New Orleans, but caring not a great deal for frivolous things, finding greater content in intellectual pursuits, giving scant encouragement to suitors. And so it came to pass that she was nearing 25 years of age and no very definite romance had entered her life.

She and her mother travel much. In Rome, they met Maj. Bacci, back from the World War with honors and decorations, and that was the beginning of the romance which now has come to naught.

Again last Summer they went across the water and the Italian pressed successfully the suit which at first had met with no great encouragement. And before Miss Stovall sailed for home she had given her promise that in January, if he would come to the land of Mississippi, she would be his bride.

Announcement of the engagement was made by Mrs. Stovall when she and her daughter returned home and later the wedding date was set. Clarksville society was keenly interested and as the time for the wedding approached and it became known that the Major would arrive a week in advance, numerous affairs were arranged in honor of the couple.

A Day to Crush Italian Spirits

It was an unhappy fling of fate that when the Major reached Memphis the South was in the throes of the worst winter weather it had experienced in years. The day was cold and drear. Rain fell incessantly. It was a day to try the soul of a man unaccustomed to the caprices of the American climate. It was all but crushing to the volatile Italian.

When the great cotton fields of the Delta are green with growing plants or white with bursting pods and moss plumes wave from the cypress saplings along the bayous, it is a land of delight, but in January, the land is brown and bare except for the leafless last year's cotton stalks, with here and there a scant scattering of late crop yet to be picked.

In Summer the cabins, thickly scattered over the estates, are part of the picture, but in winter they stand stark in the fields, a goodly sight only to the man of the cotton country to whom they mean a supply of labor for next year's plowing and planting and picking.

And these were what Maj. Bacci saw, raindrenched, as his train carried him through the Delta. At the villages the idle negroes lolled under dripping porches and bedraggled mules drooped at hitching posts. Only here and there a white man or the habitation of a white man. All just as it should be in the land of cotton, but a strange and depressing scene for a man whose imagination had painted pictures with European pigments.

From Clarksdale to the Stovall plantation was a dreary and dismal drive of eight miles over roads that are considered fair here, but are not like the roads the Romans built.

The plantation house, widely extended one-story structure, grove-guarded, was ablaze with light that night and fireplaces gave their warmth and the welcome and hospitality extended to the traveler from over the seas was such as only the South can give.

The first of the prenuptial parties was Sunday afternoon. The weather had not greatly improved, but Clarksdale society was eager to see the foreigner, who was supposed to be a Count or Marquis or something, although no title except Major had been used in the announcements that had been made, only Gustavo Bacci del Marchesi di Marineo. Impressive enough. And that "Marchesi," did it not mean Marquis? It certainly did, but it did not mean that the present Maj. Bacci was a Marquis. Only that he was of the family of Marchesi di Marineo. Nothing to be sneezed at though, because it was understood the old Marchesi di Marineo, in his time, was one of the most powerful of Italian nobles and it was no small honor to be one of his descendants, even though the title did not follow the line of descent.

Information about the meaning of Italian names is not easily obtainable in Clarksdale and the guests who came to the tea given by Mrs. G. R. Page and Mrs. Oscar Carr at the home of Mrs. Carr, from 5 to 6 o'clock Sunday evening, were a little uncertain as to how the gentleman should be addressed.

Conversation a Bit Heavy Footed

He was an impressive personage, between 30 and 35 years of age, of medium stature and compact build, with rounded cheeks and a small mustache and glasses, in faultless afternoon garb and white spats.

The Major's command of English was limited to a few close-clipped words of greeting. At that he knew more English than anybody there knew of Italian, and conversation would have dragged if it had not been that some spoke French, in which the Major could converse with fluency.

Conversation a Bit Heavy Footed

Miss Stovall speaks French and a little Italian and there was, in quip and riposte and tendency to tete-a-tete, no token that everything was not as it should be between an American girl and an Italian gentleman soon to be wed. Nothing, that is, except a suggestion of preoccupation and depression on the part of the Major which then was attributed to the barrier of language between him and most of the guests, but which later, in view of developments, was invested with a certain significance.

From Monday to Saturday there was to have been a succession of teas and luncheons and showers, partly in Clarksdale and partly at plantation homes, filling the days and nights of the wedding week, with Mrs. R. H. Crutcher, Mrs. J. W. Cutret, Mrs. Charles Clark, and Mrs. Howard Stovall, cousin by marriage of Miss Stovall, among the hostesses.

And the wedding was to have been the most brilliant the Delta had known in a decade, with the ceremony at fashionable St. George's Episcopal Church at Clarksdale and the reception following at the plantation home, with the best dinner that the chef of the Gayosa Hotel at Memphis could plan. Guests were to have come from all over the South. Monday there was a dinner for the wedding party at the plantation. Except for a certain constraint on the part of the Major the guests did not notice anything amiss. But Monday night the Cupid's barque that had, for unexplained causes, been steering a precarious course since the arrival of the Major, went upon the rocks.

Then the Embarrassing Climax

It came over Miss Stovall that night that it was all a terrible mistake and that she could not go through with it. Her decision was made known to Maj. Bacci. Her mother was taken into her confidence. There was little sleep that night at the plantation home. It was a difficult situation. To call off the wedding so near at hand would be embarrassing to the proud and sensitive mother and daughter, but the daughter's happiness was at stake and all things were subordinate to that.

Well on toward morning the final decision was reached. Mrs. Stovall and her daughter, distrait, sought rest. Maj. Gustavo Bacci del Marchesi di Marineo departed that day for New Orleans on his way back to Italy.

By telephone, telegraph and letter messages went from the plantation, conveying the necessity for calling off the prenuptial parties, canceling arrangements and invitations for the wedding. Not even to the closest friends was explanation given, and none was asked. To this day there is not a friend, however close to the Stovalls, that will admit definite knowledge of the cause of the contretemps.

As for the general public all the information it received was in the Tuesday evening's issue of the Clarksdale Register: "Mrs. John W. Stovall wishes to announce that the marriage of her daughter, Louise, to Maj. Gustavo Bacci del Marchesi di Marineo, which was to have taken place Saturday, has been postponed indefinitely."

There was no lack of conjecture, bolstered in some instances by pretended sources of information. The one commonly accepted was that the Major, as the European custom is when a scion of a noble family is to wed American wealth, stipulated a settlement out of all proportion to his distinction as a mere descendant, perhaps collateral, of the Marineos.

Some Laid It to Temperament

With this was coupled, as alternative or supplemental explanation, the report that the Major, under the stress of a long journey and an arrival which was made inauspicious by unkind weather, had exhibited so much of temperament, or after effects of shell shock or gassing, that Miss Stovall, in the exercise of a reasonable prudence, declined to let the wedding plans go forward.

. The day I drove from Clarksdale to the Stovall plantation the sun had been shining and there had been the promise of Spring in the air, but an ill wind was coming down from the North and the storm clouds were driven across the face of the sun and the promise of Spring died out of the air.

The gardener, deferential and ceremonious, laid aside his rake and took some pride in acting as escort, across the wide spreading lawn and through the grove to the house, and with a certain imperiousness bade the maid notify her mistress that a gentleman had called and was awaiting her pleasure.

And then, in a moment, the library door opened and a slender girl stood there, the firelight from the open hearth enhancing the bronze of her hair, her steady eyes inquiring the cause of intrusion, a young woman very much mistress of herself, gentle and soft-spoken, but unwilling to admit that it was incumbent upon her to appease a piqued public interest.

The report that the Major, after his arrival, had demanded a settlement was mentioned to her and she denied it, promptly and with the nearest approach to emphasis which she indulged. Concerning the report that the soldier revealed temperamental effects of his war experiences the reply was less prompt and seemed somewhat evasive. Really, it was a matter which did not concern the public.

"I have made," she said, "all the explanation that my friends require, and there is nothing that I wish the public to know."

Mrs. Stovall came in, gracious but defensive, and told her daughter she would do whatever talking needed to be done.

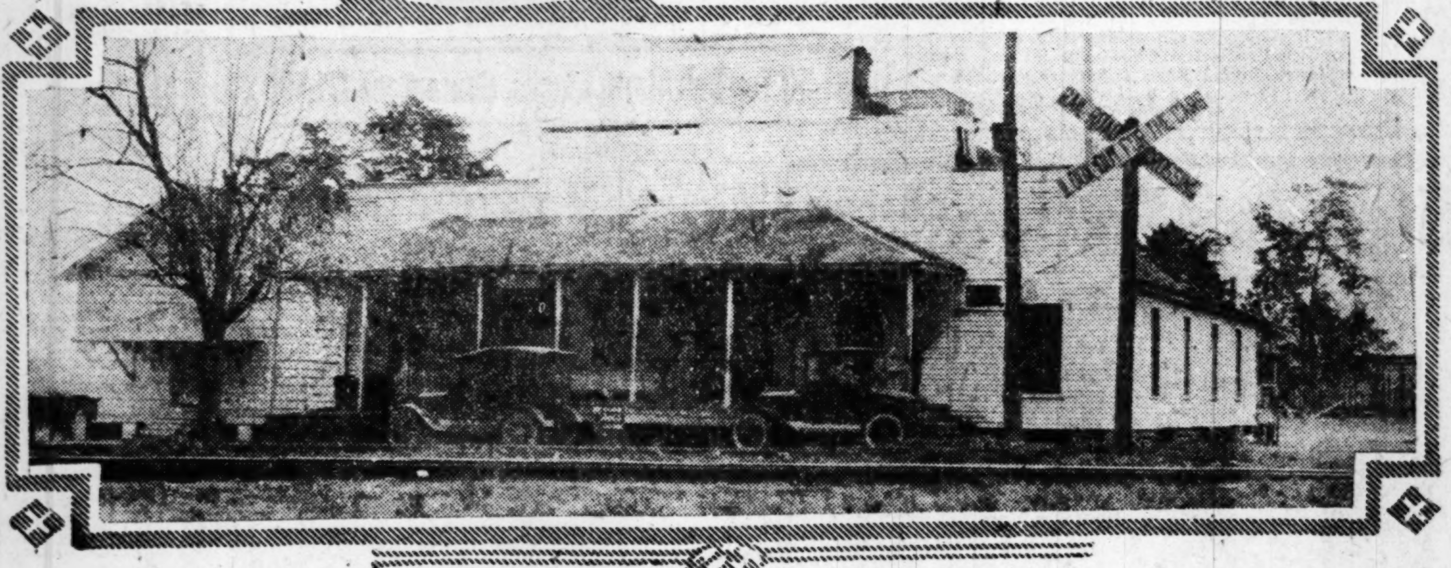
"But, Mother," said Miss Stovall, "there is nothing to be said."

"Precisely," said Mrs. Stovall.

What she had meant was that she would relieve her daughter of the difficulty of being hospitable to an inquisitive stranger without telling anything.

And so they told nothing, but it was noticed that above the bookshelves in the pretty library, where Miss Stovall seeks in the companionship of her books recompense for her unfulfilled romance, stood the photograph of a man in the uniform of an officer.

At the left is Miss Louise Fowler Stovall, the Mississippi heiress whose sudden decision not to marry her Italian suitor after the wedding guests had already been summoned for the festivities is giving Southern society much to speculate about. Above is seen her plantation home in the Delta country where she lives with her mother and where there was much merry-making during the brief stay of Major Bacci.



The Stovalls and their numerous plantation workers constitute such a large community below Clarksdale that the railroad has built a station on the place and called it Stovall. The picture above represents the "business district" of Stovall, where stores have sprung up to supply the "furnish" for the scores of negro families who work the cotton fields.

Strange Story of Two Misers Who Died in Poverty, Yet Had Thousands

the chicken house he found Smith very weak. Graves suggested that he be taken back to the home of Mrs. William Smith . The sick man consented and a sledge was brought and he was hauled on it across the fields to the farm house. The next day he died.

The will named the Rev. Arthur Smith and Wilkinson as executors. When the preacher presented himself to the Probate Court at Macon his eligibility was challenged on the ground of alleged non-residence in the State. He made affidavit, however, that he had removed from Chicago to Carthage, where he has been conducting a financial campaign for the Ozark Wesleyan College, which is being removed from Marionville to Carthage, and that the latter place is now his permanent residence. Wilkinson filed a renunciation as joint-executor, so Smith is the sole executor.

The inventory he filed accounted for the $1465 in cash, $4900 deposited in banks, clothing, guns and ammunition. No bonds were listed as having been found.

Mrs. Margaret Smith filed a claim for $5580 for caring for Melville Smith, 21 years, during which he was never absent a night until he moved to the chicken house. Noah Graves presented a claim for $171 for looking after him at the chicken house.

A suit was filed on behalf of Robert J. Smith, 14-year-old son of Mrs. Margaret Smith, for $25,000 actual and $25,000 punitive damages on the ground that when he was 11 months old Melville Smith struck him and threw him on the floor, causing concussion of the brain and curvature of the spine and retarded physical and mental development.

Another suit, brought on behalf of all of Mrs. Margaret Smith's children, seeks to have the conveyances of real estate, made shortly before Melville's death, set aside on the ground that they were the result of fraud and undue influence.

The mystery is what has become of the $12,000 in bonds. They were in former years kept in a bank at Kirksville, but were drawn out years ago. Persons familiar with Melville Smith's affairs are convinced that he still had them, or their equivalent, when he died. They conjecture that he may have converted them into gold and buried the gold, but if he did he is not known to have revealed the hiding place to anybody. In the belief that there is buried gold on the farm there has been some surreptitious digging without result. Frozen ground and impassable roads have hindered systematic search.

Smith is believed not only to have kept what he and his brother received from their father, but to have substantially increased it. The bonds drew 4 per cent in gold and through many years he received a pension as a Civil War veteran which started at $8 per month and increased to $75 per month.

Believed He Had Been Robbed

When Melville Smith, at 79, lay dying, his peace was disturbed by the conviction, which may have well been a hallucination, that he had been robbed. "Don't let them come in," he pleaded, "they have robbed me of everything." He only mumbled incoherently when he was asked who "they" were. Once, in a lucid interval, he told Mrs. Margaret Smith to go to the chicken house and on the wall she would find his vest and in the pocket a $10 bill. She did as directed and found only a $1 bill. "They have taken that, too," he moaned, and would not be comforted.

So whatever happiness Melville Smith may have derived from hoarding, he lacked, in his dying hours, the poor satisfaction of possession.

There is to be no litigation over the estate left by Arthur Koehler, estimated at something less than $25,000. George Crosby has been appointed administrator and division is to be made among these heirs, named in the petition: Mrs. Viola Moore, O'Fallon; Mrs. Elvira Krost, St. Jacobs; Mrs. Lulu Korst, and William Vetter, Collinsville; Charles Vetter, Highland; Eugene Koehler and Mrs. Emily Fullerton, Little Rock, Ark.; Oliver R. Koehler and Miss Lucille F. Koehler, East St. Louis. The latter two are children of a deceased nephew, and the others are nieces and nephews.

'WOMAN'S FLESH' CURSE BRINGS DISASTER UPON JEWEL ROBBER GANG

Hughes was tried for harboring him and was acquitted. Hughes, it was pointed out, hadn't profited or tried to profit by the wrenching of jewels from a woman. He was just a "good feller."

From New Brunswick Moran and Hurwitz went to Philadelphia. Then they procured a touring car. They kept on going until they reached New Orleans. Biloxi, Miss., is to New Orleans what Newport is to New York, except that it isn't quite so brightly exposed to critical and curious publicity.

Moran and Hurwitz began to lead a life at Biloxi in a hired bungalow which made them believe that the flesh-worm jewel curse was a joke. It might be true that jewels taken from a woman's corpse were unlucky—"but not from one who's alive and kicking—ha, ha! I'll say she kicked! Thank Gawd there ain't nothing in them superstitions."

One day they came in from shooting defenseless but homely alligators and found their house turned upside down. Their negro servants said the "Chief of Police of Biloxi had done been there raising all sorts of commotions."

If Moran and Hurwitz had tarried only half an hour the Chief of Police of Biloxi would have called upon them in sackcloth and ashes to apologize for raiding their house by mistake on a warrant charging their next door neighbor with bootlegging.

Didn't Wait for Apologies.

But they did not wait. No, they did not wait. When they were too sleepy and tired to run the car further they were in Columbus, O. They were so tired they just shoved the car into a garage and stumbled to a hotel, leaving a small arsenal of automatic pistols and cartridges lying on the seat. The garage men notified the police. Moran and Hurwitz were arrested. Mr. Moran was "Mr. Lee of Philadelphia;" Mr. Hurwitz was somebody from Biloxi. Both were haughtily indignant. Within 48 hours, through resources which only the underworld knows, each of them produced letters—six each. Six prominent Philadelphians, who at this moment have gooseflesh and cold sweat under their union suits, guaranteed the social standing of "Mr. Lee." The Chief of Police of Biloxi, the Mayor and four others guaranteed the utter respectability of his companion. Mr. Moran and Mr. Hurwitz were allowed to leave for Philadelphia.

No bad luck in all that, the unworldly student of this narrative may say. No? Still look, listen. All the time the thieves had been dallying in Biloxi, Marty Owens and Tom Horan, smarting to redeem themselves from the slur of an indictment found against them by former Gov. Whitman in New York and impatiently dismissed, without trial, had been on their track. They had followed their suspicious noses as far as San Francisco, only to double back to New Orleans.

They went from New Orleans to Biloxi, where they would have lost all trace of their prey had it not been for the widely told story of the two strangers who went sky-hooting out of town when the Chief of Police raided their house instead of that of the bootlegger next door. Here the detectives got the number of the automobile of the fleeing strangers. Was there any bad luck in that Chief of Police error? Was there? The underworld wants to know.

Owens and Moran got into Cleveland just after Moran and Hurwitz had been released because of their seemly and complimentary letters from prominent citizens of Biloxi and Philadelphia. Was this luck for the fugitives? It was not.

Writers of Letters Sought.

Owens took all the "Lee" letters and Moran took all the Philadelphia letters and each one used the fastest train to get to the writers of the letters and promise them—and they really are prominent citizens—"if you don't tell us all you know about these guys, how you met them, who their friends are and where you heard from them last, we are going to print these letters."

Within three days the detectives knew Moran and Hurwitz had sold their long distance touring car in Philadelphia and had bought a car of another make. Within 24 hours every agent in the East of the car of the make they had bought was asked to report to his general sales manager the car which bore the Pennsylvania license number Moran and Hurwitz had taken.

The next day Moran and Hurwitz were reported from Trenton and were arrested and turned over to Owen and Horan in Princeton. They were pushed aboard a train and it wasn't until they were half way under the North River in the tunnel that the detectives told them why they were asked to come to New York. They had "come along" without protest up to that time, hoping against hope that they were "wanted" for something less serious than the Schoellkopf robbery and not daring to mention it.

No announcement was made of their capture the next day, Nov. 2.

But Henry Hirsch, a partner of Mahan, the fence, committed suicide that day at his home, 1356 Waldron avenue.

There was the curse and its fatal work again. At least one would have a fine time trying to make the thieves believe anything else. Hirsch, it seems, had brought fate down on his head by helping himself to $40,000 worth of the gems from Mahan's safe. Then upon hearing Mahan's threat to kill him on sight, he had ended his own life.

When Moran and Hurwitz were confronted with this baleful intelligence they were in no mood to buck Nemesis any longer. They told Inspector Coughlin they would make any sort of a confession he wanted if he would only tell them "where the damn thing was going to stop." District Attorney Banton invited them to plead guilty. They did. They also gave their own version of their dealings with Mahan and their information that Mahan was at Miami.

Found Mahan Near Point of Death.

The detectives went to Miami. They found Mahan. He was paralyzed with fright, with heart disease and a high blood pressure. They asked him to come back to New York, and see the District Attorney. Tremblingly, tearfully asking them to be easy with a dying man, he let them hurry him to a train. He was so near dead when they reached the Pennsylvania Terminal that they did not dare take him to a place where he would see lockup bars. They took him to the Hotel Biltmore, called a doctor and notified District Attorney Banton. Mr. Schoelkopf, husband of the unhappy woman who had been robbed, had already guaranteed all necessary expenses toward recovering some of the jewelry.

The queer part of the story, as the underworld gets it by driblets from the newspapers and from mouth to mouth gossip, is that the minute Mahan "came through," his heart condition began to improve.

"I'll get every damned stone and pearl back," he said, "if only I can live to do it."

Martin Owens was trying to pour a cup of beef tea down the prisoner's throat at the time. Lawyers for Mr. Schoellkopf and the manufacturer's secretary were dancing around, saying, "For God's sake, don't let him die now."

Mahan reached out and took the cup from the detective's hand and sipped at it. Then, spilling the rest of the tonic on the floor, he burst into tears.

"Did you see that?" he blubbered. "It's the first time my hand has been any good to me for four months. I came clean and the curse left me. Tell me what you want me to do next."

That was more than two weeks ago. Mahan, having been indicted and put under bail, accompanied the detectives to Denver, where he said he had sent the $88,000 worth of pearls, which were the most conspicuous part of the Schoellkopf loot. He assured the detectives he could not recover the pearls unless he was alone when he met the man in whose care he had sent them West. Desperate, the detectives pretended to take a chance. Not knowing he was watched, Mahan went out and searched for his trusted friend two hours and came back empty-handed. He begged to be allowed to go out again. This time the detectives took an even greater chance and did not follow him.

Mahan came back to them with a little wide-mouthed glass bottle with a metal screw top, such as is used for stick candies or tablet patent medicines—holding perhaps half a pint liquid measure. It had his own seal on it. It contained the pearls and one enormous diamond.

The detectives asked him where he got it.

"Oh, what's the use," he said. "Don't bother me. I might die on you if you worry me. The man that had it didn't know what he had neither do the nine other boobs who have the rest of them. Give me time and I'll get them. I'm nearly dead, but I want to live. I don't want to die. Money you make that way don't do you no good."

So the police gave him more time. He went out again in New York City this time to return with a bag, instead of a jar, of jewels. In it were 29 sapphires, 28 large rubies and 44 small ones, valued at $17,000 and a $100 vanity case besides. "But not until I get 'em all back will my peace with God be made," he exclaimed. "They'll all be returned, never fear."

This latest delivery brings the total of gems recovered to $235,000 and Mahan is still working. If fate spares him a little longer—and the police believe it will because his conscience is clearer now—there is likelihood that he [illegible] keep his word to recover [illegible] missing jewel, for no matter [illegible] punishment may be in store [illegible] him, there is now no more [illegible] participant in the strange [illegible] for the "hoodoo" gems than [illegible] W. Mahan. He has had [illegible] enough experience. with jewels stolen from the body of a [illegible] and with the fearful consequences from which the bad luck jinx [illegible] no guilty man escape.

OLD AT 40? Iron Starvation

For this purpose there is nothing better than Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart green vegetables, or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over four million people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich the blood of the blood, perhaps, and your worn-out, exhausted nerves need to be revitalized.

NUXATED IRON ... 69c

NATURE PUT IRON FOR YOUR BLOOD in the husks of grains and the peels and skins of fruits and vegetables, but modern methods of cookery throw all these things away—hence the alarming increase in anemia—iron starvation of the blood, with its never-ending trend of symptoms of nervous irritability, general weakness, fatigue, disturbed digestion, headaches, pains across the back, etc.

Either go back to Nature or take Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—to help enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out, exhausted nerves. MONDAY, 69c.

Grace Layman to Wed Henry Isaacs; Engagement of Third of This Year's Debutantes Announced at Luncheon

Bride-Elect Was Formally Presented to Society at a Tea in October—Mary Keck to Wed George Scott March 15—Dr. L. T. Post to Be Married in South Dakota.

SOCIETY'S activities for the next few weeks will be governed largely by the whims of that rapidly growing group of young women who are soon to be brides. After the inertia which follows every strenuous season, engagement announcements, wedding plans and the pleasant flurry of excitement which follows in the wake of the bride, will prove a pleasant diversion.

Contrary to the usual custom, some of this year's debutantes will not finish their first season, for one of them has already chosen her wedding day, another will be married early in the autumn, and yesterday the third, Miss Grace Layman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo A. Layman of 22 Kingsbury place, announced her engagement to Henry Garcia Isaacs, son of Mr. Charles W. Isaacs of 5226 Washington boulevard.

The news was told at a luncheon given at the Layman home, where the guests, with the exception of Mrs. Edward F. Deacon, a sister of the bride-elect, and Miss Emily Isaacs, a sister of the prospective bridegroom, were debutantes. The party had been planned by Mrs. Layman, presumably without her daughter's knowledge, to serve the double purpose of a surprise and farewell, for she and Miss Layman were to have sailed in March to join her daughters, Misses Mary and Laura Layman, who have been traveling several months. The trip has now been indefinitely postponed.

After the guests had been seated at the luncheon table, where the chief decoration was a full-rigged sailing vessel, and the place cards were painted with scenes of the sea, telegraph blanks were provided on which were to have been written bon voyage messages. During the luncheon a messenger appeared with a cablegram conveying congratulations from her sisters.

Miss Layman is a graduate of Miss Bennett's School in Millbrook, N. Y., which she attended after having been graduated at Mary Institute. She was presented to society at a tea in October, when Miss Mary Elizabeth Edwards, who will marry Robert Blackwell Whittemore III in April, shared honors. Mr. Isaacs is an alumnus of Wisconsin University and served as an officer in the army during the war. He is a member of the University Club. The wedding will take place in October.

Miss Evelyn Brown, daughter of Mrs. John Young Brown, the second bud to become engaged will become the bride of Francis Niedringhaus.

One of the first important March weddings is that of Miss Mary Etta Randolph and Garneau Wold, to take place March 4 at the home of Miss Randolph's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter, 7 Kingsbury place. A whirl of gayeties preceding the ceremony will be increased by the presence of a number of out-of-town guests, notably Miss Frances West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. West of 11 Westmoreland place, who will return from Camden, S. C., for the event, and Miss Carol Elting of Chicago. They will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West. Miss Helen Isham of Chicago will visit Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dozier Conant.

A number of out-of-town weddings in March, although small, will be of particular interest to St. Louisans. On March 8, Miss Agnes Scrivenor, who has visited here several times, will marry Richard Rutler of Philadelphia, and on the same day Miss Elizabeth Simon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh Simon of New York, will become the bride of Towner Phelan, daughter of Mrs. J. Percival Phelan of 5206 Waterman avenue. The service will be read in the chapel of the Little Church Around the Corner in New York, and will be small because of Lent. A reception will follow at the Simon home. Mrs. Phelan and her daughter will go East for the event, and Miss Phelan will continue to Washington to visit Miss Anna Lee Hagerman, who recently announced her engagement to Heyward Siddons, son of Justice Frederick L. Siddons of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The Simons family are former St. Louisans and the bride-elect made her debut here several years ago.

Miss Mary Keck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Keck of East Hampton, L. I., has chosen March 15 as the date of her wedding to George Drake Scott, son of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of 31 Westmoreland place. Mrs. Scott will depart a few days before the ceremony for Coronado Beach, Cal., where the service will be read at the winter home of the Kecks. Her daughter, Miss Alice Scott, now in Castle Springs, Ariz., will also attend.

On the same day will take place the marriage of Miss Berenice Lightner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Lightner of Roscoe, S. D., and Dr. Lawrence Tyler Post of the University Club. Because of the illness of Mrs. Lightner guests will include only members of the two families. The ceremony will be performed in the afternoon at the Lightner home. Dr. and Mrs. Hayward M. Post, the former a brother of the bridegroom, will go to Roscoe for the event. Upon their return to St. Louis, Dr. Post and his bride will make their home at 5673 Enright avenue.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania, will come to St. Louis in March, and will be the guest of Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis of Brentmoor. Mrs. Pinchot will be one of the lecturers in the Institute of Government and Politics which will be held under the joint auspices of the League of Women Voters of Missouri, St. Louis County and St. Louis, in co-operation with Washington University, at the New City Club, March 11, 12 and 13. In addition, a number of social functions are being arranged in her honor during her stay.

Another wedding of March will be that of Miss Hilda Mabley, daughter of Mrs. Fanny Woodward Mapley of 4905 Argyle place, and Warren P. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Clark of Burlington, Ia. It will be a home ceremony at 8 o'clock in the evening, Mar. 8. The bride's sister, Miss Elaine Mabley and Mrs. F. Leonard Hall, will attend her. Among the out-of-town guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Clark, their daughter, Miss Polly; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McCarty of Buffalo, and uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Seeling of Chicago, the former of whom will be best man.

Miss Gertrude Truitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Truitt of 5211 Raymond avenue, has chosen Saturday, March 1, as the date for her wedding to Arthur Price Sieling, son of Mrs. Thomas M. Grace of Westminster place. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Father J. O'Rourke of St. Mark's Church, at his home. The guests will be limited to the families and a few friends. A dinner will follow at the Gatesworth Hotel and an informal reception will be held in the evening for a few friends, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Truitt. The bride's sister, Mrs. Harry J. Meury, formerly Miss Myrtle Truitt, is to attend her as matron of honor, and Frank Robertson will be best man. After a honeymoon trip, Mr. Sieling will take his bride to Omaha to reside. Several parties have been planned in honor of Miss Truitt this week. Tomorrow Mrs. J. B. Glancy of 4418 Forest Park place will give a bridge luncheon for her, and the following day Miss Truitt will en-

Event Is One of a Series of Benefits Planned--Proceeds to Be Used for Repairing Building of Little Sisters of The Poor.

ATTENTION, PROPERTY OWNERS

I am the man you need to help you sell your residence. In my 34 acres of ground here along that small railroad of Creve Coeur Lake, south of Manchester road, and only 2 miles west of the St. Louis limits, I have the most beautiful ornamental trees, shrubs, fruit and shade trees that you have ever seen. I have the stock you need to sell your house, to sell it FAST.

For $100 worth of my beautiful large shrubs (with thousands of flowers next Spring) and my evergreens, you will sell your house much quicker and for several thousand dollars more than you would get for it with bare walls.

I have here in my nursery, hundreds of large shade trees, capable of giving a radius of 10 to 15 feet of shade for the first year (1924.) Thousands of large fruit trees of every kind, apple, pear, cherry, peach, plum and apricot, in bearing, able to give you fruit next Spring (1924). Eight thousand (8000) beautiful Lombardy populars for screen line you need between your neighbor's house and yours. The small size from 10 to 15 feet high, 3 feet wide from the bottom, carefully planted, at $1.00. The large size is very high, carefully planted, at $5.00. "They are high like the moon."

And you small property owners, if you want cheap trees and plant them yourself

I Have

3000 trees that will be too crowded next year. You can have them at 50 cents each. They are fine, healthy trees.

Consisting of 1000 apple, peach, and plum trees ready to give fruit next year (1925). Some of these trees are worth $3.00.

1000 shade trees, maple, sycamore, ash, and elm, 5 to 7 feet high.

1000 fine Lombardy poplar, 7 to 10 feet high.

Cash with order before we dig them, because that scarcely covers the time to dig and bring them in your machine or truck.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES OF MISSOURI FOLK AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

By a Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

Mrs. Edward Day Rae of St. Louis is visiting Representative and Mrs. Cleveland A. Newton. Later she will go to New York to visit her daughter, Mrs. Charles Burnham Squier, and to Buffalo to be the guest of her son, Elmer Rae, before returning home.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant entertained at a luncheon of 12 covers Thursday. Among her guests were former Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long and Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis.

The Missouri State Society gave a supper dance last Wednesday at the Hotel Roosevelt, in honor of the ranking naval officers in Washington who formerly lived in Missouri. These included Rear Admiral Leigh C. Palmer, head of the Emergency Fleet Corporation; Rear Admiral and Mrs. B. F. Hutchinson, commandant of the navy yard, and Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Willard. A reception preceded the supper and the dance in the receiving line with the guests of honor were the president of the society and Mrs. Cleveland A. Newton and Mrs. E. H. Andrew, chairman of the Reception Committee. The introductions were made by Lieutenant-Commander J. A. Byrne. The chairman of the Reception Committee was assisted by the following women: Mrs. L. C. Dyer, Mrs. Sidney C. Roach, Mrs. Clarence Cannon, Mrs. Joe J. Manlove, Mrs. N. R. Jenner, Mrs. C. P. Grandfield, Mrs. O. J. Singleton and Mrs. M. A Tuttle

Miss Bessie McKeldin, daughter of Mrs. Leigh Palmer, was among the group of debutantes who attended the midwinter prom at the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville. Miss McKeldin entertained a group of young girls at luncheon on her return to Washington, followed by a Mah Jong party.

Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Long are visitors in New York.

Immigration Bill Denounced.

The Johnson bill to regulate immigration, now before Congress, "is a gross discrimination against the Italian people now in America as well as against those related to them and theirs still in Italy," says a resolution which has been adopted here by the Societa di Mutuo Soccorso La Campobello di Mazzara.

Republicans and Democrats Agree

Some Republicans and Democrats engaged in a violent discussion at the luncheon table yesterday. The affair promised to develop into a "free-for-all." Finally—in order to break the tension—someone suggested that strawberries and cream were the finest dessert in the world, and for once all parties were in perfect agreement.

A scientist says that one reason why we all like strawberries and cream is because of the pleasing color contrast between the scarlet berries and the rich yellow cream. This pleasure is, of course, lost to the color-blind person.

Color blindness is a defect of vision that is readily recognized by its victims, and its only serious consequences are to disbar them from many occupations where color sight is essential.

But there are many defects of vision of a really serious nature—easily correctable by properly prescribed glasses—that cause pain, headaches and other annoyances to thousands who haven't the least suspicion that their eyes are at fault.

Guilbault Glasses have saved thousands of men and women from the misery of neglected vision. Twenty years' experience, the highest professional skill and the most reasonable charges are the reasons why I have one of the largest clienteles in St. Louis.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

And beauty in a French-type clay

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Millions of women marvel at my youthful beauty. I have been 40 years in the limelight, and 32 years a stage star. Yet I still look a girl of 19. I still play youthful parts, and was never more winsome than now.

These things I owe to France. Her experts made me a famous beauty. They have kept my youthful bloom. And those same helps have done like things for many of my friends.

I know they can bring to millions new beauty and new youth. So I have arranged so all who wish may get them.

The supreme help

Many years ago French beauty experts taught me the use of clay. They used then crude and muddy clays, like many still employ. But even those clays multiplied my beauty.

Since then, able scientists have perfected clay by 20 years of study. They have found the right clay—a rare mineral-laden clay — which brings maximum results.

They have found ways to refine it, to remove the useless mud. Their new-type clay is white and clean and dainty.

They have discovered added factors which bring manifold effects. The clay I now use — my White Youth Clay — makes other clays seem very crude indeed.

Amazing effects

Youth Clay purges the skin of impurities. It removes causes of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes. It draws the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is that rosy afterglow which so amazes new users.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years. And my youthful bloom and contours show what constant use will do.

A beauty essential

Clay is an essential to beauty at its best. Also to continued youth. Women who omit it cannot hope to compare with women who employ it. Every girl and woman owes to herself this help.

But crude clays are out of date. My new-type clay—the very utmost in a facial clay—is now at your command.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth, my famous Liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

Learn, for your own sake, how much these helps can do. If the first package fails to delight you, your dealer will return its price.

? What was the real beginning of Woodrow Wilson's contact with world diplomacy? ? ?

? What was the frame of mind in which the President found himself when the European war broke out? ? ?

? What were his comments to his confidential friends on the night of the declaration of war between the Germans and the French? ? ?

? What is the intimate story of the German plots in Mexico which forced the hand of the Washington Government? ? ?

B. Caldwell, who practised medicine 47 years. You can buy a bottle in any store where medicines are sold, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. We guarantee that if you will give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a child or for a few nights to an adult it will relieve any case of constipation no matter how chronic, or your money will be refunded.

10 Million Bottles a Year

Use it once and you will never again take coal-tar drugs in candyform, calomel or salts. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable laxative free from opiates and narcotics. It can be safely given to infants, yet it effectively moves the bowels of adults. It acts gently; does not cramp or gripe. Keep it in the house and use it for any indication of bowel obstruction such as constipation, biliousness, torpid liver, dyspepsia, pimples and like skin eruptions. Give it early and it will break up a fever or a cold overnight. A spoonful proves it.

CORONER'S JURY EXONERATES POLICEMAN OF KILLING

Justifiable Homicide Is Verdict in Death of Man Whom Patrolman Shot.

A Coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide, exonerating Patrolman John W. Shannon of Central District, who on Oct. 27 shot and wounded Oliver White, 42, of 3958 Lee avenue, as White was running from arrest. The bullet penetrated the groin and the wounded man was removed to the city hospital, where he died Friday.

Shannon and two other policemen testified they were standing at Seventh street and Clark avenue, about 7 p. m., when they observed what appeared to be a hold-up on the street corner at Sixth street and Clark avenue. Three men were backed against the building, while a fourth appeared to be rifling their pockets. As they approached the fourth man ran into an alley. Shannon testified he fired a shot in the air, and fired a second shot at the fleeing figure, which took effect. The other three men were held for investigation. One of them testified yesterday he was too drunk at the time to recall the details.

SALES OF SITES AVAILABLE FOR APARTMENT OR HOTELS FEATURE REALTY DEALS

Block at 4368 Lindell, and King's Highway and McPherson and Delmar-Kingsland Corners Involved.

By Berry Moore.

Transactions for sites available for hotel and apartment projects were the feature of the week in realty. The most prominent sites involved a plot at 4368 Lindell boulevard, the southeast corner of King's highway and McPherson avenue, adjoining the Racquet Club, and the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Kingsland avenue in University City.

E. M. Worthington purchased through M. H. Rodemyer & Co. a site 130 by 213 feet at 4368 Lindell boulevard. Plans are under way for an eight-story fireproof combination hotel and apartment building of efficiency type to cost approximately $750,000.

The building will comprise 170 units available either for hotel or apartment purposes. There will be garage facilities.

The site is about 250 feet east of Newstead avenue and is improved with a residence which belonged to Mrs. Caroline A. Jackson, who was represented in the transaction by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co.

Worthington built the Worthington apartments at 520 Belt avenue and was a member of the syndicate that erected the Gatesworth Hotel. He also constructed the Portland [illegible] at 420 Union boulevard.

Recent Appraisal.

The southeast corner of King's highway and McPherson avenue was purchased by a syndicate organized by the Joseph Darst Realty Co. The site has 165 feet on King's highway and 253 feet on McPherson, including a strip with a frontage of 41 feet 4 inches on McPherson by a depth of 175 feet, forming the west line of the lot and adjoining that of the Racquet Club. The amount involved was not given out, but a commission of experts on real estate values recently appraised the site at $1000 a foot for the King's highway frontage, or $165,000 for the whole, according to the Joseph Darst Realty Co.

The Abricon Realty Co., of which Peyton Carr is president, was the grantor in the case of the King's highway and McPherson avenue site. It purchased the site 15 years ago for $105,000.

According to realty men, a proposition carrying large hotel plans for this corner has been submitted. An auditorium for symphony concerts and other musical productions on a large scale is included in building plans being considered, Darst stated.

University City Sale.

J. I. Epstein yesterday announced the sale of the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Kingsland avenue, in University City, to J. C. Janopoulo, on a basis of $45,000. The seller was George Georgas, who purchased the corner from Janopoulo for less than half this amount several years ago, and who gave in payment an apartment at the northeast corner of Enright and Syracuse avenues. As the original owner of Delmar Garden, Janopoulo laid out the subdivision comprising this lot.

The site has 95 feet on Delmar by a depth on Kingsland of 100 feet, extending north to Enright avenue, on which it also has a frontage of 100 feet. It embraces virtually half a block. The loop of the Delmar car line is on Enright avenue, which forms the north line of the block. Janopoulo has plans for a building to cost $150,000.

Finkelstein Deal.

Meyer Finkelstein has purchased for $68,000, through J. I. Epstein, three-quarters of a block, including the northwest corner of Syracuse and Enright avenues, with 195 feet on Enright and 100 feet on Syracuse, and 100 feet on Kingsland. It includes the entire block with the exception of the northeast corner of Kingsland and Enright avenues. The purchase is immediately north of that acquired by Janopoulo. Finkelstein, who is president of a mercantile concern on Washington avenue, has announced plans for the erection of a building to cost [illegible]0,000. The seller was George Georgas, who acquired the ground from Janopoulo.

Margaret Georgas has purchased from Meyer Finkelstein two six-family apartment buildings at 701 and 707 Eastgate avenue through J. I. Epstein.

Benjamin Mushlin has purchased the northeast corner of Sixteenth and Market streets, 50x125 feet, through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust, represented by A. N. Sanguinet. A four-story hotel building of 38 rooms and four stores occupies the site. The reported price was $45,000, which is at the rate of $900 a foot for the Market street frontage of 50 feet. Plans for remodeling the building are being made.

Locust Street Transactions.

Negotiations have been concluded through the Mullin-Walters Realty Co. for a five-story and basement building in the wholesale district of Locust street. The identity of the purchaser is withheld pending execution of final papers.

The Sisters of St. Mary own and will operate the hospital. Their present hospital, Seventeenth and Papin streets, is one of the landmarks of the city. They also conduct hospitals in other cities.

The building was financed by the Mercantile Trust Co., under a 10-year serial note issue, the total mortgage being $750,000. The plans for the building were prepared by A. B. Grove, architect, and the building was erected by the Ratermann Construction Co.

NEW RECORD REPORTED SET FOR CLAYTON ROAD ACREAGE

2.75-Acre Tract at Kent Road Corner Sold at Price Said to Have Been Around $15,000.

Sale of the northwest corner of Clayton and Kent roads is announced by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. The purchaser is said to be a wealthy Washington avenue retail merchant who plans a 10-room house for the site to cost $45,000.

The site comprises approximately 2.75 acres, with a frontage on Clayton road of 217 feet and a depth on Kent road of 418 feet. It is part of Lot 1 of what is known as Lancashire Gardens.

While the price paid has not been disclosed, an offer of $13,500 for the tract was declined several months previous, it was stated. The price reported in realty circles as having been paid for the tract was $15,000, which was at the rate of more than $5000 an acre, a new high price for ground values in the Clayton road district.

The site virtually overlooks the Log Cabin Club and is only a short distance from the main entrance to the Country Club. The handsome home of Eugene Angert faces the north boundary of the tract.

The property belonged to Mrs. Ellen Baker May, a niece of Ellis Wainwright, who was represented in the transaction by the F. H. & C. B. Gerhart Real Estate Co. Mr. and Mrs. May are now in Egypt. Frank H. Gerhart, president of the company, said that the name of the purchaser was known to only three persons.

BELLIS REPORTS EARLY START OF SPRING DEMAND

Milton B. Bellis of the Bellis Realty Co. states that judging by response to advertising the last week, this year's spring demand for real estate has already started. He attributes this in a measure to the probabilities of building workers receiving a substantial wage increase March 1, at which time building materials probably will increase in price.

He reports sales as follows: 4747 Northland avenue, 6-room bungalow, for Otis C. Ellis to William H. McRee; 2225 Jules street, flat, for a client to A. Rysomski; 4035 California avenue, flat, for Mrs. Carrie Mooney to Mrs. Julia Gamache; 2816 North Spring, flat, to Charles Cohen for Oliver Blase; 5596 Etzel avenue, flat, for John J. GROCERY STORE NOW IS DAILY CALLE

Detroit Chain Store System Inaugurates Motor Truck Store —Is Great Hit With Women.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Taking the store to your home is not novel. Peddlers with horse and wagon still ply about as they have for years, through country districts. Some of them now use automobiles.

Now there has been developed the "mototeria" by the Mototeria Co. of Detroit, which is a specialized body placed upon a two and one-half ton motor truck. The "mototeria" is large enough to carry on display a complete line of groceries, fully comparable with the stock carried by the average small chain grocery store. It is, therefore, equipped with the means to earn a profit on the large investment involved.

The first "mototeria" was put into service by the Wright & Parker Co., a Detroit chain store system. Seven more have been ordered and a combined garage and warehouse is being built to accommodate 20 trucks and adequate supplies of merchandise.

The "mototeria" store is 22 feet long by seven and one-half feet wide with attractive interior and a glass show case for fresh vegetables in the rear. As a customer goes in the front door, she is given a large market basket, suspended from an overhead rail, in which she places her purchases. Incidentally, she must follow the overhead rail past every bit of merchandise in the store.

The first day's business with the "mototeria" in Detroit yielded cash sales of $146. It is said to be averaging $1000 per week.

"SHOOTING UP" COUNTY BAR LANDS THREE MEN IN JAIL

Deputy Sheriff Hears Shots and Nabs Unruly Visitors—One a City Fireman.

Several revolver shots split the air at 6231 Bartmer avenue, Friday night, and Deputy Sheriff Charles Kick, who was in the neighborhood, hied himself to the second-floor bar of William Kiser at that address. On the stairs he encountered three men, two of whom were holding smoking revolvers.

At the Clayton jail the prisoners identified themselves as Charles A. Evans, 29, a city fireman, residing at 4673 St. Louis avenue; Frank Finnerty, 28, a railroad clerk, 5266A Page boulevard, and Albert Johnson, a bricklayer, who stays at a downtown hotel. DOME AFFAIR AFFECTS ITALIAN OIL SITUATION

Sinclair Negotiations Ended by Mussolini After Scandal in U. S. Broke.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Feb. 23.—The Post-Dispatch and New York World learn that the Teapot Dome affair is likely to start the Italian Government on a new policy toward search for oil in Italy. The Government had concluded a preliminary agreement with Harry F. Sinclair for drilling for oil here when the Teapot Dome scandal broke, and Mussolini immediately ordered that negotiations be broken off.

A large number of Italian captains of industry are again seeking oil in Italy, but two difficulties face private enterprise. One is the immense cost of drilling owing to the great depth underground of the oil, and the second is the fear that future administrations might grow cold regarding the prospects.

The province of Emilia has proved fairly rich in the heaviest oils, while the lighter oils are found in the island of Sicily and in the Abruzzi Mountains. In the former, the Government spent several million dollars on special machinery from Poland and then abandoned the search, and the present Government is disinclined to take up prospecting which might entail heavy cost without yelding profits.

Therefore, Sinclair's plan will probably be taken up by an Italian private company and may be headed by the famous Peronne brothers, who are anxious to extend their activities from the metallurgical to oil interests.

The Government is pressing the oil question with the soviets, who now appear inclined to give the bulk of their concessions to the British. Therefore, Mussolini, in negotiating with the Rumanian Government for a commercial treaty whose chief point will be concessions in the Rumanian oil field. Italy's exports, chiefly textile and electrical appliances, are growing rapidly with Rumania.

NO BLANKET CLEMENCY IN MILITARY PRISONERS' CASES

Some, It Is Said, Can Expect Little Mercy at Hands of Special War Department Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Feb. 23.—The hopes for early freedom of approximately 560 military prisoners in various United States penitentiaries rests largely with Maj. Frank Ross and Maj. James Stansfield, members of the Special Clemency Board, who continued their hearings at the Federal penitentiary here today. The board will make its recommendations for possible commutations and remissions of sentences direct to the War Department.

Speeding up their work, the army officers today reviewed the cases of 40 men, including the remaining 32 Houston rioters. The first seven overseas soldiers were reached late today. The hearings were conducted behind closed doors.

The work of the Clemency Board, it was pointed out, should not be construed as forecasting blanket clemency. Some of the military prisoners, it was said, could expect little mercy, because of the nature of their crimes or because of their prison records. Confinement records of the majority, however, have been excellent, prison officials said.

The 84 soldiers in the Federal prison here, who are serving life sentences, hope for eventual freedom through commutation of sentences to 15 years or more. A lifetermer, under the rules, does not become eligible for parole until he has served 15 years.

One of the most noted military prisoners in the United States disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth is Linn A. Gale, former publisher of a Socialist magazine in New York. Gale was sentenced to serve seven years for desertion from the army and for contemptuous language against the President. He has served two and one-half years.

MEXICAN FEDERAL GENERAL KILLED IN FIGHT WITH REBELS

Maximo Rojas Shot When He Enters San Juan de Los Llano at Head of Command.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23.—Gen. Maximo Rojas, ex-Governor of Tlaxcala, was shot and killed in a gallant effort to capture San Juan de Los Llano, held by the rebel leaders Manzano and Quintero. This command was defeated by Gen. Rojas when it attacked the Federal garrison at Hacienda Verreyas on Tuesday last. Gen. Rojas immediately gave pursuit to the rebels who fortified themselves in San Juan de Los Llana. Specials from Tlaxcala say that Gen. Rojas entered the town at the head of his command and was shot dead in street fighting together with several Federal officers. His body has been brought to Tlaxcala City for burial.

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 23.—Active guerilla warfare by the rebels along the Mexican railroads is reported in dispatches reaching this city. Government officials aboard trains have been recognized and shot by rebels. One train attacked by rebels was successfully defended by its survivors, two Federal officers and six men, for two hours until reinforcements arrived. A Federal officer, in command of an exploration train, who abandoned the passengers during an attack, will be courtmartialed.

ANSWERS CRITIC OF SUFFRAGE CONDITIONS IN THE SOUTH

Texas Congressman Says Requirements Are More Difficult in Massachusetts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—A recent statement by Representative Tinkham, Republican of Massachusetts, alleging discrimination by 11 Southern states in granting the right of suffrage was declared today by Representative Sumners, Democrat, Texas, to be "an unfair statement of the actual and comparative facts as among the states, calculated to arouse prejudice against one section of the country."

Tinkham's statement accompanied a resolution seeking a congressional investigation and recommending if discrimination were found, that a reapportionment be made in congressional representation.

Sumners in a statement said, as to Tinkham's state, the constitution and laws "impose upon suffrage conditions more difficult to comply with than do most of the southern states enumerated by him and it seems all right for Massachusetts to require that its constitution shall be read by English language."

Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana, Sumners said, have the same requirement as Massachusetts but provide a property clause for those unable to comply with the educational provision. Arkansas, Florida, Tennessee and Texas require only a poll tax, he declared, and the two Carolinas and Virginia require a poll tax and ability to read and write.

Sumners asked why Tinkham did not add Massachusetts' neighboring states, adding that "is it not a fair assumption it was because their enumeration [illegible] weaken the appeals?"

A Chance for Self-Expression

MILLIONS of men are automatons in industry and human cash registers in business. The army that feeds the world, clothes the world and houses the world is like the army that fights the world—in one respect. It is composed of a few generals and a vast multitude of privates.

In war and in industry privates are like bricks in a wall. Their action is mass action. They are useful only as they are rightly related. Self-expression is a limited thing. It is merged, fused and combined. It becomes group expression. But group expression does not satisfy the soul of man. It is not enough. There is a deep-rooted desire in all human lives for self-expression.

Generals of all kinds, civil and military—all kinds of staff officers—find plenty of opportunity for self-expression. It's down in the ranks where the limitations are keenly felt and the difficulties seem insurmountable. The one chance open to all men of moderate means and more pretentious salaries—the one opportunity for self-expression—is in the ownership of a home.

Money is power of a kind, and the man who possesses it finds many means of self-expression. A house is but one of them and, even then, whatever impression the place creates may be the result of an architect's genius. The man of more modest means is limited. But the difference is more than a matter of taste. It is a matter of ownership. The mere renter is not going to spend money in improving or taste in beautifying his landlord's property.

In the Middle Ages the craftsman and his work were known in the community. The worker in wood and stone, the weaver and dyer, the tailor and joiner, butchers and bakers and candlestick makers were all members of the guilds. The whole community could express itself in building the cathedrals.

In our day we have lost the craftsman and found the salesman. We are out of touch with the makers of things, and not in very close connection with the sellers of them, either. The old order has been turned upside down.

Modern cathedral builders have little personal interest in the outcome of their work. The names of those who subscribe the money and the name of the architect are known. To the real builders it is just a job, and a sectarian job at that.

The one big chance left for self-expression in the community is the personal touch that a man gives to his house. Here he can find some means to express his love of the beautiful. He can also secure what every man at the core of his heart craves—the kindly consideration of his neighbors.

The artistic value of a house is not a matter of expense, but of good taste. When a man has saved out of his income enough to build a home that will be a pleasure to look upon and a treasure to possess, he is not only adding considerably to his standing in the community, but he is availing himself of one of the highest forms of self-expression.

Home sites in every desirable residential district of St. Louis and its lovely suburbs are listed in the "Real Estate" columns of the Post-Dispatch. Homes already built, and embodying ideals of home comfort, are here also.

Call the dealers or owners and make investigations of these splendid properties. The investment now will bring financial returns in increasing values—and comfort and pleasure which are invaluable.

—A. W. L.—To make Chinese chop suey, take one and one-half pounds pork chops, three medium sized onions, one large stalk celery, one cup dried mushrooms, three tablespoons Chinese sauce, one heaping tablespoon cornstarch, one level tablespoon sugar. Soak the mushrooms in a little cold water an hour, drain and cut into half-inch dice or short strips. Cut onions and celery into small pieces. Fry meat in iron pot over hot fire until brown, then add the onions, next the celery and last the mushrooms, keeping fire hot and stirring constantly. Smooth cornstarch and sugar in a cup of water, adding Chinese sauce and two tablespoons of water in which the mushrooms were soaked. Add to pot and stir until chop suey thickens and grows pasty. Serve with boiled rice. More Chinese sauce may be added at the table in place of salt. About half an hour is required for the cooking. Chinese sauce, the only foreign ingredient, may be ordered at any grocery. In American chop suey there is much more gravy and it is only slightly thickened. Chinese potatoes or water chestnuts and bamboo (sold in cans) is sometimes added. Other meats, such as beef tenderloin, chicken, duck, turkey, fish, oysters or lobster may be used, in which case button mushrooms are used and the onion and much of the celery are omitted. The time of cooking varies with the kind of meat. We are unable to furnish you with the recipe for "chow mein."

R. C. G.—He is allowed an exemption of $2000 for the State tax, and $2500 for the Federal tax per year, and as your combined incomes are less than $2000, he need not make any income tax return or pay any income tax.

STUB.—You have to give him at least one month's written notice, but that does not take effect until the second following rent day. As your rent day is the 28th, if you give him notice before Feb. 28, you can vacate March 28, but not before then.

POOR FISH. — These questions all depend upon the circumstances. If he had good cause for leaving her, he would be entitled to interfere when he caught her with the man friend, and he would probably have a right to keep the child, but it would depend upon all the facts.

AN OWNER. — See answers to "James." There is no new law regarding this.

JAMES.—If the fences are on your property, then they belong to you and you can take care of them or not, as you please. If they are on your neighbors' property, they belong to them. If they are division fences, they should be maintained jointly by the adjoining land owners. This applies to the fences on both sides of your property.

F. X. G.—(1) He is responsible for debts which she contracts for necessaries. (2) It may be possible to have the marriage annulled. You would have to employ an attorney. It would not be possible to keep the annullment proceedings secret. However, it might not be published in the newspapers.

B. D. B.—The Government has always placed Indians in a special category. All Indians born within the territorial limits of the United States, who reside there in separate and apart from any tribe and who have adopted the habits of civilized life and also all Indians born within the territorial limits of the United States, who have received certain allotments, have been declared by statute to be citizens of the United States.

EAGER.—If the decree made no disposition of this property, and if the appellate court's mandate came down and the decree became effective before her death, then they would have become tenants in common of the property, and her share of it would go to her relatives. If the facts were otherwise, they remained joint tenants, and on her death the husband became sole owner of the property. You should consult a lawyer.

SUBSCRIBER.—A married man without children can appoint his wife executrix of the estate. (2) As long as the relatives are not beneficiaries under the will it would be legal for them to be witnesses to the will. (3) If your real estate is owned by you and your wife as joint tenants or tenants by the entirety, it need not be mentioned in the will. However, it would do no harm to mention it.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

X.—Gas is not considered dangerous, unless some special contra-indication exists. It is administered only momentarily in teeth extraction and in this there is a minimum danger.

OLIVE.—It is likely that the muscles or ligaments were strained in the jump. There could scarcely be a fracture from the description. It might be well as a matter of precaution to have an X-ray picture made. In sprains of this character time, as a rule, is the only alleviator. Local applications of a counter irritant nature, may give temporary relief.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—This is evidently rheumatism. We suggest 19 grains salicylate of soda in tablet or capsules every 4 hours. If this does not give relief try the following: Kalii iodide, 2 drams; kalii acetat, 2 drams; tinct. colchici, 3 drams; syrup sarsaparil compd., enough added to make 4 ounces. From two to four teaspoons in a little water a half hour before meals.

ALICE. — The finding of a very small amount of albumen in the urine, and that not constantly, does not necessarily indicate disease of the kidney, as albumen may contaminate the urine aside from kidney disease. The exact test is albumen being found in urine from a catheterized kidney. Microscopic examination should also be made for the presence of kidney casts. In addition careful search should be made for some other systemic disturbance, a very slight inflammation in the kidney should not greatly influence the blood pressure, even if present. We advise an additional opinion. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope if you wish us to suggest a list of physicians from which to choose.

B. H. AND H. T.—Iodine used externally will not, as a rule, make a goiter disappear. It should also be taken internally. Begin with 10 drops of soluble iodine and gradually increase to 30 or 40 drops. Take in water, at least one half hour before meals. (2) Freckles on a skin susceptible to them will recur if removed, upon exposure to sun and light. Protect skin from the sun's rays by colored veils or other means. The following is a safe and efficient removal application: Ammoniated mercury, 1 dram; bismuth subnitrate, 1 dram; rose water ointment, 1 ounce. Apply at night.

MALE.—The description is typical of an urticaria, or hives. In chronic cases as the one mentioned, a careful study should be made of the health and habits, in the endeavor to find the underlying cause. Derangement in the gastro-intestinal tract should be first considered, weighing carefully food and medicine as disturbing agents. Next the sexual organs, kidneys and liver. The cause is present if it can be found. At times diminished coagulability of the blood can be shown. If so 20 grains of calcium chloride, well diluted, may be taken after meals, to be continued for a long time. If no cause can be found, several remedies may be tried. Ergot in full doses is sometimes successful. Among other remedies are quinine, iodide of potassium, salicylic of sodium or strontium. Wine of antimony in 5-drop doses is often beneficial, so is ichthyol, 2 to 6 grains, three times a day. Locally, the following spray, used in an atomizer, is grateful: Carbolic acid, 3 drams; glycerin, 1 ounce and enough water added to make 1 pint. Five to ten drops of oil of peppermint may be added to each atomizerful.

In loving remembrance of my dearly beloved wife and mother, Anna Loeffelman, who departed this life Feb. 23, 1923.
It's hard to say it's for the best
When young life is called to rest.
We little thought that on that day
Our dear Anna would be called away.
Life was too short to say farewell
To those she knew and loved so well.
For all of us she did her best
Until angels took her home to rest.
In silence she suffered, with patience she bore
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by

Are pleasant to recall.
He had a kind word for each one,
And died beloved by all.

An Exceptional Opportunity

We want a few women of education, character and personality; not necessarily with sales experience, but preferably so.

They will present in a new way a financial problem affecting and protecting the thing that is paramount and sacred to every woman—the welfare of herself and family—a savings account protected by life insurance.

The work is dignified, profitable and permanent. Drawing account and commission for the right woman.

For interview call only at 1097 Arcade Bldg., or phone Olive 9375. AMERICAN TRUST CO., Locust at 7th. (c)

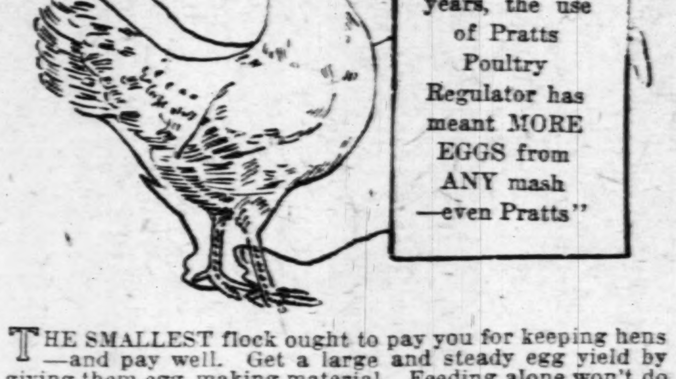
HENS LAY



"For over fifty years, the use of Pratts Poultry Regulator has meant MORE EGGS from ANY mash —even Pratts"

THE SMALLEST flock ought to pay you for keeping hens —and pay well. Get a large and steady egg yield by giving them egg-making material. Feeding alone won't do it, you must regulate their diet—supply the things they ordinarily don't get. The best of feeds cannot contain proper proportions of all the elements provided by Pratts Poultry Regulator. Mix a little of this inexpensive regulator with a hundred pounds of any mash; money back if Pratts doesn't show an astonishing difference—in eggs. Practical Pointers, a valuable poultry book, free from makers or your dealer.

LEAGUE SESSION ON REDUCTION OF NAVY STARTLED

Russians Demand Warships of at Least 400,000 Tons; Latin-Americans Jolt Big Powers.

MORE REDUCTIONS IN 5 YEARS SUGGESTED

Spain Backs South American Republics — Far-Reaching Effects on Future Are Expected.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Feb. 23.—Two demands —one from the Russian delegate, the other from Brazil, Chile and Argentina, acting with the support of Spain—have blasted out of their monotonous course deliberations at the preliminary disarmament conference of the League of Nations which is still in session here and regarded with indifference by the press.

Behrens, the Russian delegate, who hitherto had been silent, put forth a demand which he said the soviet government was unable to make at the limitations of armaments conference at Washington, not having been invited by the United States to send representation. He demanded for Russia a warship tonnage of at least 400,000.

Behrens said that this was a modest request, as, rightly, Russia shoudld have half a million, considering the huge extent of her territory, washed by no less than four seas.

Two Bombshells.

Delivered in the soft voice of the Moscovite diplomat in perfect French, Behrens' statement had a bombshell effect on the assembly. The Baltic delegates immediately objected to this tonnage. In reply, the Russian pointed out that Sweden, Norway, Holland and Denmark had fleets larger proportionately than the tonnage his country was demanding. The incident was closed when the Assembly referred the demnad to League headquarters. But delegaes believe it will have a far-reaching effect at the next plenary meeting of the League.

The next explosion was the demand of the Latin-American republics that the big Powers should not cease reduction of tonnage with the present figures fixed, but should consider the need of further reductions within the next five years. This has strained the nerves of the delegates of the big Powers, who declare that the demand is impossible to satisfy.

To the further amazement of the Assembly, the Spanish delegate arose and declared full agreement with this demand.

This incident was likewise referred to the Geneva conference, amid much tense comment from all points of view.

"Hard Facts."

Behrens, in an interview, declined to comment on the session in which he electrified his colleagues, but pointed out the immense importance to Russia of a big fleet, which she had not had since the war. A fact that further alarms the big naval delegates is that Russia's ships would be built in Germany.

"When the matter was discussed at Washington, the technical question of reduction was based on diplomatic ones," said Behrens. "Here we are discussing it on purely technical grounds, which, naturally, changes the entire method. Washington based the settlement of tonnage on guarantees, but now we must be more strict than we could have been at Washington had we been present. Under the guarantees of the big Powers, we might have consented to a tonnage of 300,000, since those guarantees would have givec that figure the value of half a million.

"Logically, our place is among the big naval Powers, and, without any naval guarantees at all, we must face hard facts and act accordingly."

YOUTHS IN AUTO THAT KILLED MAN NOV. 4 ARRESTED ON TIP

Three Confess When Police Act on Anonymous Telephone Message.

An anonymous telephone tip to the Carondelet district police station last week resulted yesterday in arrest of three young men who have confessed, detectives say, that they were in the automobile which on Nov. 4 last ran down and killed James M. Russell, 62, 2758 Armand place, at Jefferson and Ann avenues.

Russell was hit at dusk by a machine which dragged him 50 feet and then went rapidly west on Ann avenue. It was described meagerly as a Ford with a truck body, and the police had given up the search when the tip came. The informer stated briefly that the car which killed Russell was in the garage behind the home of George Rathert, 19, 3218 Iowa avenue.

Detectives found a Ford roadster in Rathert's garage. Questioned, Rathert admitted it was the car which killed Russell. Fred J. Koester, 21, 4629 Michigan avenue, was driving it, and he and Bernard Krekemeyer, 16, 3213 Neosho street, were passengers, he said. Arrested, the others confirmed Rathert's story. Rathert and Koester were in the hauling business, they said, and used a truck body. Russell steped from behind another machine and was hit. Koester was afraid and drove on. Krekemeyer later got out and went home, and Koester drove to Rather's garage where they changed the body of the car to its present form.

The three youths are held for the Coroner, suspected of manslaughter.

CARTER GETS MORE TIME

CAIRO, Feb. 23.—The mixed courts this afternoon adjourned until Tuesday to give Howard Carter's counsel time to prepare arguments answering the objections of the Government lawyers that the application for a writ against the Government to prevent it from interfering with Carter's work at Tutankhamen's tomb, named Carter and not Lady Carnarvon, whereas the laws requires citation of the principal and not of the agent.

SPAIN OUT OF ARMS MEETING

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 23.—Failure of agreement on tonnage caused a serious break in the disarmament conference, when in open session this afternoon it was announced that Spain would withdraw from official participation. She will retain a delegate in the conference merely as an observer.

The question of Spain's tonnage was discussed at length, but the Spanish delegate, Vice Admiral de Magaz, adhered to his Government's figures, which the conference voted were too high. What the figures were could not be learned, owing to the secrecy which the conferees maintain.

Chile, too, suffered a slight shock when she asked for an additional carrier. Capt. Schroeder, the Chilean delegate, fought for one plane carrier more than one-third of the amount of capital ships, as provided, but his proposal was rejected.

"Welcome," remarked one of the observers as the Spanish delegate joined that circle. "There will be more observers than delegates soon."

The members of the naval conference spent the entire session discussing the articles to be submitted to the various Governments. The final draft of the proposals has not been completed. A committee was appointed to draw up the final documents for consideration Monday.

The delegates decline to issue a statement, saying it will be forthcoming only when all the proposals are finally passed.

The meeting throughout has been characterized by disagreements. Some of the delegates declare that while many things have been accomplished, the conflicting interests of the nations make an accord difficult, because each nation's attitude influences the others, particularly those on adjacent waters.

POLICE TAKE BURGLAR AFTER FIGHT ON ROOF

Loot Worth $600 Found on Negro Identified by Saloon Proprietor.

The annual Police Circus is coming to town soon and advertising space in the circus program is being solicited by special details of police in a citywide canvass. Patrolmen Edward Brennan and Thomas Moran of the Dayton Street District, were so engaged yesterday when a burglar crossed their way.

The policemen, armed but not in uniform, were at Twenty-third street and Franklin avenue when shouts and screams emanated from a house at 2236 Franklin. Immediately a negro, pursued by a white man, dashed into the street. The latter was shouting something about being robbed, so the police fired at the negro, whereupon the negro turned about and dashed back up the stairs.

Arriving at the third floor, the negro changed from stairs to a ladder and gained the roof. Policeman Brennan followed him to the roof and an ensuing fight ended with the negro being taken to City Hospital to be treated for scalp lacerations. He identified himself as Robert Hunt, 30 years old.

The white man was Sam Simovich, who has a saloon on the first floor at that address and lives on the third. He said he caught the negro ransacking his rooms and attempted to capture him. The intruder bit Simovich on the right hand and fled to the street, where the policemen's attention was attracted.

Jewelry and other goods valued at $600 was found on Hunt. Simovich said it was his property, and had been stolen. Hunt is being held.

"BOOTLEGGING COP" RESIGNS, STILL FACES COURT ACTION

Lawrence Doran, 26 Years on Force, Tenders His Resignation in Person.

Patrolman Lawrence Doran, known as "the bootlegging cop" since his arrest last Thursday after he had sold a police informer a half pint of whisky, yesterday tendered his resignation in person to Police Inspector Vasey. It was accepted.

Doran had been on the force 26 years and had never been involved in serious trouble until a few days ago. A friend of President Brockman asked the Police Board and "Why don't you arrest that bootlegging cop at 5205 Enright avenue? He's been selling booze to my laborers on a contract job up the street."

Brockman said that was news to him, and directed that another policeman dressed as a laborer get evidence, which he did, purchasing the bottle with two marked $1 bills.

Doran was to have been tried on charges of unbecoming conduct before the Police Board but his resignation makes that unnecessary. He still faces trial on a charge of selling liquor.

PUBLIC ASKED TO HELP EXPEDITE LETTER DELIVERIES

Suggestions for Better Mailing Week Include Plea for Legible and Accurate Addresses.

In connection with the local and national observance of Better Mailing week, the public is asked to heed the following suggestions:

Start right by seeing that all mail bears legible, accurate and complete addresses, return addresses and full postage.

Write names of addressees in full, as frequently two or more patrons of the same postoffice have identical initials and last names. Avoid abbreviations of names of states where confusion is likely to result.

Prepayment of postage in full expedites dispatch and delivery and prevents annoyance to all concerned. Use a single postage stamp whenever possible. Use of many stamps of small denominations when one stamp of a larger denomination would answer the same purpose makes more work for the postal service and increases the cost of manufacture to the Government.

Letterheads and other stationery as well as advertisements in newspapers, magazines, periodicals, etc., should bear the full address of the individual or advertiser.

WOUNDED SENATOR BETTER

Greene's Chances to Recover Improves, Doctor Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Gradual improvement in the condition of Senator Frank L. Greene of Vermont today gave ground for hope of his ultimate recovery from the wound caused by a stray shot in a skirmish between prohibition officers and alleged bootleggers last week.

In the absence of infection, the taking of nourishment and a slight, although appreciable clearing up of the paralysis of the Senator's right side. Dr. Thomas Linville, his physician, declared that the patient gave more promise of recovery than at any previous time. Capt. Richard L. Greene, son of the Senator who is an army officer and had been ordered to the Philippines, was recalled from California to his father's bedside and reached Washington today.

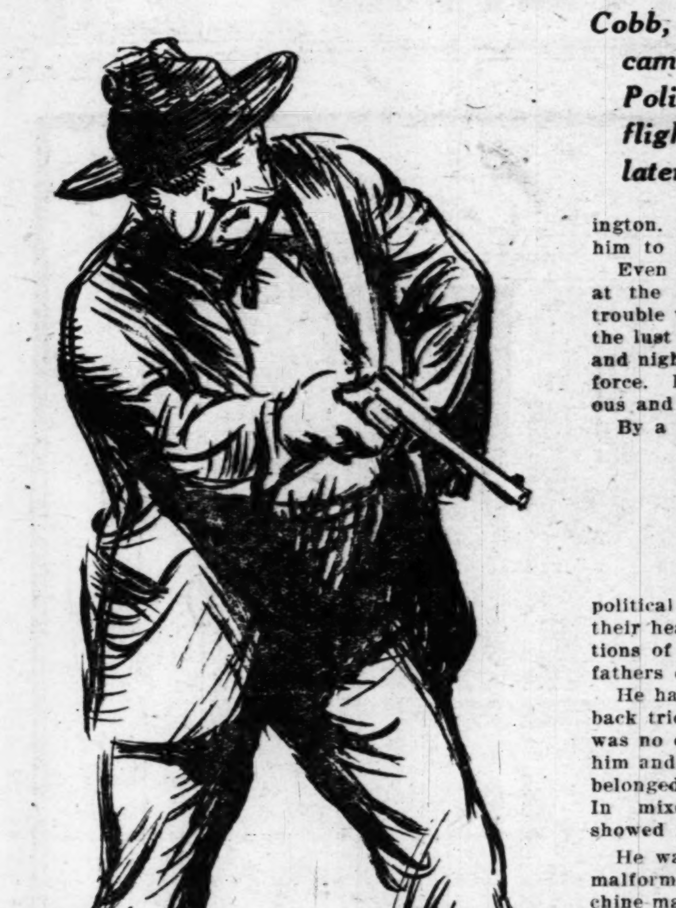
THRILLERS IN REAL LIFE

TOLD BY IRVIN S. COBB

Cobb, who helped to bear the mortally wounded William Goebel to a hotel, came near being shot himself as he ran by a "short cut" to victim's aid—Policeman aimed revolver at him twice, thinking he was the murderer in flight, but Cobb did not know about his narrow escape until three months later—A melodramatic chapter in American political history :: ::



"I said to myself: 'That must be the fellow that did the shootin'.' So I drew a bead on him."

WHEN THE GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY WAS ASSASSINATED.

This is the third in a series of six feature articles by Irvin S. Cobb, in which the well-known newspaper man, story writer and humorist describes some of his most interesting experiences. Two of the articles already have appeared in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine. Dramatic in themselves, these stories are true, and Mr. Cobb tells them graphically.

THE end of my third year in the metropolis of the State of Kentucky found me covering all the big political stories that broke loose—they broke frequently in that State, where politics is the main diversion of the male populace—and between times I was doing a column of jingles and supposedly humorous paragraphs.

There was a period, though, of many months on end when there was mighty little time for running a humorous column—I was too busy following the political fortunes and the last days on earth of State Senator William Goebel, that son of a Pennsylvania German, whose ambitions and whose death—and the manner of it—practically plunged Kentucky into civil war.

He was a Napoleon of politics if ever one lived. He had audacity, ruthlessness, a genius of leadership, an instinct for absolute despotism, a gift for organization, a perfect disregard for other men's rights or lives where his own wishes were concerned; the brain to plan and the will to execute. He had devoted followers by the thousand, and hundreds called him their friend, but I do not believe any living creature ever read the inside of that dark and lonely soul of his.

Had he lived, I am firmly convinced he either would have ruled the Democratic party in the nation or he would have wrecked it. He loved power as drunkards love their bottle and he would have waded through blood up to his armpits to have his way.

One man—Col. John Sanford—stood in his path and Goebel shot him to death in the streets of Covington. Sanford tried to draw, but Goebel beat him to it.

Even so, there is no doubt but that Goebel aimed at the ultimate betterment of plain people; the trouble was that his good motives were tinctured by the lust for authority which gnawed at the man day and night, making him a malignant and a dangerous force. In Southern public life he loomed as a curious and an alien pinnacle.

By a great many of the members of the old political oligarchy of the State—which finally he overthrew—he was called an intruder and an interloper and a presumptuous, ill-mannered upstart. They dubbed him "poor white trash."

They hated him piously. They had reason to—he brought their century-old political aristocracy smashing down in ruins about their heads, and did it, too, while defying all traditions of office-seeking and office-holding which the fathers of the faith had built up.

He had none of the hand-shaking, pat-'em-on-the-back tricks of the typical Kentucky job hunter. He was no orator—another point of difference between him and the run of our reigning political class. He belonged to no old family. He had no social graces. In mixed company he was embarrassed and showed it.

He was cold and secluded, an aloof figure and a malformed one, a machine politician with a machine-made personality.

He had lieutenants to do his bidding. But in Goebel's camp there was only one commander—and that was Goebel.

When I first knew him he was a State Senator and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. By trick and device, by main strength and brutal force, he wrested the nomination from a hostile convention and split the party wide open.

At the election, on the face of the returns, he was defeated by a Republican whose candidacy had been backed by a great number of disgruntled Democrats. He contested the result before the General Assembly and was about to be seated when an assassin shot him down from a window of the executive building on the old Statehouse Square at Frankfort. He lingered five days—long enough to take the oath of office as Governor—and then, dying, left a malign legacy to his State, the active seeds of a political feud which, after the lapse of more than a score of years, have not quit sprouting.

I heard the shot that felled him on a cold January morning of 1900, and, hearing it, I ran out of the legislative hall and was one of those who helped to carry the stricken man away. From the men who had been with him when he dropped I got the hurried details while we were bearing him those three blocks through the street to the old Capitol Hotel, and rushed them over the wire to my paper. I covered the captures, under exciting circumstances, of several of the men accused of confederating to murder Goebel, and I covered the first trials of three of these alleged conspirators—Caleb Powers, Henry Youtsey and James Howard.

There were many distinctly thrilling moments in covering the Goebel story. Some three months after he was shot a group of us one afternoon were sitting in front of the telegraph office discussing—as usual—the crime in one or another of its phases. A member of the Frankfort police force, a fat, good-natured man named Wingate, joined us. The talk eddied back to the day of the assassination. Each of us told what he did that crowded morning. My turn presently came. I said:

"I was in the washroom on the first floor back of the library. I had just taken my coat off and rolled up my sleeves preparatory to washing my hands when I heard the shots.

"Bareheaded and leaving my coat behind, I ran out of the side door to see what had happened. Three men had picked up Goebel and were hurrying with him toward the main gate.

"I remembered where there was a picket out of the fence about half way up the block toward the corner of the square. So I took a cross cut. I ran diagonally across the lawn, passing just under the windows of the executive building, and squeezed through that gap in the panel and was out in the street just as the men with Goebel in their arms reached that point. That was where I joined them and"——

"Say," broke in Policeman Wingate. "Say, listen: Now I know who the fellow was I come so blamed near takin' a few wing-shots at! Me, I came out of the front door less than half a minute after the shootin'. I knew already who it was that was shot.

"As I came out on the porch the first thing I saw was a long-legged fellow, in his shirtsleeves, and no hat on, with his hair flying out behind him, tearin' across the yard. It looked to me like he was trying to get away from there as quick as he could. I said to myself: 'That must the fellow that did the shootin'.' So I drew a bead on him. Somebody ran against me by accident and knocked my arm up. I pulled down again and was just about to let go when a Representative grabbed holt of me and said: 'Hold on; don't shoot. I know that man.' Before I could ask him who the man was he'd darted away and then when I looked again I couldn't see the bare-headed fellow any more. And now, by gum, I find out it was you I came so near pluggin' away at. All this time I've been wonderin' in my own mind who the devil that long-legged man was. Say, boy, I'm right glad I didn't shoot you that d

I was right glad, too.

"I'VE MADE ENOUGH MONEY—THE BUSINESS IS YOURS!"

The extraordinary series of gifts by which heads of big firms have handed over those concerns to employes or to junior partners—One was a million-dollar business, another was valued at two millions—"Money! It's junk after you get so much," explains manufacturer of handkerchiefs — Three of these princely presents announced in one month :: :: ::

By NUNNALLY JOHNSON.

YOU may picture the scene: the boss standing behind his desk, a group of curious and puzzled employes or associates crowding into the office, an air of expectancy.

The boss speaks:

"Boys, I make you a present of this business. It has been a very good business; it has made a million dollars for me. It is itself worth probably another million. But I am through. You who have worked with me to establish it, have earned more than you have received. I take this opportunity of paying you in full; the whole shebang is yours. Goodby."

Ten years ago one of the stronger members of the group would have seized the boss quietly but firmly while others ran for ambulances and straitjackets. Ten minutes later the boss would have been in a padded cell and people would have been throwing daffodils to him.

Today, though, it wouldn't be unusual. It is a kind of fever, a fever which ravishes a business man of his business and fortune. Nothing will do but that he must give everything away, not to homes for consumptives, cripples and other unfortunates, but to the men who helped him build it.

Within one month three prosperous New York business men have succumbed to this fever. Combined, the businesses they have given away are worth millions. There were no strings attached, nothing to mar the perfection of the gift. It is the new kind of philanthropy.

J. Louis Guyon, Chicago, and some of the 10 employes to each of whom he will present a $150,000 apartment building, when structures now under construction are completed. Guyon advanced the money for land and construction, and the employes will repay him at their convenience out of the rents. —From Wide World Photos.

John Borg, New York, who turned over his brokerage business to three junior partners after he had made $2,000,000.

I. C. Herman, manufacturer of handkerchiefs at New York, and the two employes to whom he gave his $2,000,000 business, declaring that he had enough money. —International Newsreel Photo.

It would have been impossible a few years ago. Fathers saved their businesses for their heirs. The heirs today are making their own fortunes. In a similar instance of this kind, less than a year ago, a son was partner in the business and consequently one of the donors of the fortune to the employes.

The month's list consists of:

H. B. Rubin, clothing manufacturer, who gave his million-dollar business to three of his fellow workers.

I. C. Herman, twin brother of Al H. Woods, the theatrical producer; manufacturer of handkerchiefs and piece goods, who gave away his $2,000,000 business to two employes.

John Borg, prominent curb broker, who turned his brokerage house over to three junior members of the firm after he had made $2,000,000 out of it.

In Chicago, J. Louis Guyon repaid 10 of his employes in a fashion characteristic of this open-hearted commercial age. Not so long ago Guyon was pretty near the bottom, financially speaking. The chances were that he could not pull through. Ten of his employes stepped in. They turned over their savings to him to help pull him out of a hole.

Last week Guyon reached the top again. The help had done its work. Grateful for their confidence and faith in him, Guyon will give each of the 10 employes a 30-flat apartment house, each worth $150,000—a total donation of $1,500,000.

Herman, head of I. C. Herman & Co., turned his business over to Irving S. Rosoff, 25, who started working for him eight years ago at $6 a week, and

Everybody His Own Telephone Operator

The young women who now say "Number, please," will be supplanted by automatic apparatus in St. Louis, when the system of machine switching is installed — Then a subscriber won't "call" his number, he will "dial" it, and the equipment will get him exactly the station he asks for, even if it is the wrong one—Why no discharging of operators will be necessary as a result of the change :: :: :: ::

ST. LOUIS must bid farewell to the affable young person at the other end of the wire who says, "Number, please." The parting will not take place for about two years, and then only part of the total number of stations (individual telephones) will be affected, at first. But already, preparations for this change in St. Louis telephone service are under way.

Machine switching is what they call it—this new system in which a lettered and numbered dial upon the patron's phone, and some quite marvelous machinery in the exchanges combine to render unnecessary almost all of those patient young women, the present operators. However, the young women are not going to be turned out to make room for the machines, as will be explained later.

Although a slightly faster service has been the result, in cities now using the system of machine switching, perhaps even the grumpiest users of telephones will view the contemplated change with regret. It certainly does take all the romance, or the human element if you prefer that phrase, out of telephoning.

Instead of telling your number to a young person who is affable even though impersonal, you will tell it to a machine. If you have troubles to relate, you must tell them to yourself, for the machine switching, or automatic, system cannot understand anything but numbers.

But the new system does understand numbers and gets just the number called for, unless the desired station happens to be busy. Thus, a subscriber who absent-mindedly calls for "Main 50,000" when he really wants "Olive 50,000" will most assuredly get the former. And he will have only himself to blame—which, of course, will be much more exasperating.

That little business of scolding the operator because she "misunderstood" (and wasn't a mind-reader) will have to end. Every man his own telephone operator! It would be interesting to know what increase in "wrong numbers" will occur when the telephoning public takes over the duties of the operators.

Along with the telephone girls will go that old expression—to "call" a number. Under the new system, the phone user "dials" his number. And as the user "dials," just so will his station be connected with other stations. When he "dials" a wrong number, he gets that number. If anybody is asleep, or half-witted, or should go to the doctor, it is himself. He is the operator.

Alike to the man who scolds, the one who jollies and the one who tries to be cute, this outlet for his feelings will be closed. He deals with nothing but a dial, which, with the equipment at the Main, Olive or other office, is impersonally but alertly ready to give him whatever number he asks for.

At first glance, the method of "dialing" looks rather complicated, but it's really very simple. With a little explanation, and a little practice, anybody can operate the dial. It would not be surprising if children did more telephoning than they used to, just for the fun of manipulating the dial. It makes a nice plaything. And as for the dignified business man who habitually twiddles a pencil or a paperweight, as he talks, ponders, loafs——

A typical substation dial, such as the one illustrated on this page, has 10 circular white spaces arranged around it, near the rim. Above the face of the dial, and easily rotated, is a finger wheel with circular openings which correspond with the white spaces. Thus, the black letters and figures printed on the white spaces are all visible when the finger wheel is at rest. Attached to one side of the dial, and raised far enough above the finger wheel not to interfere with its rotation, is a finger stop.

The process of "dialing" a number, which will replace the familiar way of telling a young woman at the exchange what number you want, depends upon the telephone user's own care in choosing the right letters and numbers, in the proper order.

Not all the details as to telephone numbers under the new system here have been worked out, but if that future directory should contain such a number as M-ain 4321, the process of dialing would be as follows:

First, take off the receiver and place it to the ear, being careful not to "jiggle" the hook, then listen for what is called the "dialing tone." This is a clear, steady, humming sound which can be heard as soon as the equipment is ready for your call. Usually it will come on at once, or within a few seconds.

Second, place the index finger of the other hand firmly in the opening above the white space where the letter M shows, then rotate the dial to the right, firmly and evenly, until your finger touches the finger stop.

Third, remove your finger from the hole and, without touching the finger wheel, let it rotate back and come to rest in its original position.

Fourth, in the same way dial the figure 4, then the figure 3, and so on, until the entire station number, M-ain 4321, has been dialed. Or, if the number should stand in the directory as MA-in 4321, first the letter M and then the letter A would be dialed, before treating in the same way the separate figures, 4, 3, 2 and 1.

And when this procedure has been carefully followed through, the bell of Station M-ain 4321 automatically begins ringing. Or if the dialed station is "busy," the "buzz-buzz-buzz" so familiar now will be heard.

If the called station is out of order, a signal will be shown in the office, as telephone workers call the local exchanges, and the voice of a young woman (for some operators always will be necessary, even when a manual board has been replaced with one of the machine switching type), will so inform the person who is dialing that number. There will be provision also for dialing "chief operator" or "information," so that with mechanical switching not quite all contact is lost between telephone and a human operator.

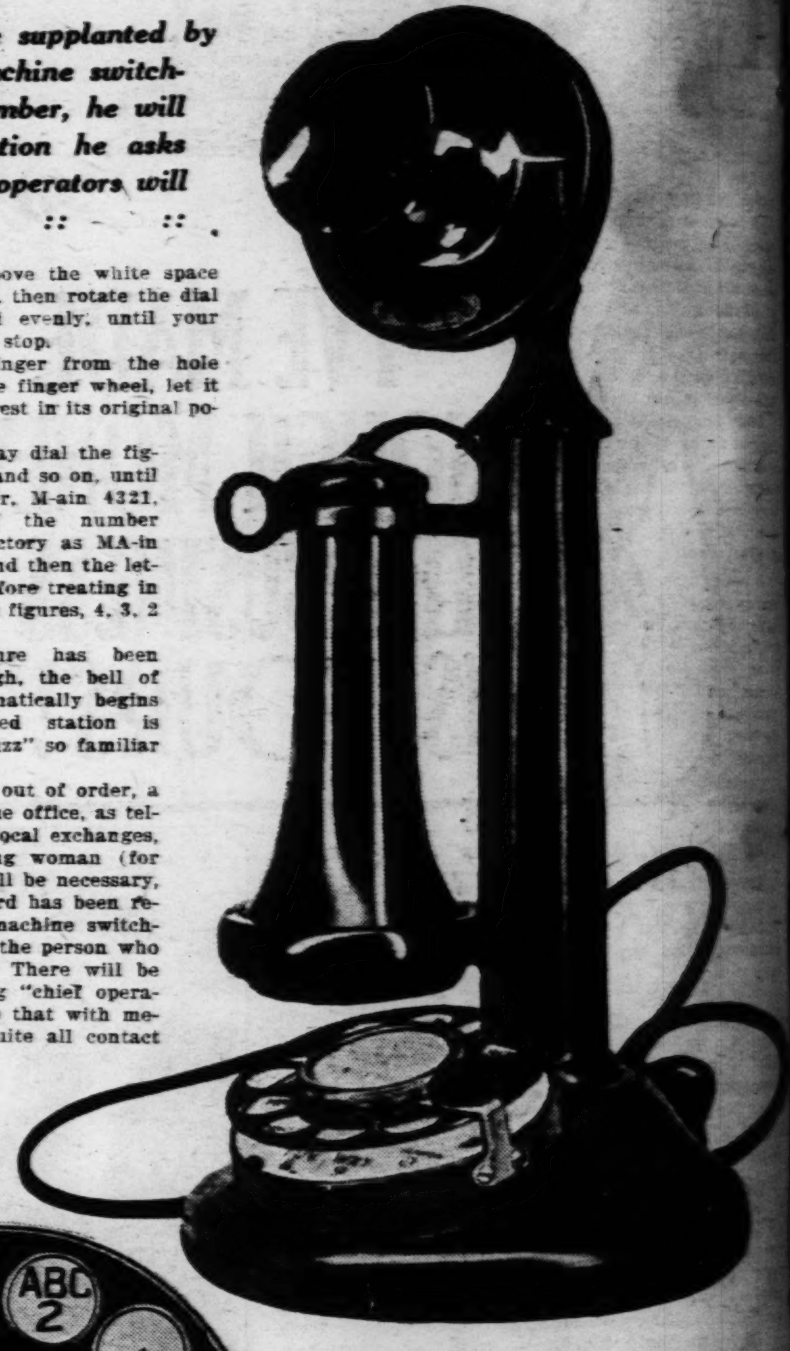
"But," one may object, "it's all very well to say that in the system of mechanical switching the telephoning public will tell its numbers to the dial instead of to the operator. Now, just how does the system work?"

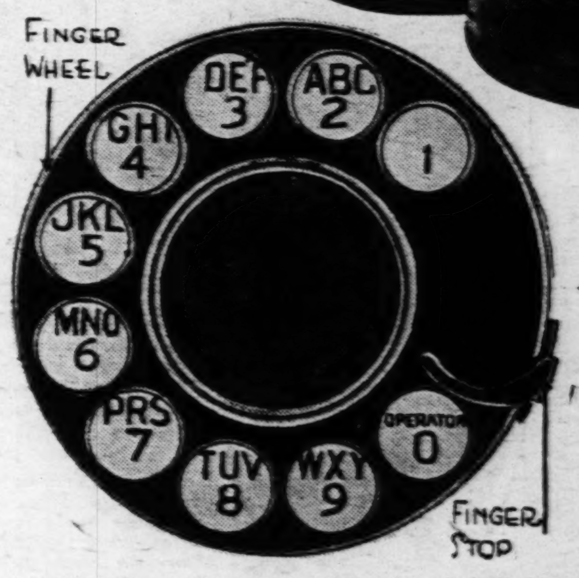
Stripped of all the technical terms which would be needful in a thorough, scientific explanation of mechanical switching, here is a brief description of what occurs when a telephone patron dials a number, and how he gets it.

After the subscriber has heard the "dialing tone," he dials his number in the manner already described. As he does this dialing, the interruptions in an electrical circuit which are made by the operation of the dial are stored up in a part of the mechanical equipment at the office (local exchange). This corresponds to speaking the words to an operator.

The equipment then translates these dial "pulses" to the connecting mechanism, where they cause little metal fingers to pass over long rows of terminals, one for each of the stations served from that office. The fingers pick out the correct wire over which the call is to be completed. And when the connection has thus been made to the called station, the bell of the latter station rings automatically.

The fingers fly rapidly up and down panels in the office, choose the proper terminals without a moment's hesitation and the connection thus secured is maintained until one of the communicating stations hangs up the receiver. The speed and accuracy of the fingers at work make it an uncanny [illegible] a beholder unversed in telephone lore.





Above, an ordinary desk phone equipped [illegible] dial which subscribers will use in getting [illegible] nections with other stations, now obtained [illegible] ing the number of a station to an operator. [illegible] close-up view of the dial. By turning [illegible] wheel to the right, as far as the finger [illegible] subscriber dials the letters and figures, [illegible] of the desired station.

There are two principal reasons why, [illegible] the fast-moving metal fingers will replace [illegible] petent flesh-and-blood fingers of girls, [illegible] be no discharging of operators as a [illegible] change to machine switching. These [illegible] the large normal "turn-over" of employes [illegible] and the continual expansion of the telephone [illegible] try.

As already stated, the installation of the [illegible] switching system is to be made gradually, [illegible] many operators resign for various reasons [illegible] will be just a case of not replacing them, [illegible] ing necessary new employes upon a temporary [illegible] clearly understood by them at the time [illegible] cept the positions.

Should there, however, be a surplus of [illegible] due to installation of machine switching, [illegible] be given employment in other departments, [illegible] long distance or information, the auditing [illegible] ment of the company, etc.

At Topeka, Kan., when the change was [illegible] midnight from manual switchboards to [illegible] of the 300 operators all of the permanent [illegible] but three were immediately provided with [illegible] sitions, and in fact those surplus three were [illegible] care of, with specially created jobs.

How the plan works out upon a large [illegible] shown by the New York metropolitan area, [illegible] now has more than 25,000 operators, and [illegible] years will have more than 35,000. J. F. The Hole

I LOOKED carefully at the girl as I went up the stairway. I must have delayed my companion behind me, for I went slowly and with the wish to retain every detail of this picture. It was so conspicuously in life what I had heard of these Americans: this idle, decadent breed of women; soft, steeped in luxury, and useless.

The girl sat in the hotel drawing room, visible from the staircase.

It was early in the afternoon. The place was nearly deserted. The hunting folk, assembled here in Somerset, were all at a distant meet of the hounds at Haddon; in the saddle from dawn and until the night should fall. But this soft creature sat in a great chair piled up with cushions; and an immense American motor awaited her outside.

The fur coat thrown open among the cushions of the chair must have cost a fortune; the smart gown was from a Paris shop on the Rue de la Paix; the very Pekinese dog in the hollow of her arm was worth the price of a polo pony at Tattersall's.

It wasn't so much these evidences of luxury that impressed me. One may have the best, if one is able. It was the conspicuous effect of these things on their possessor. The girl was quite young, about 20, I imagine; a blonde, slender and dainty. For a doll she was perfect; but for any mortal use as a woman she was an absurdity.

I broke out with what I thought when we were in my sitting room on the floor above.

"Did you see that girl, Barclay?"

The big man turned about and looked at me with a rather strange expression; I thought he was going to make some comment. But he evidently decided to reserve it.

"Yes, Sir James. Do you know who she is?"

"I know what she is," I replied; "she's a hothouse orchid, and about as useful in the world as the Pekinese dog in her lap."

Barclay squinted at me. He is a big man, with a face wrinkled by the tropics.

"Don't be deceived about the Pekinese dog, Sir James," he said. "The Pekinese dog's all right. He's kept in every shop in China to warn against thieves—you can't slip in on a Pekinese dog."

"Dash the dog!" I replied. "It's the girl I mean; of what earthly use could such a soft creature be to anybody?"

Barclay looked down at me. I thought the strange expression on his face was even more peculiar.

"A silk rope looks soft," he said, "and it is soft; but it's the strongest rope there is."

"I don't know what bally rubbish you're talking," I replied; "but I know you're all right, or Marquis wouldn't have taken you into Africa with him. Marquis is no fool if he is chief of the Criminal Investigation Department of Scotland Yard. And he wouldn't write me now to take you on this expedition."

"I'm pretty good stuff for such a job, Sir James," he went on; "but I'm not the best stuff for it."

I suppose I looked a bit puzzled at this, and Barclay saw it.

"I'm pretty good stuff for such a job, Sir James," he went on; "but I'm not the best stuff for it."

I suppose I looked a bit puzzled at this, and Barclay saw it.

He turned and went over beyond our big table, which was covered with maps. I think we had assembled every map in existence on Central Africa. I meant to have a year's big-game hunting in the heart of that continent. When I wrote Marquis for a man, he indicated Barclay; and I had him down here at this hotel in Somerset to plan out the route.

Barclay sat down in a chair beyond the table. But he wasn't thinking of the maps.

"Do you know," he said, "why Sir Henry Marquis went into Central Africa?"

"After young Winton, wasn't he?" I replied. "He'd taken a shot at his uncle, old Brexford, and got out of the country, as I remember. I suppose Marquis thought the reputation of Scotland Yard was at stake. Had to find Winton, you know. Did you find him?"

Barclay got up, spread out one of the maps and put his finger on a point on it.

"We found him right here, on this plateau on the old elephant trail. But if we'd been a little later we'd never found him. If he'd got into that immense forest to the south, he'd been out of Marquis' reach. Our expedition was fagged; I had a touch of the sun. We couldn't have gone on."

The man's voice grew firm.

"You have got to keep the sun out of your face; a helmet and a spine pad aren't enough—the open road to the brain, for a sun's ray, is through the eye and the sponge bones of the face."

He made a sort of bob of the head downward toward the drawing room. "Ever see this girl before, Sir James?"

"Used to see her at polo at Hurlingham," I replied, "on the days Rugby played. This young Winton was on the team—wanted to marry her, didn't he? Wasn't that the row with old Brexford?"

"Yes," Barclay said. "It all started from that. Brexford hated Americans; wouldn't hear of it; went into a devil's fury; stopped at nothing."

"So young Winton took a pot-shot at him, and cleared, eh?"

Barclay didn't seem to regard my comment. He went on in a sort of reflection: "But there was one thing I couldn't understand. Why didn't he take the girl with him—that is, I couldn't understand it at the time."

I laughed.

"I can understand it. She couldn't leave the cushions; she was too soft!"

Barclay was looking at me, his mouth open, a sort of vague wonder on his big, sun-seamed face.

The pose and the expression of the man annoyed me.

"What's wrong with you?" I said. "What are you gaping at?"

He was silent for some moments. He kept looking at me, in that sort of vague wonder from the floor up. Finally he spoke.

"How long have you been out of England, Sir James?"

"Two years," I replied. "In the Andes."

"Then you don't know what's happened."

"About young Winton? No. Marquis had got some rumor of him in Central Africa and was just starting out when I left. The grand jury in Hants had found an indictment against young Winton for assault with intent to murder; and the country had begun to howl—rich man's privilege—letting off the 'toff' and so forth. I suppose Marquis thought he had to get him. Marquis went down to Hants, himself, to see old Brexford, didn't he? And then the public clamor drove him on."

Barclay replied in a rather strange voice:

"Public clamor didn't drive Sir Henry Marquis. It was a sense of duty, a tremendous, compelling sense of duty—nothing less would have sent Sir Henry on that awful journey into the heart of Africa."

"Call it what you like," I said. "Marquis had no notion of going out of England until after he went to see old Brexford in Hants. That stirred up the hornets. The penny press said the uncle would smooth him down. Marquis had to go after that."

"But the uncle was the hottest hornet in the swarm; it was war to the death with him."

"He did die, didn't he?" I said. "I saw some notice of it in the ship's bulletin on the way south."

"Yes," replied Barclay, "he took to his bed the very day after Sir Henry Marquis visited him in Hants, and he never got up."

"Like an old man," I said; "adamant against the offending member of his family until it comes to the jail door, and then he goes soft."

Barclay looked again at me with that strange expression. But he did not speak. He moved the maps on the table until he found the one outlining Marquis' expedition. It had been enlarged and traced from Sir Henry Marquis' notes. It was not a printed map; Sir Henry had not made a published report of the expedition, because the Government had not borne the cost of it. I suppose Marquis financed it; he was rich and his reputation was at stake. It was his boast that Scotland Yard, while he was at the head of its Criminal Investigation Department, would not tire out on the track of any man.

Then Barclay put the query that I had been turning over in my mind:

"Do you know who put up the money for this expedition?"

I told him what I have written here—Marquis, of course.

"No," he said, "Sir Henry did not put up the money."

"Then who did?"

"The uncle," he replied; "old Brexford put it up."

I was astonished.

"Then he didn't go soft; he wanted young Winton brought out!"

Barclay replied in the same even voice.

"No," he said, "Brexford did not want him brought out."

He was smoothing the tracing with his hands, stooping over the table. He did not seem to notice my surprise. He would put the tip of his big finger

FOX HUNTING IN MISSOURI

A favorite form of the sport is for the huntsmen to stand on a hill top at night and listen to the yelping of dogs—They don't want the fox to be killed but to win his race with the pack, so that there may be other chases—There is even a traffic in young foxes, for whom holes are dug, with concrete-lined entrances, to furnish entertainment for years—Old hunters say the fox gets a lot of fun out of it :: :: :: :: :: ::

IF EVERYBODY in America could be asked to describe a fox hunt, the chances are that 90 per cent would depict it as a bunch of bob-tailed horses, with red-coated riders, leaping fences and ditches, following the hounds in a frantic rush to be in at the death. That is the fox hunt of screen and story, and in the East there are a dozen clubs where hunters ride to hounds.

But for every chase of that kind in America there are many fox hunts of another kind, in which the horse plays no part; where the hunters are farmers and people of small towns who ride with their hounds in motor cars to the meets, and, in place of gay red coats, the men are garbed in corduroy and canvas, the color of dead leaves on the ground; where, instead of following the hounds, the hunters wait and listen and trace the progress of the run by the mouthings of the dogs; and a fox is never killed, intentionally.

The baseball fan, or the man who rides to hounds, or shoots over dogs, or thrills to a horse race, may wonder where there is any sport in standing for hours listening to the yelping of a pack of hounds away off somewhere out of sight.

But a diversion that takes some hundreds of thousands of men and women out into the woods and fields that way, to endure the cold for hours at a stretch, and often for all night and far into the next day, without rest, must be a fascinating sport.

There are such fox races every day and night for eight months in the year, with groups of men listening, on hundreds of hill tops, all through the South and Middle West. In Missouri alone, are 20 associations of this class of fox hunters, with an aggregate membership of close to 2000. There are fully as many associations as that in Kentucky and Tennessee, and there are many in each state of the South, and in Texas, Oklahoma, Eastern Kansas and Nebraska, Southern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and there are scattering associations on up to and in the New England states.

The great bulk of fox hunters of this class are not members of an association. They are mostly farmers, with a few business men of the small towns, who keep a few hounds apiece, and as soon as the fall harvest is over, and the plowing well in hand they go at night, two or three or a dozen of them, with their dogs, in automobiles, to some lonely spot on a fox run, and there they "put the dogs in," build a fire and stand around it listening to the changing phases and music of the race.

There is no way of computing the number of these, but the editors of three different magazines devoted to this kind of fox hunting estimate that there are at least 100,000 of them. One of those magazines, The Red Ranger, is printed in the little village of Rushville, amongst the hills of Western Missouri. Its editor said it had a circulation of 10,000 copies and that 30,000 fox hunters read it every month. The other two magazines are printed in Oklahoma and in Kentucky.

A business man who is fond of a horse race asked a fox hunter: "What do you see in your kind of fox hunting? You never catch a fox."

"Your horses never catch anything in their races, either, do they?" parried the fox hunter.

"No, of course not; the fun of horse racing is in watching the horses run, in seeing a spirited, fine-lined, graceful animal straining every nerve and muscle to forge ahead and win. We follow every move."

"And so do we," answered the fox hunter. "We don't see it with our eyes, but we hear it, and we follow each move by sound as plainly as if it were all in sight. Each man knows the mouth of his own hound, and of every other dog in the race; he knows by the mouthing of the hounds which is closest to the fox, when they have found it again. The dogs talk at every jump.

"Say, man, if you've never turned your back to a bed of red coals out on a hillside, under the stars, and peered out into the vast mystery of the quiet night, when sounds carried far, and listened to the music of that contest of speed and endurance and cunning between a wily old fox and a bunch of hounds, you've missed a heap of living. There never was a band in all this world made such pretty music as that."

I have seen 2000 persons at that meet, quartered in two lines of tents a fourth of a mile long, with a broad green avenue between, where fox hunters lounged all day, and warmed themselves all night at great crackling bonfires, and swapped wonderful stories of the hunt.

Men were there from the Western prairie and mountain and coast country, beyond the range of the red fox; and there were men and hounds from all the red fox country that stretches from Texas and Missouri east to the Atlantic.

The camp is far from a railroad and men and dogs come in motor cars, the dogs in crates and wire cages on trucks or strapped to the running board. Some of the best fox hounds in America are owned in that section of Missouri, dogs whose ancestry goes back untainted to the colonial days of Maryland and Virginia, when almost every planter had his kennel of English foxhounds.

The first night of this meet, early last October, a fleet of flivvers, with a hundred men and nine picked derby dogs, drove from this camp out five miles, and the dogs were loosed near a timbered draw in which it was known ranged a wary old fox that would lead the dogs a long chase. Julie, a hound that had been running foxes for 10 years, was put in with the young hounds to lead them and teach them tricks of fox hunting.

We stood on a hill top in the road, listening. For 20 minutes there was no sound; then there was the barking of a dog down in a jungled hollow.

"That's your pup, Bill, after a rabbit," said one of the listening hunters.

Now, one of the worst things to be said of a fox hound is that it will go off after a rabbit. Nothing, not even a likely rabbit, can divert the attention of a good dog when he is beating the brush, nosing everywhere for the scent of a fox track. He knows what is expected of him, that his master is back there on the hill, waiting for him to strike a trail and to broadcast the news of it with a joyful trumpet blast, and he drives on, hurriedly, making quick rushes this way and that, with nose close to the ground.

A pack of experienced foxhounds may be cast loose in a strange place, and they seem to know instantly the exact spot in all that landscape most promising for a fox trail, and they will head for it, at full speed, and spread out, fanlike, and nose it all over, and if there is no fox they will return to camp in due time; but if a fox has crossed there within several hours they will find his track, and then, by some mysterious instinct, they will find out in which direction that fox was going.

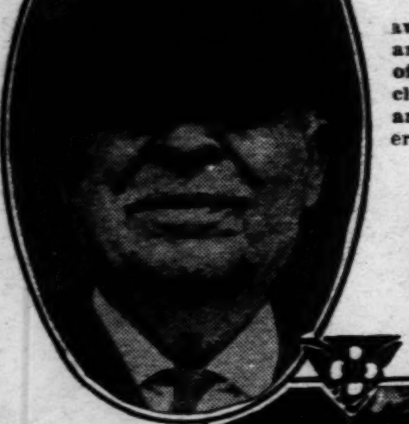
That is called "working it out." I have never found a fox hunter who knew, for a surety, how the dogs did that. It is not by marks of claws or feet on the ground, for they will do it when the ground is dry as a bone and there is not even the faintest mark. Many believe it is by such a fine sense of smell that it can discern the infinitesimal difference in strength of scent between the fore part of the track, where the foot hit the ground first and remained longest pressed to it, and the rear part, where the foot touched the earth for the shortest time, and with the least pressure.

Many hunters believe the dog determines the course of the fox by the position of the four tracks on the ground, in the same way one may learn from its tracks in the snow, in what direction a rabbit has gone.

Hunters tell how a dog, finding a cold fox track, will sometimes work on it for as long as 15 or 30 minutes, putting his nose first into one track, then nuzzling around till he finds another track, and so on until he finds where all four feet touched the ground; and he will go back and forth on it, and finally determine which way the fox was traveling, and then, sure that the fox is ahead of him, he announces that discovery to the other dogs in a call for them to follow him, and away he goes.

We heard a call of that kind within 40 minutes after we had put the dogs in that night. It came from off in the timber nearly a mile away, a long, clear, decisive yelping. It was Julie, the old hound. She had struck the trail of a fox, had found its direction and was off on it, and was calling to the other dogs to close in. They understood her cry, and they answered it from different points, and soon they were all running together and mouthing in chorus, with Julie in the lead.

The fox may be a mile or more away when the dog strikes the trail, and at first they follow the scent of his footpads, running with noses close to earth. As they get closer, and the scent of the trail is fresher, they become more excited, and you can read that note in their cry; and when they come to where the fox "jumped up" at the sound of them and started away, the scent is stronger, and the dogs are more certain, and the chorus of their tonguing has a more confident note in it.



Ex-Governor A. A. Taylor of Tennessee, honorary life President of the Tennessee Fox Hunting Association. He owns the famous foxhound, "Old Limber," often mentioned by the Governor in political speeches.

As the running fox becomes warm the scent of his body becomes stronger, and it clings to the weeds and grasses and brush that his body touched, and from then on the dogs run with heads up, the scent coming to them in the air; and when the race settles down, and the fox is running steadily from 50 to 100 yards ahead, his body scent fills the air, and he is easily trailed.

I had an example of that once in a hunt in the Ozark hills of Arkansas. I was lying on the ground, near a fire, with my head on a log and my feet stretched out, when the chase came up over that hill and the fox ran so close to my feet that I smelled him plainly as he passed.

We stood listening to old Julie and the pack, mouthing together as they ran, when suddenly there came a louder chorus of yelping, with a new note in it, and the listeners caught it, instantly.

"They've jumped him," several exclaimed at once.

"What do you mean, 'jumped him'?" asked a novice in the crowd.

"Can't you tell? Listen to that mouthing now," replied an old hunter.

There had been a peevish, querulous note in their yelping while on the cold trail, as if they were impatient to close in on the fox. Now they had come to where the fox had just been, the scent was strong there, the trail was warm, they knew for a certainty that the fox was not far ahead, and they broke into a long, deep, blood-stirring cry that came across the night quivering with exultation and challenge, filling the valleys and rolling over the hills.

That cry was like a trumpet call to the listening group on the hill top. It thrilled them. They leaped to better points for hearing, on car hoods and running boards.

"That's old Julie telling it to him away up there in front," said one.

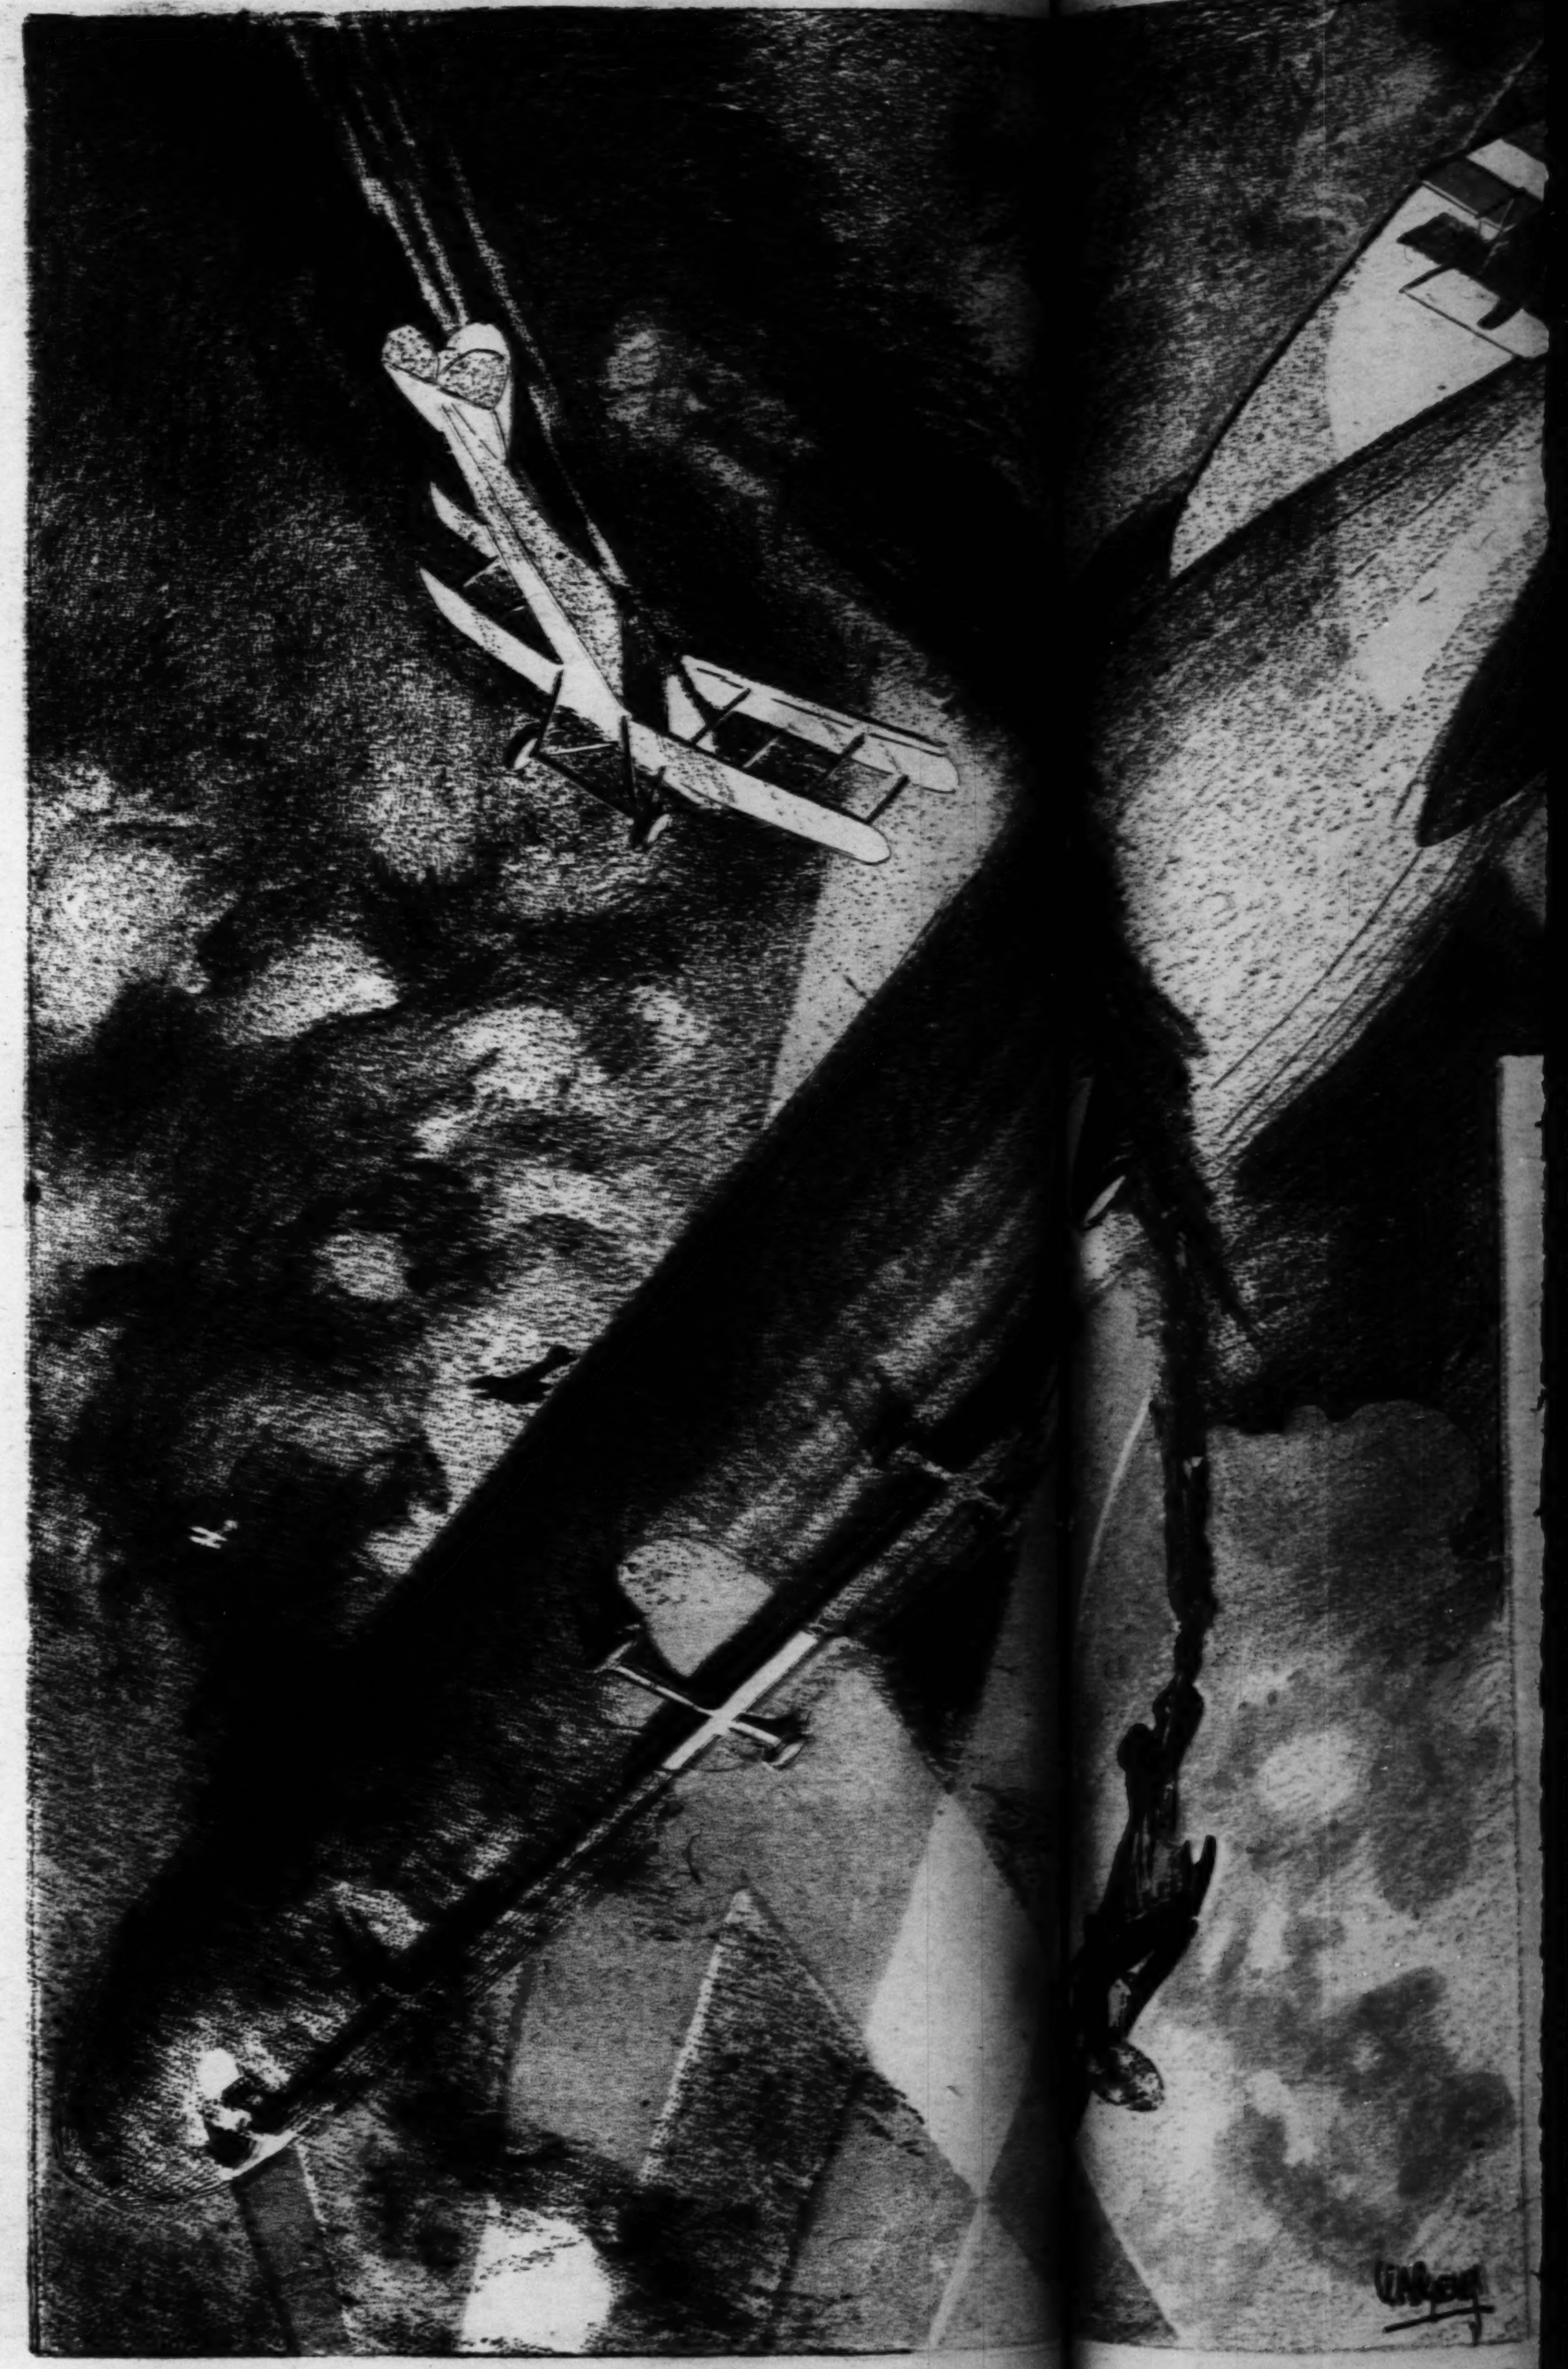
A Forecast of the Sup Leviatha

Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, native Missourian, answers French military attache's denunciation of dirigibles by prophesying huge mother-ships to carry each a squadron of bombing planes and a force of land soldiers or supplies — The "babies" will bomb enemy planes and protect "mamma" when she flies to the front to unload men or other war material — It's really a matter of efficiency of personnel, says the Colonel, rather than of improved mechanism—He thinks the future mammoth of the upper lanes may be 1500 to 2000 feet long, with cargo capacity to correspond



Lieut.-Col. John A. Paegelow.

LET us envision a military campaign in the next war, which all of us hope may not happen. Should that war come within a few years, before science has developed invisible monsters of such fighting quality as to put the highly visible airship out of date altogether the mother airship is to loom large in our spectacle.

Behold the mother airship! There she flies, the Leviathan of the air. Her length is something like 1500 feet, though she may be 2000 feet long. It is diffiicult for one standing on the ground to estimate with approximation to accuracy the dimensions of a huge, rigid, cigar-shaped ship high up in the air. But this ship is even more than a Leviathan: she is the super-Leviathan, the biggest vessel that ever took to the air, and immensely larger than any ship that sails the seas.

Our air "super" is built of tough steel framework, with aluminum covering; or perhaps with an alloy recently developed which is lighter and more tensile than aluminum. She is underslung with several cars or cabins of commodious size and appointments. She carries a crew of more than a hundred men. She could carry several hundred, but they are not needed as ship's crew. In fact, our heaven-piercing cigar (smokeless) does carry several hundred men; and that's the main part of the story.

The men not belonging to the crew are taking it easy. Some are sleeping in the hammocks slung from the roofs of the cabins. Others are preparing the mess, which is rather a simple task. Tinned foods predominate, in concentrated form. Hot coffee is served from huge thermos containers. Hot soup concentrate also is served, similarly held to temperature. Some of the men are listening to war news from Washington, loud-spoken by way of the radio. A few, and these wear insignia of rank, are bending over maps and plans, holding war councils.

Let us assume that we, safely grounded, are well within our own lines when the great mother airship is sighted. She is heard even before she is seen. Her motors and her propellors make such clamor that one is apt to feel the world coming to an end forthwith. Never did such noisy bird fly over peaceful or other territory!

We watch her flight, fascinated. The enemy's lines begin a few miles forward. Even as the mother ship swims swiftly into our view, she is being abandoned by some of her cargo, both animate and inanimate. She comes closer, and by aid of our fieldglasses we behold a thing amazing to the groundling. It is unbelievable; but, like our faith in the fairies, we must take it or leave it.

Those birdlike beings, or things, themselves vastly bigger than any birds of which we have heard or read, seem to come forth from the lower regions of the ship, to be whisked up around the bulge of the aluminum cigar wrapper, to be poised for a moment on the long, flat platform at the top of the ship. Then, with a whirr of their incredible wings, each in its turn takes a running start along the roof and launches off into free air.

One after another they perform this feat. What are they? Why, merely a squadron of airplanes, fighting planes, bombers and the like, 16 of them. They circle about the mother ship. They fly underneath, around, overhead. Some of them dart off, here, there yonder. Rapid firing of machine guns is heard in the waxing tumult. They are not all our own machine guns. Some of them belong to airplanes which are trying to come near enough to bomb our mother ship. But our own planes, those carried by the mother, her beloved children, fight valiantly. The dutiful children protect their fond parent. They snap and snarl. They dart angrily at the enemy. They rise above the offspring of the opposing side and drop bombs, destroying them. Now and then an enemy craft is sent down by machine-gun fire.

Alas! down comes one of the brave babies fresh from the womb of the mother airship. The enemy has won, to that extent. The unfortunate child has been overwhelmed, but she falls fighting valiantly. One of her sisters, or brothers, as we observe, avenges her death by slaying her slayer.

Now the mother ship has decreased, in the distance, to a size much smaller than was apparent when she passed overhead. Such is the illusion, at any rate. But she's just as big as ever, and just as brave. Those of us who have fieldglasses of the strongest lens power behold now another thing of amazement. Just a few miles back of the place we know as the location of our first line of trenches, close up to the enemy's works, the great ship slows down and begin gracefully to descend.

Look closely now. Don't miss this marvel of military advance. You can tell this to your grandchildren—if the war doesn't get you and all your folks. Those extra men carried in the airship are pouring out, they are landing, they are forming in line of march, they are taking their places in the trenches, relieving the worn-out doughboys who have done their stint and won well their relief. Hundreds of men carried to the front in the mother ship are put in action thus, much more quickly than could be the case were they marched afoot or driven by motor car.

The fight for protection of the mother ship goes on apace. It becomes more furious. The heavens reek flame and blood. Sardonic laughter of defiance leaps from the throats of a thousand guns in mid-air. Demoniac howls of derision belch from great guns set on terra firma. But the children fight off those who would murder their mother.

At a small desk in the forward cabin of that craft sits a silent man, chewing an unlighted cigar and wishing he might be permitted to light it. He is the commander of the ship, the skipper of the super-Leviathan. He is calm, apparently unworried by the tumult and the terror. He has been there before, for this man has won to his skippership through a series of just such battles. He is receiving and sending orders and information by radio. He learns, let us say, that supplies are needed 500 miles to the south, down there on the long-drawn front where the conflict rages even more fiercely than in the sector at our own front.

After the sick and wounded from the trenches here are taken aboard, to be dropped off as the ship passes a comfortable hospital safe from enemy attack, the commander gives a signal. Up the great ship climbs, perhaps 8000 feet, for the instruments warn the Captain that a thunderstorm is brewing. He must ascend above the storm, beat it by riding over it.

Off to the military supply depot swims the ship. She is cargoed this time with supplies for the men in that southern sector. Off again she flies, headed for the point selected for the next big fight for her life. As she approaches that point, a battle such as we have described briefly here takes place. The fallen children of the devoted mother have been replaced at the airplane factory en route. Thus there is again a whole squadron to fight for her. She is, perhaps, the world's only parent that can recruit her family up to the desired numerical size within a few hours.

Now, all that goes before is not the result of this writer's imagination. It is based on more solid ground. The mother airship carrying a brood of planes for self-protection, cargoed with military supplies for the army on the ground, and bearing fresh troops for the trenches, is the answer of Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant at Scott Field, near Belleville, Ill., to a recent pronouncement by Gen. Georges A. L. Dumont, military attache of the French embassy at Washington. When Gen. Dumont reached New York by sea, he told reporters:

"I received, at sea, word of the disaster to our French airship, the Dixmude, which exploded and fell into the sea. I am deeply grieved. Her commander was my personal friend. I believe the fate of the Dixmude will convince the world that dirigibles are useless. It will take years to replace the crew, who could have operated airplanes, which in time of war are far more efficient."

Incidentally, Gen. Dumont prophesied a tragic end for the American navy's great airship, Shenandoah, seen at St. Louis on the occasion of the aviation meet last fall. The Shenandoah, as you cannot have forgotten, had a thrilling experience about the time Gen. Dumont landed, having broken away from its mooring mast at Lakehurst, N. J., and ridden out a 72-mile gale. Though her nose was caved in, the Shenandoah rode the gale safely.

"The mother airship is my answer to Gen. Dumont," said Col. Paegelow. "I firmly believe that such a craft as I have outlined to you will be developed within a few years, and that it will be highly useful in the next war, just as I have suggested. As to the future of the dirigible, what more do you want?

"The airship develops along the same line that the ship sailing the sea develops. There is a kinship between the two that should not be overlooked. The bigger and stronger the ship at sea, the more efficient she is. The same principle applies to the ship of the air. We have the Leviathan of the sea, and she is a success. Why not the Leviathan of the air, then?

"Airship operation is more a matter of men than of machines. It is the efficiency, the morale, the devotion of the crew that counts most. One man aboard an airship may toss a monkeywrench into the proposition and smash up the whole works. A crew in which every man is onto his job, always there with the goods, never delinquent in any sense—that is our ideal.

"If Congress would only give us funds sufficient to develop not only the material aspect of the airship but the efficiency and morale of the men, we should see a most surprising and gratifying progress from year to year. The matter is strictly up to Congress. The trouble is that when the airship service has a lamentable accident, several of which have happened in recent years, as you know, people like Gen. Dumont come forward and shout that the airship is a failure, that the dirigible type is doomed, that it is but the plaything of the winds and the thunder—and the lightning, as in the case of the unfortunate Dixmude.

"As to the Dixmude, it wasn't handled properly. Furthermore, it was permitted to go on that fatal flight when its commander and crew knew there were defects in its construction. They had protested against those defects. Again, the Dixmude was filled with hydrogen gas, an instantly inflammable gas. The Shenandoah and our five airships here at Scott Field carry helium gas, which cannot explode. Lightning won't blow up helium-filled ships.

"And look at the Shenandoah! She did nobly. She proved her ability to ride out a storm and the efficiency of her crew. Her deportment in that storm was admirable. If you ask about the future of the airship, the Shenandoah's recent experience should be a considerable part of your answer."

Col. Paegelow, enlarging upon the primary importance of developing airship crews to the ultimate apex of efficiency, cited with pride the case of on a crease of the map and slowly extend it.

"We went in too far north," he said, as in a vague comment. "We should have started in on the east coast farther down, about Mombasa. But the report Sir Henry had indicated Winton somewhere south of Omdurman, and we went in through Egypt. But he wasn't in Omdurman. The rumor always put him on south—you know about desert rumors; strangely accurate as a rule, and traveling over an immense distance, one can't understand how. But the rumor was correct, he was on south; he had followed the White Nile, along Baker Pasha's route, a little to the west. Sir Henry always hoped to pick him up somewhere along the White Nile. But Sir Henry was going on a wrong hypothesis; he was thinking about the movements of a man who must consider how he will get back, and Winton did not intend to get back."

He paused—a sort of hesitation in the narrative.

"We didn't realize that for a long time; then we had to go on or give up. Sir Henry, of course, went on."

The "of course" abridged Marquis' whole character.

"It was an awful march south. Winton was always just a little ahead. The desert rumors were pretty clear about him until we passed the big bend of the White Nile—you know it goes off west nearly at a right angle about 400 miles south of Khartum—then the rumors began to get confused. Sometimes they put Winton on in our front and sometimes, inexplicably, to the rear of us. We couldn't understand it!"

He drummed a moment on the table with his thick, square fingers.

I sat down. Anything this man had to say about an expedition was of interest to me. Usually he didn't talk much. He went on:

"We thought at first that Winton had doubled back or that we had passed him. But there was his trail going on ahead! We were profoundly puzzled. It was like a mirage of the mind. We were all feeling the sun—darned queer about the sun! We wore spine pads and helmets with an inch of cork, and the accursed desert Bedouins marched nearly naked and with their heads shaven.

"I got uneasy. Sir Henry made no comment, but I knew what he thought; our scouts were beginning to see double—the sun will do anything to you! But they weren't seeing double; we were being followed. The explanation that occurred to us was that Winton had divided his force and put a part of it behind us. But the native trackers were positive that the size of the force on in front had not diminished by a man. And they were right. They pointed out a hundred evidences, in Winton's trail, to show that the same number of persons were on ahead."

Barclay paused, and sat a moment looking down at the map.

"We were being followed. I myself heard, faintly, shots in the rear; and the desert rumors began to get definite. There was a white man and a small native force behind and a little to the west of us, paralleling our route. There seemed to be some strange report about this man, current in our camp, that we could not find out. Finally, it seeped through to us—the man had no face!"

Barclay passed his hand over his big, square jaw.

"I suppose one could have a mirage of the mind. And mystery always breeds wonder. Anyhow, that rumor went right on. The leader of the force that dogged our rear had no face—he was white, he was English, his very size and characteristics were given. It was clearly not Winton from these details. Winton was tall and broad-shouldered.

"Then a stranger thing happened: We stopped and the expedition behind us also stopped. We turned back on our route for a day's march, and it also turned back for a day's march. That settled it. We were being followed! Sir Henry said nothing and we went on. Winton ahead had gained a little. He didn't stop. There seemed to be no relation between him and this mysterious expedition. It wasn't after Winton. It was after us!

"Sir Henry went on. And the man without a face followed. He didn't have an easy time of it, any more than we had. He had the sun and he had to beat off the desert marauders.

"There's no law at the head of the White Nile. We heard the firing. We could tell the very arm he used; a high-power magazine rifle made by Jermyn in Pall Mall—he was an Englishman, all right. That was the one thing that quieted our concern about him. His mysterious movements might be inexplicable, but he was English and therefore no enemy. We had something to learn about that!"

Barclay made a vague gesture, like one who omits a mass of detail.

"We overtook Winton on the grass plateau beyond Lake Victoria Nyanza, just where the old elephant trail comes out of the immense continent of forest to the south.

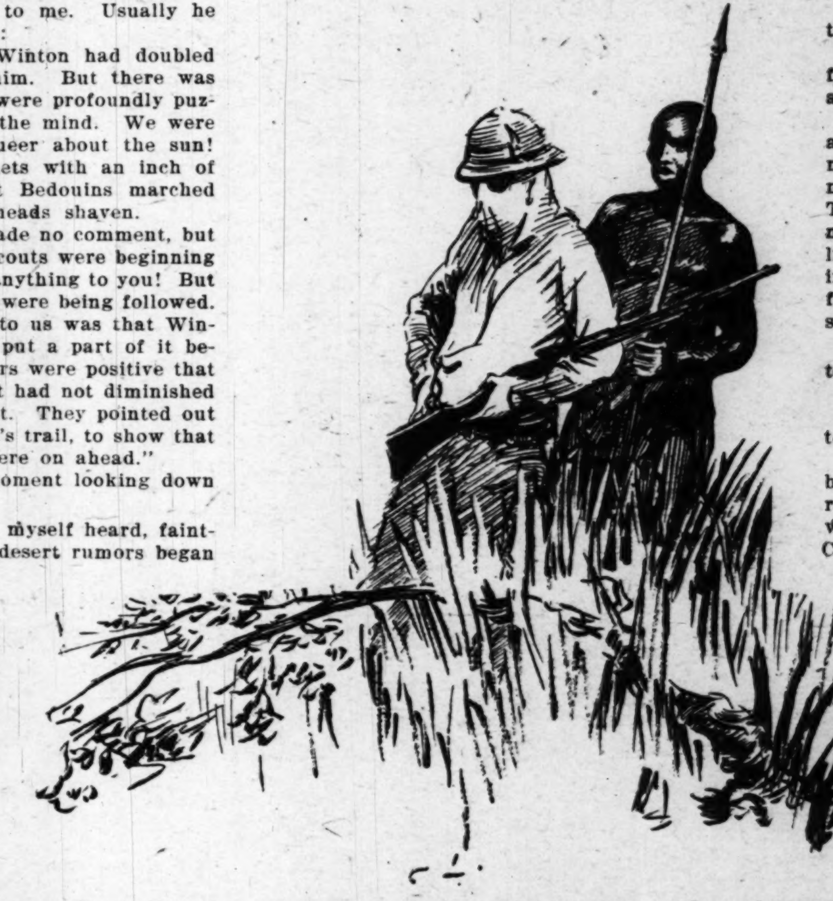
"We sighted his camp at dark, and we stopped. He couldn't get away now and there was no hurry. We took our time. The sun had us pretty well crumpled. I could hardly walk and Sir Henry was jerky. But we lost possession of Winton's camp by just the measure of that night. There was a cordon of sentinels around it in the morning and another tent up. No face had passed around us in the night. We were beaten to our man!

"I cursed under my breath. So the mysterious Englishman was an ally of the man we were after. It was all clear now. He had followed us with the deliberate purpose of joining Winton against us. But why did he not attack us on the way in? If he were in fact hostile to us—if he didn't want us to find Winton? Of course, I was only guessing half right, as one always guesses. He did want us to find Winton!

"We were halted by two shots that flecked up the earth on either side of us when we started for his camp that morning, and we had to stop. We sent a native on ahead with something white. And he came back to say that Sir Henry and I were to come forward alone to a scrub bush about a hundred yards from the cordon around Winton's camp. It was like a parley in a little hill war!

"I lay down at the bush, but Sir Henry stood. I was keen to know what would happen. We were at last come up with this mysterious Englishman who had hung on our flank all the way down the White Nile.

"It was some moments before we saw him. And then I sat up. He came out from behind a tent, and at the distance, true to the persistent rumor, the figure had no face; the space under the visor of his helmet was blank. I saw Sir Henry start slightly and unsling his field glasses, and I got mine out.



There was a native with him. It was the native who addressed us. He spoke a precise sort of English like a phonograph.

"Then the mystery disappeared. The man had extended the apron of his helmet—which one wears in the desert to protect the back of the neck—entirely around the head band, to protect the carotid arteries, the sponge bones of the face, and his throat; this apron was fastened down securely from the head band of the helmet to the collar of his tunic."

Barclay paused.

"I afterward examined it closely," he continued. "It was made of asbestos cloth to keep out the sun, and it was fitted with big, thick, colored lenses, to protect the eyes from the heat rays. It was stitched into the head band of the helmet and buttoned down closely to the tunic collar. Strange no one of us had ever thought about the heat rays on the face, on the carotid arteries and the throat; of course, the value of a colored lens for the eye was known; but not the value of a thick colored lens. No Face taught the world something about the sun, and the result was that he had come out of the desert fit, and we were groggy.

"He came out to the cordon of his sentinels about a hundred yards away, as I have said, and stopped; he carried a magazine rifle—we were right, one of Jermyn's in Pall Mall—in the hollow of his arm. There was a native with him. It was the native who addressed us. He spoke a precise sort of English like a phonograph.

" 'The master says the first thing to arrange, Sir Henry,' he called, 'is a truce. Lord Winton has a touch of the sun, and your man's down.'

"He indicated me with a gesture. His voice was high; nervous tension usually puts the voice up.

"Marquis did not reply immediately to the [illegible]

" 'So your master knows me,' he said.

"But the stranger was not to be diverted. He spoke to the native.

" 'Oh, surely,' the native called back. 'But the truce, Sir Henry; shall you rest up a bit or have it out now?'

" 'Why pretend, Sir Henry?' The native seemed to call out precisely the words spoken to him. 'You came in to take Lord Winton out, and the master [illegible] prevent you.'

" 'Then why didn't your master attack us on the White Nile—he could have rushed our camp before we knew about him.'

" 'The master will answer that,' the native called back; 'and then will you come to the point? The master had to use you to find Lord Winton. He didn't know where he was'——

" 'How ill is Winton?' asked Marquis.

" 'Lord Winton is delirious,' the man replied. 'But it's the heat only. A day or two in the cool air of this plateau will put him on his feet.'

" 'Very well,' Sir Henry said; 'when Winton's able we'll start back.'

"There was a strange shift in the bearing of the white man over beyond Sir Henry Marquis when he replied to that. I can't precisely describe it. He did not seem to change his position, but his posture got somehow a deadly menace in it.

" 'You have your choice, Sir Henry,' he called.

"The inference did not need to be set out in words. It had been stated in the opening of this strange parley. I thought Marquis' reply was pure bravado.

" 'Oh, there's no choice!'

"And he turned about and walked past me down the long green slope to our camp."

Barclay sat back from the table and put the fingers of his big hands together. He went on in a reflective comment:

"To tell the truth, I thought Marquis was acting a bit of a fool. It was clear to anybody that the mysterious ally that had joined Winton's camp was not a person to be either baffled or frightened. There was, in fact, no choice, as Sir Henry said; but not as he evidently intended our enemy to believe. Winton would not go back to criminal trial in an English court. We could not fight the two forces now combined. They were double the strength of our own.

" 'There'll be no fight,' was all Sir Henry replied to me.

" 'Then you won't take him,' I said.

" 'Oh, yes,' he answered, 'we shall take Lord Winton back with us!'

"I could see what would happen. There would be a rumor creep out in a year or two; the ivory raiders would carry it; or the slave gangs. There would be a brief official entry in the records of the Criminal Investigation Department at Scotland Yard; and a lot of bleached skeletons to remain vaguely white on the plateau."

Barclay suddenly got up. He put his big hands on the table and leaned over toward me.

"I guessed what would happen," he said, with a slow deliberate intonation of the words, "and I guessed wrong!

"Sir Henry Marquis went over into Winton's camp that night, unarmed and with his hands up—and 10 days later we started for the Albert Nyanza on the return march. Marquis brought Winton out.

"It's of no use to guess, Sir James; one always guesses wrong!"

"How did Marquis manage it?" I asked. "I'm not going to guess!"

"You see," he said, "old Brexford told the grand jury in Hants that he was sitting in his drawing room reading beside a table. It was Sunday night; his servants had all gone to some frolic in the neighborhood, and he was alone. He didn't know Winton was about. They had quarreled bitterly about the marriage with this American girl. Brexford was rich and unmarried and Winton was his heir. There had been a desperate quarrel on Saturday, the day before; the servants all heard it, and at the end of it old Brexford notified Winton that he would go up to London on Monday and cut him out of his will, and Winton left the house.

"Brexford told Sir Henry Marquis what he had told the grand jury. He was sitting alone in his drawing room reading when a shot fired from the outside crashed through the window; it happened just as Brexford leaned forward to get a cigarette from a box on the table. That accident of chance saved Brexford's life, for the bullet passed by his shoulder instead of cutting its way through his chest. An instinct of safety caused the man to fall forward onto the floor and lie there as though he were dead; that saved his life again, for the man outside came up to the window and looked in, and Brexford, out of the tail of his eye, saw that it was young Winton. Winton thought he had killed Brexford and got out of the country."

"So that was it!" I said; "that was the reason Winton was willing to come out. Marquis brought him the assurance that his shot had missed!"

Fox-Hunting in Missouri and Nearby States

"You bet that's my Julie," her owner replied. "She's letting me know she's jumped a fox, and she never lied to me in her life; she never yelped like that on a cold trail. She's calling to the other hounds, 'Come on, follow me.'"

There was no doubt amongst all those hunters as to what hound was leading. Everyone knew, from the quality of that note, deep, full, clear, musical and triumphant, that it was old Julie close to the trail.

"She's sure trampin' on his tail," said one.

"She's tellin' it to him," another agreed.

"Yes, sir, she's opened him up."

In a minute all the dogs were in the chorus, and away they went, down into hollows where the song almost died out; then up again over the crests of hills, the music rolling clear again, and so on and on, and as the race got farther away, and the music of their yelping diminished, there was one cry that yet sounded above all others, the clear, ringing mouth of old Julie, veteran of a thousand races. Everyone stood tense, hands cupped to ears, bending forward, straining to catch those last notes.

"He's taking them away over beyond the Jesse James farm," a hunter said.

That was nearly four miles distant, the old homestead where Jesse and Frank James were born and lived. The hunters lighted pipes and stood around, talking, telling stories of hounds and of foxes and races. Every once in a while a man would step out to one side, put his hand to his ear, bend his head toward the south and listen, and then come back to the group.

It was a clear, cool night. Every star in the universe seemed to be twinkling in the immensity above; there was not a breath of wind, and beyond the subdued voices of those men the only sounds in the vast calmness of the night were the shrilling crickets off amongst the weeds, and the occasional far-off screech of an owl. A half-hour passed and then a man, out by himself in the darkness, cried sharply:

"Listen!"

Instantly every voice was hushed; everyone became intent, listening. At first there was uncertainty.

"Are you sure you heard them?" was asked of the man who had given the warning.

"I thought so," he answered, still listening.

"There! What's that?" exclaimed another, holding up his hand.

Soon all could hear, away off to the south, a sound like the muffled stroking of a bell, barely discernible, then growing louder, then dying out altogether, rising and falling, as the chase topped the ridges or went down into the low ground, but always coming nearer, and always it was musical.

We knew by the different shades of sound when the pack was racing over open fields, when it was trailing through brush or cornfields and when it had gone down into a heavily wooded swale. There the tall trees and the hillsides served as sounding boards, reflecting the echoes back and forth; and the hollow spaces gathered those echoes and sent them to us, like tones from the horn of a music box, softened and mellowed.

Once you have heard that echo, resounding long and softly, on and on, in ripples of melody, you can never forget it. It gets into your blood. You know then the lure of a fox race on a still night. You know why George Washington named one of his foxhounds "Sweetlips" and another "Truelove."

One of the sounds I can liken it to is the honking of wild geese as I have heard them far overhead on a calm night. There is the same peculiar wildness in it. And, as I have said, there is a bell-like tone in it, too. I recall that once, on a still Sunday evening, one of those hazy days when some quality in the air carries sound farther than usual, I stood on a street corner in Kansas City and there came to me across the house tops and through the canyoned streets the softened chiming of bells from a church tower, and instantly my heart gave a leap, for it stirred memories of windless, starlit October nights, and hounds crying in the distance.

As the pack came closer and the yelping grew louder we could catch the notes of eager savagery in it, for those dogs were inspired then with only one yearning: to catch that fox and tear and rend him.

In a frenzied rush and in full cry the pack shot across the road about 50 yards from us and went on, swinging to the west in a great circle, and around southward again, crossing the road and plunging into the same tangle of brush and trees in which the dogs first found his track, and so on southward and out of hearing again.

Looking at the blackness of the jungle through which the pack passed, one wondered how it traveled through it at such speed, for it was all strange ground to those dogs. One hunter argued that it was by a sense of feeling, the dogs could not see in that darkness, but they sensed the obstacles and the open spaces. One told a story of a blind hound in Oklahoma that runs with the pack through such jungles in chase of wolves.

With the fox it was different. This was his range; he had hunted it every night for years looking for rabbits, mice, ground squirrels, gophers, snakes and grubs. He knew every tree and briar patch, rock and hummock within a radius of five or 10 miles, and, no matter how hard he was pressed, he would not go beyond the area with which he was acquainted; he would run there in circles until he was tired of the race.

Four times that night the fox ran this circle, and all the time, when the dogs were within hearing, each man there knew the yelp of his hound, and which was closest to the fox, and generally which was second. Fifty men there had never heard those dogs before, yet within half an hour they knew the mouths of every dog in the race.

"That's easy," said one. "You soon get to know a man's voice, don't you? No two men have voices alike. In a choir one sings bass, another tenor. Just so with hounds; each has his own peculiar voice."

Fox hunters have a slang of their own. They seldom speak of the bark or bay of a hound; it is always the "mouth." A hunter, inquiring about the merits of a hound, will ask: "How's his mouth?" Each hunter has his own preference in the kind of mouth a hound should have. There is the "chop mouth," a quick, sharp bark; the "long mouth," a prolonged bark, sometimes "so long that he has to back up to get it all out"; the "squawling mouth," a sort of screaming, shivering cry; the "calking mouth," that sounds like "calk! calk! calk!" the "horn mouth," fine and keen; the "short chop," a quick barking in a tenor key.

When the race was going well that night there was a good deal of friendly banter.

"If you want to hear heavenly music, listen to that hound of mine," said one.

"Git out," retorted another. "Before it's over he'll sound like a tin whistle alongside Sousa's band, compared with the mouth of my hound."

"That's my Sailor up in front; he'll soon run him in," a man said.

"He couldn't run a rooster in," someone shot back.

As the pack came nearer the excitement always grew and remarks flew back and forth: "That's Scotty," or "that's Jeff," or "do you catch that mouth of Webb's blue-tick dog," or "that's Henry McAfee's black-haired dog, listen to his fast chop," or "isn't that Roxie up there about third from the front? She's got a mouth on her finer than a feist," or "say, listen to that dog of mine; sounds like someone beating a gong: Bong! bong! bong!"

All at once there came a new mouth up at the front, closest to the fox.

"That's Gyp; listen to his short chop," a man said. Sure enough, it was Gyp. He was leading the pack.

"What's become of Julie?" they asked. One man was standing off alone, saying nothing. He was Julie's owner.

"Jim, that Julie of yours is 10 years old. She's done remarkably well to stay in so long," said a man, trying to comfort him.

But Jim said nothing. The pack was in full cry out there to the north, but he had no more liking for it. He was suffering the mortification of a man whose hound had failed him in a race. He walked slowly out into the darkness, listening for another cry. Soon he heard it, from away off to the south west, cleaving the stillness of the night, the deep, keening lamentation of a dog that knew she had failed, the wail of a lost dog calling for her master, like the cry of a lost child at a picnic wailing for its mother. It was a long, plaintive, sorrowful howl.

"Come on, Jim, let's go and get her," a man called, and they went off together. In a few minutes we heard Jim's horn blow, and the answering cry of the hound. A strange thing is that a trained hound knows the horn when her master blows it. Any other man in that crowd might have blown that horn and old Julie would not have answered.

Soon they came in, the dog limping, and with head down, slinking along, showing chagrin and shame as plainly as a person could, and, although many patted and praised her, she knew she had made a failure of it.

Soon afterward there came another kind of a cry, one of pain, and the group of listeners became excited. One shouted:

"She's hung on the fence; where's that flashlight?" And a dozen of them started off in the direction of the cries. Then the cry ceased; the dog had got free again and gone on, and the crowd came back; and stories were told of dogs that were caught in barbed-wire fences, sometimes hanging for days before they were found, sometimes dying there, in remote places.

One reason why so many fox hunts are without horses is that they could not leap those high barbed fences in safety. Another reason is that when fox hunting spread from the cleared fields and comparatively level stretches of Maryland and Virginia, to the south and west, the forests were too thick and the hills too steep and rough for that kind of horseback riding. And one of the chief reasons why so many fox races are held at night is that in daytime farmers' boys so often shoot at foxes and hounds.

With Julie out of the race that night it soon came to an end. The crying of the pack ceased abruptly. The dogs had either "made a lose," that is, they had lost the trail, or the fox had got tired of the sport and ran into his hole. There he would be safe, for no good hound will ever try to dig out a fox. The fox hunter is a fox protector, too.

All through the fox-hunting country there is a regular traffic in young foxes. Hunters and clubs "plant" them, to have the sport of chasing them later. They even dig holes for them and line the openings with concrete, so no cur or potlicker hound can dig them out, and there a fox may find protection and furnish sport to the farmers around for many years. I heard a fox hunter of Tennessee say of a fox in his territory:

"If you'd offer us $500 for that fox we wouldn't let you kill him."

I have heard many a fox-hunting farmer argue that a fox was a benefit because of the gophers and other pests he destroyed.

The following week the Buchanan-Platte County Fox Hunters Association had its annual meet on Pfander's farm, near Savannah, Mo., and one night, at 8 o'clock, I saw 42 hounds loosed there. Fifteen minutes later they jumped a fox and they ran him through a timbered valley that curved around the north half of a long ridge, while a group of 200 men stood listening to their mouthings echoing in rolling waves of sound that could be heard for miles. They drove far off to the southward, almost out of hearing, and then curved northward again and came up over the ridge.

We ran to a cleared field on top of that ridge and stood beside a wire fence that bisected it, and saw the fox run out of a field of standing corn about 200 yards distant. Between the edge of that corn and the fence at which we stood was a field of wheat stubble covered with a thick growth of weeds 18 inches tall. A full October moon made the night almost as light as day, and we saw the fox come down the slope straight toward us, leaping high to clear the weeds. He must have seen us first when within 50 feet of us, for then he turned sharply to the right, slipped under the lowest strand of wire, crossed a pasture and melted into the shadow of the trees beyond.

On came the dogs, tonguing loudly, and driving hard. Closely bunched, they poured over the wire fence like a white cloud and followed the fox into the timber. Ten minutes later their mouthings ceased. They had lost the trail. The hunters kindled a great fire near a thorn thicket, where there was plenty of dead wood, and, while the burning thorns crackled and a fountain of feathery red sparks spouted upward into the tree tops, an argument began as to whether a fox really enjoyed a race ahead of the hounds.

The majority of hunters agreed that the fox is a good sport, and gets a lot of fun out of it. Old hunters say a fox will not stay in a neighborhood where there are no dogs to give him the excitement of a race occasionally. I have heard many tell of seeing a fox deliberately come out in front of the dogs and bark to attract and entice them into a race.

James Hart, who boasts that he has slept for 75 years within 10 feet of where he was born in a Missouri farmhouse, and has been hunting foxes as long as he can remember, was sure that the fox gets as much fun from a race as do dogs and men.

"Of course the fox enjoys it or he wouldn't run as long as he does; he could run into his hole, or trick the dogs and get away almost any time," he said.

I was curious to know what those hunters would think of a story I had heard at a fox hunt in Arkansas, south of Huntsville. An old farmer-hunter from Boston Mountain was there with his dogs, and as we lay on the grass around a camp fire of pitch pine stumps, he told of how he stood on the edge of a bluff overlooking White River, when a red fox, racing ahead of his hounds, come out of the brush and ran upon a wide sandbar at the foot of the bluff.

The fox went to the water's edge, as if to swim across, but the current was swift, and he turned and ran down along the sandbar, parallel with the shore, for about 200 yards. There he wheeled and ran back over his trail for about 100 yards, and leaped off to one side a distance of fully 15 feet. The dogs were coming close, and the fox hunted around, running swiftly here and there, until he found a patch of reddish-colored gravel, almost the exact color of his coat, and he squatted down upon it, with all four legs spread out.

"His own color matched that gravel so closely that as he lay there, all flattened out, I could hardly see him myself," the hunter said. "He hadn't been there a second till my three hounds came out, full tilt, on his track. They followed it to the water, then on down along the shore, right by where the fox lay, and not 50 feet from him, and as soon as they were past him he sprang up and dashed off into the brush. The dogs followed the trail to its end, and then back and forth, and finally picked it up again where he had squatted on the gravel, but by that time he was far away and safe."

I repeated that story to those Missouri hunters, and they had no doubt it was true. L. F. Gingery, editor of The Red Ranger, a veteran fox hunter, said: "I have seen a fox do that very thing, leap off the trail and squat on the ground amongst leaves of his own color, and lie there until the hounds ran past."

It is an old trick of a fox, when hard pushed, to run as fast as he can until he is far enough ahead of the hounds to double back on his tracks and vault to one side, and run off at right angles to his original trail. This gives him such a start of the dogs that when they reach the trail's end and run back over it, he is generally beyond their catching again.

Gingery asserts he has seen a fox make a leap of 20 feet on level ground. John L. Clark, president of the Buchanan-Platte County Association, told of how he stood on a hill, listening to a race, when the fox came out of the timber and ran through a cornfield. At the other edge of it he whirled around and doubled back on his trail for 100 yards and reared up on his hind legs, with his head up, listening to the dogs a moment; then he jumped off about 15 feet and ran on. When the dogs got to the edge of his tracks at the edge of the corn they lost his trail.

Gingery saw a fox stop in a weed patch, when pursued, and run around in little circles, switch his long tail everywhere amongst the weeds, to scatter the scent, then he sprang off 20 feet and ran in another direction. When the dogs reached that spot they became excited; they seemed to think the fox was right there somewhere, the scent was so strong.

"They wore those weeds down trying to find that fox; they were completely baffled and lost the trail right there," said Gingery.

A red fox will not climb a tree, but he will sometimes leap from high ground into its branches and hide, and he will walk up the trunk of a leaning tree and hide there.

James A. Slade, a retired farmer who was at this meeting with his hounds, told of an old fox in Andrew County, Mo., that would run in wide circles for three or four hours, ahead of the hounds, and when tired of the sport he always led the hounds to a place called Snake Den, and there the dogs would lose him.

"One day there was about an inch of snow on the ground," said Slade. "We ran that fox to the same old spot and there he disappeared, as usual, but this time I was able to track him in the snow. He had jumped from the road to a rail fence; he walked that for about 50 feet, and from that he leaped up, a distance of eight feet, to the top of a stump, where a tree had been broken off by the wind. From the top of that stump he had vaulted 10 feet across to the roof of an old shed, and there he lay, all curled up, safe from the dogs."

The "rail-fence-walking fox" is not so well known as formerly, because rail fences are scarce in these days of barbed wire.

"I've Made Enough—The Business Is Yours!"

Fred M. Smith, who started 12 years ago at $20 a week.

Perhaps Herman's explanation may contribute something to the psychologist who seeks to determine the reasons for this extraordinary generosity.

"Money!" he said. "It's junk after you get so much. The first money I made was like finding a horseshoe. I though I was in luck. As I went on I got more horseshoes. Soon I had a wagonload, and like a man with a wagonload of horseshoes I found one day that I did not have a wagonload of luck. Sure, they were worth something, but they weren't luck. They were just a lot of worry to me taking care of them.

"I have all the money I want," he explained. "I don't want any more. I was 33 years old before I went into business for myself and started making money. It had taken me 15 years to save $3300. But now, adding any more to what I've got would be a burden for me rather than a comfort.

"So, I decided to give my business to these two boys who had been with me so long and worked so hard to help make the business the success it has been. I'd taken care of the others every year with bonuses. Mr. Rosoff and Mr. Smith I thought the most deserving because they'd contributed most.

"I've advanced them enough money without interest to do business on, and they will repay me out of the profits. I will stay on as long as they think they need me, without pay, to give them the benefit of such knowledge and experience as I've gained in the business, and to see that they get as much credit as they need."

Which is the same concession Rubin is making on his retirement. He remains as a consulting member of the firm until it is fully launched and not dependent upon his advice and business sagacity.

John Borg was a leading member of the New York curb market. He amassed $2,000,000 before he reached 42, which was last year, and then he decided to retire while still he retained enough of youth to enjoy his freedom from business.

"I've made my pile," he explained, "so I'm getting out and letting the younger fellows make theirs. I am giving them the business because they have earned it, and I have no further use for the business myself, as I have all the money I need.

"A part of the time I will have for myself now I will devote to my other financial interests. The brokerage business is the one, though, in which I have made most of my money. And the rest of the time I shall play."

This was not Borg's first philanthropy, but the previous instance conformed to the old style. He endowed a $25,000 scholarship fund for the benefit of graduates of Union Hill (N. J.) High School. Each year one of these graduates is sent to Rutgers University.

"I missed a college education because I had to go to work as soon as I got out of high school. Every boy who is benefited by this fund makes a moral pledge to do as much by another deserving boy within 10 years after his graduation. I hope in that way that my plan will work out as an endless chain of encouragement to poor but deserving lads."

One of the first business men to make this extraordinary move was Henry A. Dix, who gave away the Henry A. Dix & Co., with its turnover of $1,000,000 a year, to his employes, sacrificing both his business and a salary of $45,000 a year.

Time enough has passed now to judge what success may come of such liberality.

"The new management has proved itself fully equal to the task," Mr. Dix said. "We have found that those who succeeded us have been self-reliant and entirely able to control the destiny of the business which is now theirs.

"During 1923 the new corporation showed an increase of more than 10 per cent in quantity of production and in value of turnover as compared with 1922."

Mr. Dix was a liberal employer to start with. He was for long before the unions took up the question an advocate and practitioner of the five-day week. And in 27 years of business his shop was never closed for one day on account of labor troubles, strike or any other cause centering around employment.

When the question was asked at the time, what will become of this business and these men in such unaccustomed conditions, he solved that by accepting, after cancelling his $45,000 a year salary, a remuneration of 50 cents for the year 1923.

"I was willing," he said, "for them to pay it in installments if necessary, but fortunately it was not necessary."

equipment, approximately equal in amount to that scheduled for the rest of the United States and involving the opening of a major machine switching office every six weeks for over five years, in addition to many large new manual outfits."

Machine switching certainly does cut down the number of operators necessary in proportion to subscribers, but the steady expansion of the telephone business tends to compensate for it and in many cases, as the New York metropolitan area, renders the employment of still more operators a necessity despite the change whereby subscribers dial their own numbers. So it is evident that the operators have nothing to worry about.

Many cities now use manual switching. Results have been of such a satisfactory nature that, it is stated on good authority, the installation of automatic switchboards is retarded only by the limited supply of new equipment available, and the folly of discarding manual boards still in good condition. The policy of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is stated as follows:

"It is planned not to replace or supersede existing useful equipment by the new equipment, but rather to introduce machine switching in the large exchanges where additional offices are needed to take care of growth or where it is necessary to replace offices which have become inadequate or have served their useful life, provided always that conditions are such as to make this course economical."

Recently the Southwestern Bell announced the purchase of the entire block bounded by Pine, Chestnut, Tenth and Eleventh streets as the site for a home building which will cost them when completed between $18,000,000 and $20,000,000. In this new Bell home will be located the Main, Olive and Central exchanges, all of which will be operated through automatic switchboards.

At Oklahoma City, Ok., Little Rock, Ark., and St. Joseph, Mo., machine switching offices have been working in conjunction with the manual system. At Austin, Tex., Wichita Falls, Tex., and Topeka, the entire exchange is now machine switching. The new system, with or without manual switchboards, is being used in a good many Eastern cities.

What about the blind and one-armed people and houses temporarily without light, as when the current goes off? These questions will have been answered before the new system goes into effect. For the blind there may be a special dial, with raised letters and figures, like Braille. The one-armed man, with a little practice, will be able to dial numbers while holding the receiver in his hand. And for subscribers in the dark a match or a candle would seem to suffice, or perhaps there will be illuminated dials.

So, be nice to the operators while you have the chance. In two years or thereabouts part of St. Louis will begin to dial its telephone numbers and eventually the whole city will be its own operator.

The Hole in the Glass

"It's of no use to guess, Sir James. The first thing Sir Henry Marquis said to Brexford, after he had looked over the drawing room, was:

"'Are you sure the shot was not fired from the other side of this drawing room?'

"This was impossible, and Brexford pointed out at once that it was impossible. True, the casement window directly opposite on that side was open, for it was through this open window that the bullet directed at Brexford passed out of the drawing room; but the country on that side of the house fell away from the house sharply in a deep hollow; there was no tree or elevation; one to have fired such a shot from this side of the house through the drawing room at Brexford in his chair would have required an elevation of at least 50 feet, and, as I have said, there wasn't even a tree on that side.

"But Sir Henry Marquis refused to be convinced.

"'The shot,' he said, 'came from this side.'

"Brexford lost his temper.

"'That's impossible!' he cried. 'Wasn't I sitting here, didn't I hear the bullet pass me, didn't I see the glass break?'

"Sir Henry only repeated what he'd said.

"'The shot came from this side!'

"Brexford blew up at that.

"'Do you think I'm a liar?' he said.

"What Sir Henry Marquis replied was:—

"'I know you're a liar!'

"Then he went at him, and before he got through old Brexford admitted that he fired the shot through the window himself from the drawing room; and Marquis made him put up the money to find young Winton and bring him back to England. That's what took Sir Henry Marquis on that journey into Central Africa—justice to young Winton, not justice to the peace and dignity of the county of Hampshire. Young Winton hadn't been near old Brexford that night; he had gone to Christ Church, determined to settle matters with this American girl. He was mad about her; she must take him, or he would get as far out of the world as he could. He missed her by an accident. She had gone out to tea somewhere in Hants; the motor had broken down and she could not get back; and being Sunday she could not telegraph. Winton took it for intention, because she had given him her word that she would be there, and he went on into Central Africa. That was the truth of it."

Remarkable Discovery Banishes Gray Hair

A Proved Substitute for the Lost Pigmentation

Original Color Quickly Appears

Science again has scored a triumph in the discovery of a very remarkable liquid known as Kolor-Bak. If you are gray, just apply Kolor-Bak to the hair or scalp and your hair will soon take on the actual color it had in the past. Not a trace of the grayness will remain.

Kolor-Bak comes in the form of a clean and colorless liquid, containing properties which quickly restore the lost color to the hair and give it renewed vigor. And note that the one preparation is for all colors of hair. No special solution required for each color—no samples of hair required.

You will find also that after using Kolor-Bak the hair has the same shade throughout. It does not appear streaked, faded or "dyed."

Every scientist, every physician, knows that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells (called follicles or papilliae) in the scalp, because these cells have become inactive from illness, shock of some kind, scalp disease, dandruff, infection, neglect of the hair, or lack of circulation, etc. But no matter what the cause of the grayness, it is simply amazing to see how quickly it disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. Kolor-Bak is a real substitute for the natural pigmentation.

Kolor-Bak has been proved by hundreds of thousands of people, once gray, now with hair in the original color. Get a bottle today.

For Dandruff, Itching Scalp and Falling Hair

Kolor-Bak also banishes dandruff, and prevents itching of the scalp and falling hair. Thoroughly cleanses scalp and hair.

Forecast of the Super-Leviathan of the Air

Sergt. Olin Brown, a member of his command of 600 men at Scott Field. Late last year a detail of 10 was sent from Scott Field to Lakehurst to take instruction in the operation of airships of the rigid type, such as the Shenandoah. Sergt. Brown was one of these men. After the Shenandoah got back from her storm ride, the officer who was in charge of during that experience sat down and a letter in good, plain English to the Colonel commanding at Lakehurst. The letter, dated Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 22, a copy of which Col. Paegelow kindly supplied for use of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, as follows:

"I take the greatest pleasure in writing you about the splendid man Sergt. Brown, who was on board the Shenandoah during our storm flight on Jan. 16. I had no chance to see and watch him before that time, and hear that he had no experience on the wheel of a rigid airship before that time I admire the way he was on the job during the most trying time we had to go through. His calmness, his unceasing attentiveness and cheerfulness, made him one of our most valuable assets during the flight, the more so as we had no relief for him, except myself, but we had to depend on his loyalty, and even his bodily resources more than would be justified under other circumstances.

"I sincerely believe that he deserves all the advantages that might come as a reward out of this trip. One thing I can personally say is, that he certainly need not pass any more examinations or bring more ample proof as to his ability to fill in a position on a rigid airship.

"I am glad to write this letter, recommending a member of your force, so much to the credit of it. Yours very sincerely,

"(CAPT.) ANTON HEINEN."

Sergt. Brown, the hero of the Shenandoah, is from Sparta, Ill., a few miles southeast of St. Louis. His age is 27. He was an electrician when he enlisted in the army on Dec. 14, 1917.

"There!" cried Col. Paegelow, himself a native Missourian, from the town of California. "There, now! Take that letter from Capt. Heinen, who knows, as a part of our answer to Gen. Dumont and the other adverse critics of airships. Take it as a bolster for my argument that it is chiefly a matter of men—plus, of course, money—that will do or damn the dirigible. Men like Olin Brown are the kind we like to develop here at Scott. There's nothing too good by way of promotion for a man like Sergt. Brown. With crews made up of such soldiers, the dirigible will perform all right, I say."

Col. Paegelow was a Major when he gave this interview, but his commission as a Lieutenant-Colonel was on the way. He has seen 27 years' service, beginning as an enlisted man, 18 years having been spent in the Philippines and 10 years with Gen. Pershing on Mindanao. In the World War he saw service of all sorts in France. He is now what some other army officers call "a bug on airships."

"Let 'em call me a bug, or a blamed fool," concluded the Colonel. "I'll stand for my prediction of the mother airship against the world. It is bound to come, and I think in time for the next war."

OBSERVE THESE EASY RULES AND WIN

1. Anyone living outside of Minneapolis, except employes of this Company, may take part in this Word Finding Puzzle.

2. Whichever list contains the largest and nearest number of correct words made up of letters in our slogan, "COFFEE—THE NATIONAL DRINK," will win first prize; next, second prize; and so on down until all 50 prizes have been awarded. In case of tie, prize tied for will be awarded each tying contestant. One point will be given for each correct word and one deducted for each incorrect word or omission of a correct word.

3. English words in good usage in the U. S., whether they be nouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbs, etc., will be allowed. Each letter may be used only as many times as it appears in our slogan. For example, there are 2 "Fs." Therefore "F" may be used 2 times if necessary in forming any word. And "I" may be used again and again singly or doubly in forming other words. The same applies to all other letters in the slogan.

4. Lists must not include proper nouns (like the name of a person or a city, etc.), hyphenated, obsolete, archaic, slang, colloquial or compound words. Webster's New International Dictionary will be the authority.

5. The correct list by which all answers will be judged will be made up of the correct words in lists received, and not from a "master list." The correct list will be published at the close of the contest, together with list winning first prize and names and addresses of prize winners, and will be mailed to all who have qualified.

6. Number and write each word in alphabetical order. Pen, pencil or typewriter may be used, FOR HANDWRITING WILL HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH WINNING. Write on one side of the paper only and place your full name and address at the top of each sheet.

7. All lists must be mailed and postmarked not later than March 15, 1924. Contestants may "qualify" up to midnight, March 29, 1924.

8. Three prominent Minneapolis people will act as judges in selecting winners, and all who take part in this Word Finding Puzzle agree to accept their decisions as final and conclusive.

California

The GREATEST game in the world

GETTING the most out of life is the greatest game in the world.

In California it is played with a multitude of advantages you do not get elsewhere. You gain more for the same investment of effort or money; greater returns in business, in health, in recreation, in everything that makes up for you a new enjoyment of everyday life beyond anything you know.

More Money in the Bank

Financially, Californians get more out of life than other people. They pay nearly double their per capita proportion of the national income tax. They own more than twice the average number of automobiles; three times the average number of homes have electric lights; every third farmhouse has a telephone, prosperity is everywhere. Californians, open handed, buy what they want.

Opportunity Everywhere

Life's wasted days do not exist in California. Twelve months in the year are marketing months from the millions of rich acres of the Great Valley and the number of new farms coming into production is twenty times the national average. Twelve months in the year industry in the great San Francisco Bay manufacturing district, with plentiful water, cheap power and abundant raw material, works at a high labor efficiency. Twelve months in the year people live joyfully out of doors and their children grow larger and stronger than the average elsewhere.

Low Excursion Fares

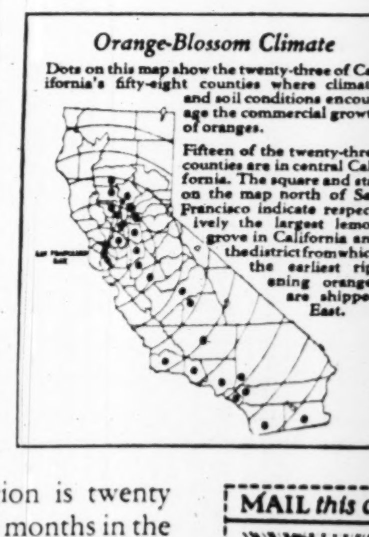
Come and discover California this year. If you are not able to come now, and enjoy winter out-of-doors, be sure to plan for the low summer excursion fares and visit San Francisco, unsurpassed in its attractions and recreations. Here you can see for yourself what California offers. Any railroad in America will sell you a low-cost, round-trip excursion ticket on or after May 15th, or give you a ten-day stopover in San Francisco at any time on a one-way ticket.

Come to San Francisco

Come to San Francisco, California's coolest summer city and the headquarters of Californians Inc., a non-profit organization of citizens and institutions interested in the sound development of the State. Some of the most beautiful suburban districts in California adjoin this great port, the metropolis and trading center of the Great Valley and of the garden valleys of the Coast Range.

Californians Inc. will give you every possible assistance when you arrive, and aid you in planning your trips or choosing your home. Write today for the illustrated free booklet, "California, Where Life is Better." It tells a story you should know, and every statement in it is authoritative. Fill in and mail the coupon and we will send it to you.

Orange-Blossom Climate



Dots on this map show the twenty-three of California's fifty-eight counties where climatic and soil conditions encourage the commercial growth of oranges.

Fifteen of the twenty-three counties are in central California. The square and star on the map north of San Francisco indicate respectively the largest lemon grove in California and the district from which the earliest ripening oranges are shipped East.

Blackheads

Keep your skin free from blackheads by this treatment

Perhaps your skin is especially susceptible to blackheads.

If so, you must use a special method of cleansing, in order to overcome this trouble.

Follow this treatment, to keep your skin free from blackheads:

EACH night before retiring, apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough wash-cloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days you will be surprised to see how your skin has improved in clearness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

A Beauty Critic

says—

"Next to lovely eyes, the greatest beauty item is pearly teeth."

YOU do not realize what you lose by cloudy teeth. This will show you.

It has brought to millions prettier teeth. You see them daily. Decide what prettier, cleaner teeth would mean to you and yours.

You must combat film

The teeth's great enemy is that viscous film you feel. It clings, despite old brushing methods. It becomes discolored, dingy. Teeth lose luster.

Film holds food substance which forms acid. The acid causes teeth to decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, cause pyorrhea.

Tooth troubles were increasing. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than now. Few escaped.

The fight on film

Then dental science sought to fight film. Two ways were discovered. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. They mean a new dental era. A new-type tooth paste applies these methods daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it. And prettier teeth everywhere show the results.

Why old ways failed

Old ways brought undesired results. Pepsodent brings the opposite. It multiplies alkalinity of saliva, to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the power of saliva to digest starch.

The combined results will amaze you. Now learn what they mean.

Send coupon for 10-day tube. Note how clean teeth feel, after using. See teeth become whiter as film disappears.

Change your whole idea of teeth brushing. Find a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Clip coupon.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

"I BELIEVE that I am a pioneer in the Yeast-for-Health habit. I was one of those unfortunate youngsters who are neither sick nor well. I had a very poor appetite, and my mother humored me when she discovered that I liked yeast. (This was years ago.) It was not very long before the yeast started to take effect. First of all, I developed a regular appetite. Then I had a desire to play. My body seemed to grow stronger, and my mother said that I was like a new child. I have been using Fleischmann's Yeast ever since, whenever I felt the need of a regulator—a matter of thirteen years."
(A letter from Miss Laura Banker, Albany, N.Y.)

"IN a ballroom I managed when possible to hide myself behind a fan. My complexion was an eyesore to others and a heartache to me. . . . But that was last year. As I write, I put my left hand up to my cheek: velvety smoothness—a clear, glowing surface, unmarred by the hundred uglinesses it once knew! And the whole transformation was ridiculously easy: two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day for a period of three months!"
(Miss Nancy Freeman of New York.)

"I DID not eat six cakes of Yeast and feel myself improving immediately. In fact for one month I used 3 cakes a day without any visible improvement. But by the middle of August, 1921, my chronic constipation commenced to give way . . . I again consulted our family physician, who told me to use no other remedies but Fleischmann's Yeast . . . Today my stomach troubles have become ancient history, and my skin eruption a thing of the past—thanks to the remarkable effects of Fleischmann's Yeast."
(A letter from Miss Ruth Rollband of Utica, N.Y.)

ONE SIMPLE FOOD

and they found the Road to Health

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach, and general health are affected—this simple natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active.

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation.

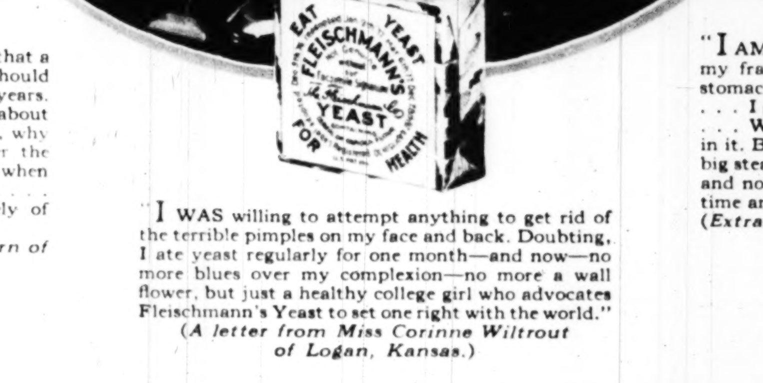
Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Fleischmann's Yeast comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! A few days' supply will keep fresh in your ice box as well as in the grocer's.

Write for further information or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Dept. 522, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York City.

"STRUGGLING with my dead husband's business, I found each day exacting more energy than I could generate. The end seemed inevitable—breakdown for myself, and institutional care for my boys and girls. I heard someone joking another about eating Fleischmann's Yeast. I tried it. To my surprise I soon felt a sustaining strength which increased as I used the yeast regularly. With better digestion, came improved assimilation resulting in added strength. Every time I buy Fleischmann's Yeast I feel positively ashamed of the trifling price I pay for each of these potent cakes."
(A letter from Mrs. A. C. Cowling, an Oklahoman.)

"A COMPLETE nervous breakdown with severe attacks of heart failure—the latter caused by acute indigestion—wrecked me mentally and physically. Vaguely I realized that during my lifelong diet of devitalized food I had been practically digging my own grave with my knife and fork. Then I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast Cakes. That was three years ago, and I am still eating them. My digestion is normal, my brain active and clear, and all those various aches and pains of a lifetime have disappeared."
(A letter from a New Jersey mechanical engineer, Mr. Frank M. Spencer.)



"I AM a mail-carrier, and it may sound strange that a man walking twelve miles a day, six days a week, should suffer from constipation. But I did for over three years. Laxatives gave me only temporary relief. Then about eleven months ago, a friend of mine said 'Black, why don't you try Fleischmann's Yeast?' . . . After the first month I noticed a remarkable difference, and when Saturday night came I still had some pep left . . . Fleischmann's Yeast has relieved me completely of constipation, and I feel tip-top all the time."
(Extract from a letter of Mr. J. F. Blackburn of Oakland, Cal.)

"I WAS willing to attempt anything to get rid of the terrible pimples on my face and back. Doubting, I ate yeast regularly for one month—and now—no more blues over my complexion—no more a wall flower, but just a healthy college girl who advocates Fleischmann's Yeast to set one right with the world."
(A letter from Miss Corinne Wiltrout of Logan, Kansas.)

"I AM a traveling man. Indigestion is a dreaded foe of my fraternity, but I boasted that I had abused my stomach for years. Then Indigestion landed a knockout! . . . I grew moody, discouraged, and my work suffered. . . . When a friend spoke to me of Yeast, I had no faith in it. But its effect was rapid, and one day I ordered a big steak, and potatoes, and coffee—a wonderful meal, and no bad after-effects! I again eat anything, at any time and any place!"
(Extract from a letter of Mr. W. L. McGahan of Dallas, Texas.)

The Story the Mirror Told

. . . her features were pleasing—even beautiful. She would have been exceptionally attractive, but for her skin. She had tried so hard—was there really no way to clear her complexion?

A remarkable new discovery goes to the root of skin troubles

Mercirex rids the complexion of pimples, blackheads, and other defects by treating the* true skin, *where troubles develop.

YOUR skin has two layers. The appearance of the surface skin depends on the health of the true skin, a complicated structure of blood-vessels, nerves, and millions of tiny glands lying beneath the surface.

Poisons, germs and infections frequently center in the true skin, retarding its important work of eliminating waste material from the body. The distress of the true skin then shows on the surface in the form of pimples, blackheads, eczema, eruptions, or other disorders. Nearly all skin troubles take root in the true skin.

The only way to clear the surface skin of these defects is to restore the true skin to health.

The L. D. Caulk Company, one of the oldest scientific institutions in the country, maintains research laboratories which made an exhaustive study of skin and scalp diseases. This study led to the discovery of a treatment which penetrates immediately to the true skin, and there acts promptly and positively on the deep centers of skin disorders.

The Mercirex Treatment

This treatment consists of Mercirex Medicated Soap and Mercirex Medicated Skin Cream, which used in conjunction will positively rid the skin of pimples, blackheads and more serious disorders. The Mercirex treatment is now offered to the public for the first time. It consists of two steps:

1—Cleanse the affected area with Mercirex Medicated Soap, the most efficacious germicidal soap developed for disinfecting the skin. It not only cleanses and disinfects the outer skin in a remarkable way, but stimulates the glands, preparing for the penetration of Mercirex Cream.

2—Apply Mercirex Cream thinly. Massage gently but thoroughly until the Cream penetrates, leaving no trace. It goes quickly to the true skin, killing germ life and neutralizing poisons, thus enabling the true skin to function normally. No other agency promptly eliminates the nucleus of skin disorders and rebuilds damaged tissues in this way.

Skin blemishes disappear!

The effects of this treatment are most extraordinary. With the true skin restored to health, surface defects, whether trivial or serious, disappear—often overnight—leaving the complexion clear and the skin beautifully smooth.

Mercirex Soap is pleasantly perfumed. Mercirex Cream is fragrant and flesh-tinted—leaves no trace to betray its use.

Your druggist is offering you a full-size Mercirex treatment, consisting of two cakes of soap and a jar of cream—regular $1.55 value—at the introductory price of $1.25. If he cannot supply you, mail the coupon with $1.25 and we will send you the introductory package, together with a booklet on the care of the skin and scalp.

You can depend on Mercirex—no matter how many other remedies have failed you!

Cross-section of the skin, greatly magnified.

The outer skin—which Mercirex Soap cleanses, disinfects and stimulates.

The complicated true skin, where most skin troubles develop. Mercirex Cream penetrates here, eliminating the nucleus of pimples, blackheads, and eczema. It is also effective against most other ailments of the skin and scalp—such as boils, ringworm, sores, wounds, insect bites, plant poisons, and dandruff.

Washington Bankers Oil Scandal Investi His Balance Was tion of Amount He He Gave Fall.

By CHARLES G. ROS
Chief Washington Correspon
the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.— separate lines of inquiry we lowed today by the Senate's investigating committee. These were the high spots of the day's hearing:

1. From officials of Washington banks the committee obtained evidence further discrediting the stories told by Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher and close personal friend of the late President Harding, to account for the $100,000 that former Secretary of the Interior Fall received in the latter part of 1921, a year before he gave the Elk Hills (Cal.) naval oil reserve lease to E. L. Doheny.

McLean had said, contradicting his previous story of a cash loan to Fall, that he gave Fall two or three checks aggregating $100,000, which were returned to him unused. Today it was shown that the total of McLean's balance in the three Washington banks where he carries accounts, was far less than $100,000 during the full period within which the checks might have been given.

It was also brought out that during this period McLean arranged for no overdrafts on his accounts

Coolidge's Secretary on Stand.

C. Bascom Slemp, private secretary to President Coolidge, told of making frequent visits to the Palm Beach home of E. B. McLean as a luncheon or dinner guest while he was at the Florida resort last December and January. Slemp denied that he went to Palm Beach on any "mission" in connection with the oil disclosures. Fall arrived while he was there and he saw the former secretary on three or four occasions, always at the McLean house, where Fall and his family took their meals. Slemp said that he had no "personal or private" conferences with either Fall or McLean. On the day that Senator Walsh arrived at Palm Beach to take the publisher's testimony, Slemp said he met McLean walking on the beach and McLean told him that he was going to "tell it all." He said that he urged McLean to tell the full truth.

After dinner one day at the McLeans, he said, Fall told him in the course of a general casual conversation that a friend of long standing could clear up the matter of the $100,000 loan and that if this friend did not do so, he (Fall) would. Slemp said that he advised Fall to "tell the truth about the matter and clean it up."

Slemp said that he gave this advice "as a matter of public duty." The committee failed to develop any evidence that Slemp went to Palm Beach as an Ambassador for President Coolidge.

Director Bain Questioned.

New evidence tending to show Cabinet discussion of the Fall oil leasing policy was brought out in the committee's examination of H. Foster Bain, director of the Bureau of Mines of the Interior Department, and a staunch supporter of the policy. Bain said that Fall told him the general subject of the oil leases had been discussed during or at the end of Cabinet meetings and that the Attorney-General had been present and had raised no objection.

The quizzing of Bain centered about a letter which he wrote to Fall in May, 1922, suggesting that it might be well to get a written opinion from the Attorney-General, but adding that he "realized the objections" to asking for such an opinion. Walsh finally got the witness to admit, under close questioning, that one of these objections consisted in the chance that
